JUDGE REFUSES SAMPSELL PLEA FOR ACQUITTAL

Insists Defense Give Its Evidence.

BY GEORGE WRIGHT.

Marshall E. Sampsell, former business associate of Samuel Insull and Martin Insull, lost yesterday his fight for a directed verdict of acquittal in his trial on a charge of embezzlement. Judge Michael Feinberg of the Criminal court, who is presiding in the case, overruled a defense motion that the jury be directed to return such a verdict and ordered the defense to start presenting its evidence on Monday.

The judge's ruling came after the state had completed its evidence and the defense attorneys had attacked the prosecution's case in extensive arguments.

The prosecutors, Assistant State's Attorneys John O'Hora and Alexander Napoli, contend their evidence shows that Sampsell early in 1932 embezzled 4,000 shares of the stock of the Central Illinois Public Service company, of which he was president, and pledged it with banks as collateral for personal loans.

Defense Argues Manfully.

For two hours Defense Attorneys Harry Ditchburne and Charles Lounsbury tried to shoot legal loopholes in the prosecution's evidence. They supported their arguments, most of them of a highly technical nature, with citations from the decisions of Supreme courts of many states.

Nonetheless, at the conclusion of the argument of Prosecutor O'Hora, who cited as many Supreme court decisions as the defense to support his contentions, Judge Feinberg denied the directed verdict plea and ordered the trial to proceed. Sampsell, the defense attorneys then announced, will be a witness Monday in his own behalf to explain the transaction whereby he is alleged to have abstracted from the treasury of his company the 4,000 shares of stock.

The only victory of the defense was won when the state was compelled to decide on which of the three counts of the indictment it desired to proceed with the trial. The embezzlement count, which carries a possible punishment of one to 14 years in the penitentiary, was selected.

Reasoning on Value of Stock.

The amount of stock involved in the trial was thereby reduced from the 5,000 shares allegedly abstracted to the 4,000 shares which were actually pledged as collateral. The two larceny counts in the indictment were dismissed.

One of the legal distinctions the defense lawyers sought to draw in their arguments against the state case was that a stock certificate cannot be embezzled because it has no legal value. The value inheres in the actual share of stock, they contended, and the certificate is just a piece of paper on which is written the fact that the stock is owned by some individual. And further, they argued, the statute does not specify stock certificates as something which can be embezzled.

Judge Feinberg disposed of this point by reading the statute, which says "anything of value whatsoever" may be the subject of embezzlement. Stock certificates, the judge ruled, are traded on the market and used for collateral in banks and therefore are genuinely of value.

Decides on Scene of Crime.

The other two main questions raised by the defense, one of venue of the crime and the other of "felonious intent" of the defendant, also failed to win a directed verdict.

The defense contended the crime, if any, was not completed until the actual conversion occurred when the 2,000 shares of stock were pledged with four Springfield banks to cover a joint $100,000 loan of Sampsell and Martin Insull. The other 2,000 shares were used to cover Sampsell's sliding debt with the Continental Illinois bank, which at the time was $250,000.

The question of venue [place of the alleged crime] was settled by the judge when he ruled that the embezzlement, if any, was committed at the time the stock was removed from the treasury of the company here.

Judge Feinberg did announce, however, that he would not lack courage at the end of all the testimony to direct the jury to return a not guilty verdict if the defense could prove that no criminal intent figured in the abstraction of the stock certificates.

Alert for Evidence of Intent.

"I am not passing on the guilt or innocence of this defendant," the judge explained. "If the defense shows that no criminal intent existed I will do what the Supreme court would do."

Sampsell and his attorneys contend

ALUMINUM CO. STRIKE BEGINS; 15,000 TO QUIT

BULLETIN.

Pittburgh, Pa., Aug. 11 (Saturday).—(AP)—Responding to a general call for a strike in the aluminum industry several hundred men walked out of the Kensington plant of the Aluminum Company of America last night. A foreman was injured in attempting to pass through picket lines.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 10.—[Special.]—Fifteen thousand employés of the Mellon controled Aluminum Company of America today were ordered by the American Federation of Labor to walk out on strike at midnight.

The strike, one of the most serious precipitated by organized labor in recent weeks, was called with the approval of William Green, president of the A. F. of L.

Following the strike call the labor relations board announced it is ready to assist in arranging a "satisfactory settlement" of the controversy.

Aimed Only at Mellon Company.

The strike is aimed only at the Aluminum Company of America, largest of all aluminum concerns. The company is owned by the Mellon family of which Andrew W. Mellon, former secretary of the treasury and ambassador to Great Britain, is the patriarch. Independent aluminum companies, employing another 15,000, are not affected.

Boris Shishkin, spokesman for the A. F. of L., insisted that the strike was called because the Mellon company refused to recognize or deal with the A. F. of L. aluminum union, the Aluminum Workers' council.

The company, in a formal statement issued here today, declared that it has always been willing to deal with the A. F. of L. union, but that the A. F. of L. is demanding a closed shop, a demand which the company will never grant.

The head offices of the company are in Pittsburgh. Plants are in East St. Louis, New Kensington, Arnold, and Logan's Ferry, Pa.; Massena, N. Y.; Baden, N. C., and Alcoa, Tenn.

Issues Explained.

In its demands for a contract with the Mellon company the union claims it has 90 per cent of the company's workers on its membership rolls. The company challenges the union to show that it has over 50 per cent of the workers with paid up memberships. In a statement explaining the issues at stake, the company said:

"On July 25 the Aluminum Workers' council, which is the labor organization affiliated with the A. F. of L., came to us with a closed shop proposal containing these four points:

"[A] Checkoff system of collecting union dues.

"[B] Union seniority rules, whereby the union would absolutely control the hiring of and firing of all employés, and with the standard A. F. of L. clause that no man who had worked for the company for 30 days or more could be discharged for incompetency, etc.

"[C] A universal wage rate for various classes of work in all of our plants—i. e.: a proposal to eliminate the north-south differential which now exists in our industry as well as in all others.

"[D] Closed shop proposal, whereby the unions forbid us to bargain collectively except with themselves.

Proposals Turned Down.

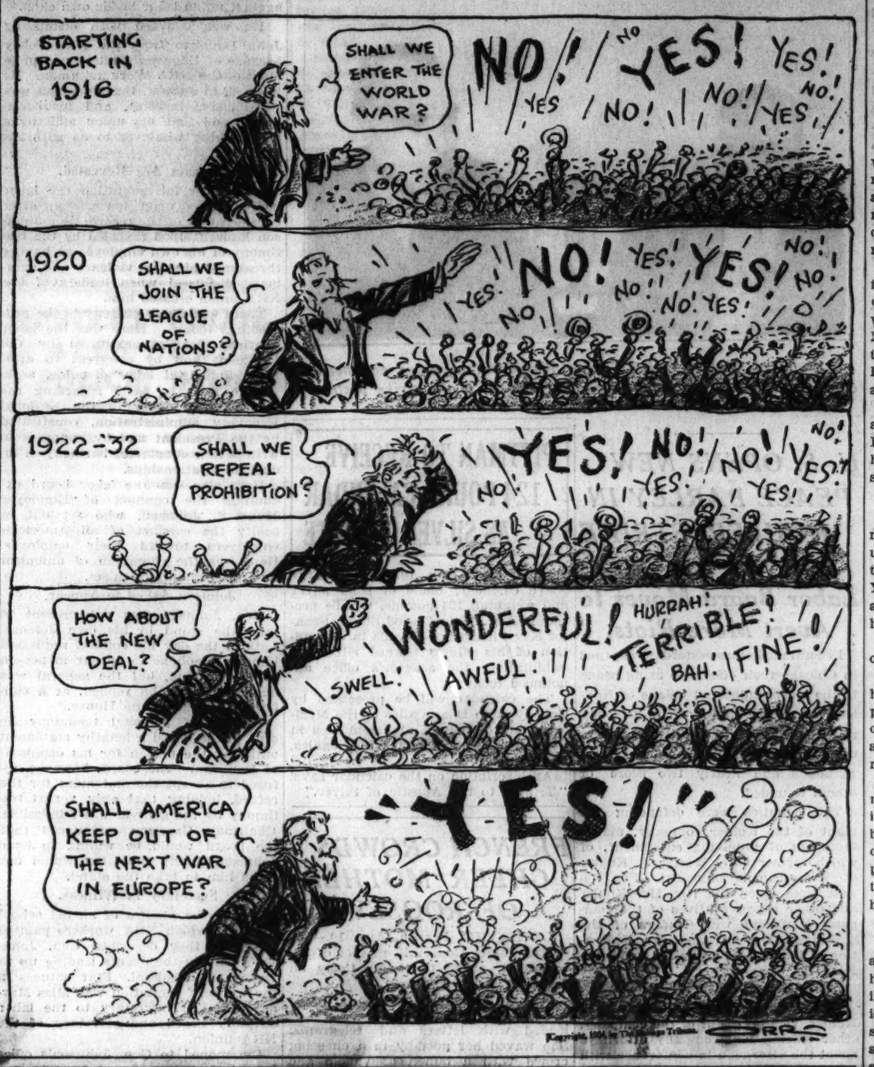

"On August 3 we met with representatives of the Aluminum Workers' council, together with Boris Shishkin and one other organizer from the A. F. of L. We gave the union people a letter in which we turned them down on each of their four proposals.

"A representative of the labor relations board visited Pittsburgh early this week to discuss with our officials whether we were willing to meet the workers on any of their points, and whether, also, we would recognize the principle of collective bargaining. We do recognize that principle, but do not concede the four points enumerated above."

Girls Watch Bandits Beat and Rob Saloon Owner

Three armed youths, accompanied by two women, young and well dressed, entered the saloon of Anthony Viza at 9008 Buffalo avenue last night and after robbing the owner of $125 beat him until he was unconscious. The girls, who looked on while the violence was in progress, fled with the robbers.

BATTLE 2 HOURS TO RESCUE BOY CAUGHT IN ROCKS

Firemen, policemen, and impromptu rescuers struggled for two hours yesterday to extricate George Winters, 14 years old, 3330 Emerald avenue, from two rocks which held his leg fast at the Lake Michigan water line at 43d street.

The Winters boy had been swimming with two companions when his leg became caught between the bowlders. The other boys called the police, who in turn summoned the fire department when they found they could not yank him free.

While a crowd of nearly 500 persons gathered the rescuers tried to lift the rocks with jacks, to file them away with chisels, and to break them with a power drill. These failed to help and the situation became critical when lake waves began to break over the boy.

Finally Lieut. Arthur Driscoll of fire squad No. 3, acting under the orders of Division Marshal John J. Costello, got some transmission grease from a fire truck. He smeared this on the boy's leg and on the bowlders, then easily pulled him free. Young Winters was treated for his bruises at the Chicago Memorial hospital.

AUTO SHUNTED INTO TRAIN BY ANOTHER; 5 DIE

Vermontville, Mich., Aug. 10.—Four persons were killed here tonight when their automobile was shunted into the path of an onrushing train by another machine which failed to stop. A fifth person, believed to have been a transient riding on the tender of the locomotive, was also killed. The locomotive was derailed into a ditch by the impact.

Four of the dead, occupants of the automobile, were identified by Deputy Sherif K. K. Ward as Mr. and Mrs. Dale McClintock, living near Charlotte, Mich., and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Cook, living near Lacey Lake, Mich. The fifth victim was not identified.

Ward said that the automobile containing the two couples stopped at the South Main street crossing to wait for the Jackson to Grand Rapids passenger train to go by. Another car, driven by a man he said was George Swift of Vermontville, pulled up behind the auto but failed to stop, sending the first car into the collision with the train.

Florida Chain Gang Fugitive Captured Here

Howard Beck, 29 years old, an escaped lifer from a Florida chain gang, was being held prisoner at the detective bureau last night while policemen from the southern state were en route to Chicago to take him into custody.

Beck was arrested yesterday in his home at 6821 Emerald avenue by detectives who gained entrance by posing as relief workers. With him was his young wife Nellie, whom he married soon after he had escaped in July of 1933, and her mother, Mrs. Ruth Sharkey.

Tells Story of Escape.

Surprised at dinner, the convict put up no fight and when questioned at the bureau he admitted to his captors, Detectives Edward Allman and James Zegar, that he had been sentenced to life imprisonment at Miami in 1928 for his part in a gun battle between bootleggers and police in which a deputy sherif was killed.

He said he had worked in chain gangs for five years and told of his escape from camp 33 at Brooksville, Fla., in a convict's uniform and with a ball and chain still attached to his leg.

"I cut my way through the side of the wooden barracks with a machete I had been using to cut underbrush," he told the detectives, "and hid in some swamps nearby.

Beats Anklet Off Leg.

"They looked for me, of course—they don't like to lose anybody from those chain gangs—but I fooled them by staying in the swamps for a week. Once, when the searchers came close, I crouched down in the water with only my face out. There were snakes there, but I didn't care. I figured they were better than going back to the road work."

Beck described to the detectives how he finally emerged from the swamps and beat the anklet off his leg by placing it on one stone and striking it with another. In doing this he splintered his shin bone and lamed himself.

"Then I broke into a colored family's cabin and stole a shirt and a pair of trousers," he continued. "I hiked through the swamps and marshes to Georgia, and although it was 400 miles and I was lame, I made it in 10 days. Then I came to Chicago, hitch-hiking and riding freight trains."

Gets Money from Schoolmates.

Beck had attended Tilden High school in Chicago for a year, he said, and after returning to Chicago he appealed to two of his schoolmates, who gave him money for clothes. He got a job driving a truck and met and married Mrs. Nellie Giffney, a divorcée. He made a home for her and her mother on Emerald avenue when they agreed that his prison record meant nothing to them, he said.

A reported asked the detectives how they had learned of Beck's presence in Chicago.

"Two persons called us up and told us about him," said Detective Allman.

Beck overheard the policeman's reply. "It was my schoolmates," he said. "The two of them wanted to split the $25 reward. They were the only ones who knew about me besides my wife and her mother."

"It may interest you to know," said Detective Allman to the reporter when they were out of hearing distance of the cell, "that the information came from a woman."

LUCKY FELLOW LOSES CHANCE ON A REVOLVER

Joseph Burns, 17 years old, of San Francisco, was stopped by police last night as he was carrying a large suitcase from the World's Fair grounds. The suitcase was filled with watches and stockings. Young Burns explained that he had won them from various "take a chance" concessions.

"I'm just an extremely lucky fellow," he said modestly to the policemen.

As he spoke he started to walk away and a loaded pistol, which was tied to his leg under his trousers, came untied and fell to the ground. He was unable to name the concession from which he got the weapon, so he was taken to the detective bureau.

Mary Pickford Scoffs; Calls Charge False

Mary Pickford, a visitor in Chicago, was advised last night of the latest move of her self-styled "foster father" and one time manager, Edward Hemmer, who is suing her in New York courts for $250,000 for "preserving her reputation."

Yesterday in New York Hemmer filed a bill of particulars. In it he charged, among other things, that when Mary was still the wife of Owen Moore, Douglas Fairbanks was forced to flee from her dressing room on a Hollywood lot and vault to safety over a fence.

Hemmer, in his bill, named himself as the one who forced the athletic Doug to retreat. A revolver in his hand, Hemmer set forth, was the reason for haste.

Race from Lambs' Club.

Months later, according to Hemmer's court charges, Fairbanks called upon his agile legs to speed him from the lounge of the Lambs' club in New York when Hemmer approached to ask him to give up America's sweetheart for the sake of her public.

These incidents, the bill charged, occurred in 1919 and 1920.

Reached in her suite at the Drake hotel last night on the eve of her departure for California, Miss Pickford characterized as "purely fictional" and "highly imaginative" the charges made against her by Hemmer.

"He would make a very fine scenario writer with his colorful imagination," she said. "He was employed by mother and me just as hundreds of others were employed. He was paid a salary regularly and I have the canceled checks to prove it. He has no other claim.

Will Not Avoid Suit.

"The place for an imagination such as his is in the motion pictures, where he could make a lot of money, and not in a court of law. I will not be intimidated and I'll not settle this case for so much as a postage stamp. I'm not afraid of him—not a particle. I'll not avoid the suit, but neither will I settle it. I'll see it to the bitter end."

"There is a very good reason why he is no longer in my employ," she added.

Miss Pickford said that Hemmer was an actor who at one time played in the same stock company with her mother. Her mother gave him a job handling executive matters for her.

Denies He Was Manager.

Miss Pickford denied that Hemmer was ever her manager. Only her mother, she said, ever occupied that position.

She was unable to say whether she would go to New York and take the witness stand. That action, she explained, will depend entirely upon the advice of her attorney.

Hemmer, in his bill, declared the Fairbanks menace came to his attention four years after he had commissioned an artist to draw the familiar picture of America's Sweetheart seated in a field of daisies, with curls cascading from under a large hat and a bunny nestling in her lap.

Mary's mother called him by long distance from the west coast, Hemmer alleged, and begged him to go at once to Denver to suppress unfavorable publicity to the star.

Arriving there, he continued, he became alarmed at the strides which the friendship between Douglas and Mary had taken, so he summoned reporters into a conference. Appealing to their tender sensibilities, he convinced them they ought not to publish the story of the friendship, Hemmer related, because of the 100,000 prints of the Daisy Meadow picture which had been broadcast.

It was another such telephone call

WALLACE ACTS AS PRESIDENT REACHES DESK

New Deal Spending Crisis Looms.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 10.—[Special.]—Troubles and drastic happenings in his New Deal were awaiting President Roosevelt when he returned to the White House today.

The first blast was an announcement by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace that next year he will virtually abandon the crop reduction program of the AAA.

Gazing ruefully upon a new crop report indicating that this year's crops will be the smallest in 31 years, due to combined influences of the nation's worst drouth and the AAA schemes, Mr. Wallace admitted that next year "there will have to be very great changes in our program." The corn crop, according to the United States report, will be nearly a billion bushels short of normal.

Step Toward Inflation.

Then came an announcement by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, made several hours after he had conferred at length with the President, heralding the news that the treasury will start printing paper money on a fictitious value of silver. Silver bought or sequestered at 50 cents an ounce will be used for printing paper money as if it were worth $1.29 an ounce. The profits of this currency inflation will be used to pay part of the expenses of the New Deal.

The greatest question facing the New Dealers today is whether they can much longer obtain funds with which to continue their expenditures for the dole, the public works, the bounties to farmers, the loans to everybody.

Other problems confronting the President immediately upon his return from a 10,000 mile journey to the far outposts of American possessions were these:

Labor uprisings, many of them inspired by an organized communistic propaganda; rumblings against the NRA, millions of citizens on relief—more than in the New Deal's beginning, prices rising to face consumers, millions of farm families impoverished by the drouth.

Threat Against Nation's Credit.

But the threat against the credit of the nation was deemed the most pressing problem. It was recognized that yesterday's failure of the treasury to obtain par bids for a 150 million dollar issue of Home Owners' Loan corporation bonds, unconditionally guaranteed by the government, was an uncomfortable omen.

Since the great spending of billions of borrowed dollars was begun many critics of the New Deal program have insisted that the time would come when the government would have reached the end of its credit, and the whole plan of achieving prosperity by "priming the pump" would collapse.

It was not widely expected, however, that this would result for some time yet, and the question was whether the business recovery counted upon by the New Dealers would arrive ahead of the collapse.

Large Financing Soon.

Now that government guaranteed bonds, for the first time in history, have failed to bring sufficient bids at par prices, there is a feeling that the crisis may be approaching. Next month, Sept. 15, the treasury must retire or refinance a billion dollars of Liberty bonds. It is likely that on the same date new funds must be obtained for New Deal expenditures.

This will provide a crucial test of the government's credit, and in the light of the poor reception of the HOLC bond offering there were grave apprehensions as to how the new financing will go over. The treasury sold the HOLC bonds at prices ranging down to 99, but had only offers for 128 millions at that rate. The remaining 22 millions were purchased by the treasury for its own account.

President Not Dismayed.

Since the "profits" under the treasury's new silver inflationary scheme announced this evening will be put into the general fund, it is thought Mr. Roosevelt considered this might aid the financing and refinancing programs.

The President has given no sign of dismay over the situation. He looked greatly rested and improved in health when he arrived this noon from his transcontinental trip. On that journey he was encouraged by the reception given him by vast crowds along the route, but he must also have been sickened at the scenes of poverty and barrenness as he rolled through the drouth areas.

The President has been informed that the 525 million dollars allocated to drouth relief will not be enough to relieve the needs of the stricken farmers and he will be compelled to seek further funds from the next congress.

Reactions to the new silver program of the administration were generally regarded as unfavorable. The stock market, which yesterday advanced sharply on the threat of inflation carried in the silver move, broke today and slumped below yesterday's gains. The feeling was abroad that even an inflation threat cannot halt the tide of pessimism which has crept into financial centers of late.

Changes in Wallace Plans.

Secretary Wallace's announcement of the drastic changes to be made in next year's farm program resulted, it was said, from fears that food prices may rise to the point of great hardships upon American cities. With farm surpluses greatly reduced or completely wiped out in a single year of drouth, Mr. Wallace was finally forced to concede that nature had outstripped his schemes to the point of grave danger.

"No contracts have been made for next year," he said, "and consequently there can be no modifications. But compared with this year there will have to be very great changes in our program."

Under further questioning by reporters Mr. Wallace said that while there probably won't be much of an attempt to control acreage at all in 1935, "there will be a real control in 1936."

He scoffed when asked about the possibility of a famine in the land.

"There won't be as many pork chops and choice tenderloin steaks, but there will be plenty of food," he said. He admitted food prices were due for "very substantial rises," but predicted that farm prices will continue to represent a smaller part of the consumer's dollar than they did during the pre-war period of 1909-1914.

More Radical Plans.

The President's address at Green Bay, Wis., yesterday showed his disposition to move his program into still more radical lines, with more instead of less control over private business, agriculture and industry. His speech was taken to mean still higher taxes, still greater spendings, and all this seemed to enhance the fears of business men.

Entirely apart from these current developments were industrial reports which showed a continued slackening of commercial activity. A report on carloadings, released today by the American Railway association, showed loadings of 611,298 cars in the week ending Aug. 4, which is 2,450 cars above last week's total, but 9,184 under the corresponding week of 1933. Chief weakening influence was the loading of "less than carload lot" freight, which was 13,460 cars under the 1933 week.

Shipments of the United States Steel corporation declined in July to 369,938 tons, a decrease of 615,399 tons from the June level of 985,337 tons.

The American Federation of Labor has seen unemployment increasing in July, with prospects for worse conditions in August.

New Strikes Develop.

Although many strikes, including the major ones at San Francisco and Chicago, have been settled, others persist and new ones are constantly arising. A strike called today is expected to tie up the plants of the Aluminum Company of America, and to throw 15,000 employés out of work.

This evening the President invited Secretary of State Hull to tea, but here again no inkling could be obtained as to the nature of their conversation. The administration's plan for recapturing lost foreign markets, in Hull's charge, has gotten nowhere, and to many observers shows little promise.

The volume of agricultural products exported from the United States in June, according to a report of the department of agriculture today, was only 59 per cent of the June average for the pre-war years, compared with 72 per cent in June, 1933. This year's June record was the lowest in twenty years.

Tomorrow Mr. Roosevelt has invited four of his New Deal chieftains to confer with him at the White House. Two are new in office. These are Joseph P. Kennedy, chairman of the new security and exchange commission, and James A. Moffett Jr., housing administrator. Others called to the White House are Eugene Black, chairman of the federal reserve board, and Jesse Jones, chairman of the Reconstructon Finance corporation.

SILVER IS SOLD, PROFIT $12,000, COUGHLIN SAYS

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 10.—(AP)—The Rev. Father Charles E. Coughlin, pastor of the Shrine of the Little Flower, said today that the Radio league of the Little Flower had sold all of its silver holdings long before silver was nationalized by government order yesterday, and that the profit was $12,000.

"The Radio league has no silver holdings now," he said. "That is all water over the dam.

"Months ago, as every one knows, the league purchased 250,000 ounces of silver at various times on margin. That was sold at a profit of $12,000 and the money has been spent on last year's radio broadcasts."

He denied vigorously a report that the league was prepared to surrender 250,000 ounces of silver and that its profit would be $120,000.

It was disclosed last April, during a governmental investigation of silver speculation, that Miss Amy Collins, one of Father Coughlin's secretaries, was the holder of ten contracts for 250,000 ounces of silver. Father Coughlin and Miss Collins, who is secretary of the Radio league, explained at that time the league had invested $20,000 of its funds in silver, believing it to be a sound investment.

3 Sailors Die, 11 Hurt as Italian Naval Ship Is Hit

NAPLES, Italy, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Three sailors were killed and 11 injured today when the Italian motor vessel Pallade collided with the torpedo boat Antoniotto Usodimare, en route to Naples from naval maneuvers at Gaeta. The Pallade cut a great hole in the destroyer amidship. Its prow penetrated sailors' living quarters.

EMPLOYES SEEK POLL ON UNION IN MINNEAPOLIS

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 10.—[Special.]—Employés of some of the embattled firms whose business activities are being throttled by the truck controversy joined today in demanding that an election be held to determine whether the local truckers' union shall represent them.

This is a demand the employers have already made of the federal mediators, Father Francis J. Haas and E. H. Dunnigan. The conciliators have remained silent, save to point to their original peace proposal which called for elections after, not before, the walkout was ended.

More than 350 workers in 43 firms signed the election request, which was forwarded to the national labor relations board in Washington, copies being given to Father Haas and Dunnigan.

Court Ruling Awaited.

This development held precedence in the day's news in the absence of a decision from the federal judges who heard the issues of the strike debated yesterday by Gov. Floyd B. Olson, who wants martial law retained, and attorneys for the business men, who want him enjoined from using the military to keep their trucks off the streets.

The governor argued that the troops were preserving law and order. Plaintiffs held that military rule was a club to force them to sign the Haas-Dunnigan proposal, with which they disagree.

Judge John B. Sanborn of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals and District Judges Joseph W. Molyneaux and Gunnar H. Nordbye have had two meetings since the arguments and their decision is expected soon.

Both Prepared to Act.

If they enjoin martial law employers are expected to put their trucks in operation again, probably with the aid of Minneapolis police, who have been shoved into second position by the military. The union promises resumption of picketing if the trucks move without permits. Picketing will probably mean violence.

If martial law is upheld the employers will press their demands for employés' elections, believing that they should not be forced to deal with a labor organization which does not represent their workers. By dealing first with the union, with the elections following, the business men feel that they would be placed in the position of granting the arbitrary demands of a group of men not authorized to speak for their workers.

Outline Election Plan.

The employers today outlined what they regarded as a fair basis for holding the election. They suggested that since the mediators were sent to Minneapolis at government expense to settle the controversy, they should hold the election immediately.

To determine who shall vote, the employers proposed that the membership records of the union be used and the names and addresses taken of all resident union drivers, both those on record when the first walkout was called in May and those who have since joined the union.

Each qualified voter would then be notified to appear at a selected election place and there a secret ballot would be taken under the direction of the conciliators.

"All of the floating members who were taken in since the first strike was called for the very obvious purpose of preventing an honest vote would have to be excluded," the employers said.

"The leaders of the truck drivers' union are communistic," the employers continued. "Most of the men imported from other cities are communistic or communist sympathizers. So an election of bona fide truck drivers would have to be under protection from these outsiders."

END DISTILLERY STRIKE AT PEKIN; WORK RESUMED

Pekin, Ill., Aug. 10.—[Special.]—The strike that has kept the American distillery idle since 11 o'clock last Monday night was called off at midnight and the plant resumed operations this morning. Pickets were withdrawn, deputy sheriffs sent home and Col. Albert Culbertson, who sat in at the conferences as a personal representative of Gov. Horner, returned to Camp Grant today.

The strike was called by the firemen and oilers' union who claimed breach of contract entered into at a previous strike, May 31, 1934. One grievance was that a fireman, John Booth, had been discriminated against and discharged.

The company claimed Booth's discharge was due to inefficiency. A board of arbitration appointed at the conference decided the evidence sustained the employer in the discharge of Booth, but because of seniority rights he was placed in a position as ashman.

The 34 other grievances of the union are to be settled by arbitration and they are being considered by a board that convened this morning and has been in session the entire day.

All men injured in a clash between workmen and pickets Tuesday afternoon have recovered. Crowds which have been the order for the last few days have dispersed and conditions about the town and the distillery are back to normal.

Seek to Settle Strike at Kohler Plant

U. S. OPENS NEW PEACE PARLEY IN KOHLER STRIKE

Labor Board Moves to Avert More Riots.

Federal mediators yesterday reopened in Chicago their efforts to bring peace to the model industrial village of Kohler, Wis., scene on July 27 of a bloody riot by strikers in which two members of the mob were killed by deputy city marshals and nearly two score of others wounded.

The deputies were defending the plant of the Kohler company, manufacturers of plumbing equipment, of which former Gov. Walter J. Kohler of Wisconsin is president. For the first time since the riot Mr. Kohler and other representatives of the company conferred with leaders of the striking union, an American Federation of Labor local organized under the NRA.

Hear Kohlers First.

Mr. Kohler, his brother, Herbert V. Kohler, vice president of the company, other officials and company attorneys spent the afternoon in conference with a panel of the Chicago regional labor board in the board's headquarters at the new postoffice building. Members of this panel are Dean William H. Spencer of the University of Chicago, impartial chairman; Carl Steffensen, secretary; Samuel Levin, labor representative, and Don M. Compton, industry representative.

Following the conference with the employer group, the panel entered a session with the representatives of labor. These included Arthur Kuhn, president of the striking local; Henry Ohl Jr., president of the Wisconsin Federation of Labor; and Paul Smith, personal representative of President William Green of the A. F. of L.

Later in the evening the company representatives returned from the Palmer house, where they had been awaiting a call, and both sides participated in a round table conference with the mediators. The conference adjourned at 10 p. m. with the announcement that though a settlement had not been reached, negotiations will be resumed this morning.

Demand 65 Cent Scale.

The union is demanding a minimum wage of 65 cents an hour, a 30 hour week, and recognition by the company. The Kohler company, under the NRA code for its industry, has been paying a minimum wage of 40 cents an hour [for common labor] on a 40 hour week.

It has refused recognition of the A. F. of L. union, contending that a company union represents the majority of its employés.

The strike began July 16 and Wisconsin National Guardsmen have been on duty since the riot on June 27. Shortly thereafter the plant was closed down completely.

PITTMAN TO RECEIVE 124 POUND CALENDAR AS SILVER TRIBUTE

Reno, Nev., Aug. 10.—(AP)—A large Aztec calendar, made of solid silver and weighing 124 pounds, will be presented Aug. 18 to United States Senator Key Pittman of Nevada in recognition of his efforts toward silver rehabilitation, the senator's office announced today.

The calendar will be presented by Gov. Rodolfo Elias Calles of the Mexican state of Sonora at ceremonies in Senator Pittman's honor at Nogales, Sonora.

FRENCH CROWDS CHEER MOTHER OF ROOSEVELT

Her apartment, before she left, was filled with flowers. Her table was loaded with letters and telegrams. She waved her good-by to a cheering crowd with a bunch of violets and shouted farewell to France.

She left Paris, after a three weeks' visit, by automobile at 8:30 a. m., but stopped so long in Rouen to admire the cathedral that she arrived after all the passengers had gone aboard the ship. The Ile de France was almost ready to start, but the captain assured her he would have delayed the sailing if necessary until she got aboard.

Mrs. Roosevelt spoke in French to the crowd:

"I will tell my son how nice the French people are."

BRITISH RAILWAY STRIKE AVERTED; WAGES BOOSTED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 10.—A railway strike involving 400,000 men was averted today when the managers of the four British railway companies and representatives of three trades unions reached an agreement on partial restoration of the 1931 wage cuts.

The agreement largely affects workers who are paid the minimum wage and will cost the companies about $10,000,000 annually. The national wages board in 1931 cut the pay of all railway workers earning $10 weekly by 2½ per cent and of all those earning more than that by 5 per cent.

Under the settlement reached today the railway companies will restore 1¼ per cent of the cuts on Oct 1 and an additional 1¼ per cent on Jan. 1. Complete stoppage of the railway lines had been theratened and communistic elements in the union today sought to have the settlement rejected.

JOHNSON, NRA CHIEF, TRIED FOR FIRING NRA MAN

U. S. Labor Board Hears Ex-Employe's Story.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 10.—[Special.]—Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, who enforces union recognition and the rights of union labor upon all American industry, came to trial before President Roosevelt's New Deal labor relations board today for alleged discrimination against union labor in his own shop.

He was charged with dismissing John Donovan from the NRA solely because of Donovan's activity as president of the NRA Workers' union. He insisted, in answer, that Donovan was "inefficient, insolent, and insubordinate," and that his union affiliations had nothing whatever to do with his discharge.

Threats Are Revealed.

Whichever interpretation the labor board places upon his action, after consideration of the record, Gen. Johnson himself stood revealed by the testimony of his own employés as having threatened physical violence and summary dismissal when leaders of the NRA union crossed him.

There was much of irony in the proceedings today. Here was the labor relations board, constituted by the President and by congress to arbitrate industrial labor disputes, seeking to find the facts regarding the treatment of labor in the National Recovery administration, constituted by the President and by congress to write a new chapter of harmony in industrial relationships.

Here also was the labor board examining the conduct of Employer Hugh S. Johnson, who set out to codify the conduct of all American employers toward their employés. Here was the champion of unionism on trial for anti-unionism.

Johnson Asked to Appear.

Gen. Johnson was not present to take the stand in his own defense. Late in the day his counsel requested him by telephone to appear in person at the hearing, but the general was due even then, he replied, at a conference at the White House.

In lieu of personal testimony he sent to the board a lengthy statement outlining the reason for his dismissal of Donovan. The board, however, refused to accept the statement for the record, holding that only verbal testimony by the general was admissible. Chairman Garrison announced that the board would be willing to hear Johnson at any time, but would not press him to take the stand.

Secretary Is Witness.

It was the picture of an old school martinet which NRA workers painted today as they described Gen. Johnson's part in the events leading up to Donovan's dismissal. Star witness in the workers' recitation was Miss Margaret Stabler, secretary to the labor advisory board and secretary of the NRA union.

Summoned to Gen. Johnson's office late in the afternoon of June 18, she related, officials of the union learned with great surprise just before they entered that their president here had been fired from the recovery administration.

"We went into Gen. Johnson's office," Miss Stabler stated. "He was noticeably excited, very red in the face, very annoyed. With him were Miss Robinson and Mr. Lawson, publicity director for the NRA.

"Gen. Johnson asked us to sit down, and Henry Ryan, one of the delegation, said: 'We are the delegation from the NRA Workers' union. We have just learned that our president has been fired.'"

Asserts His Independence.

"I don't have to account to you or any one else why I hire or fire anybody," the general replied, according to Miss Stabler. He added that he had conferred with E. Claude Babcock, president of the American Federation of Federal Employés, and with William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, before dismissing Donovan.

"We can only assume that he was fired for his union activities," Ryan persisted.

"Are you trying to argue with me?" the general retorted, and Miss Stabler said he was very indignant indeed. "If you are I'll throw you out of here on your ear in two minutes. I've had all of this I can stand."

Warned He's on List.

Turning to Joel Burrell, another of the union delegation, Miss Stabler related, the general warned him that he, too, was on the "list to be fired."

"Some one in this room has been telling the newspapers I threatened to call the police," the general shouted, according to Miss Stabler's account, "and when I find out who it was I'll fire him, too."

Donovan, who preceded her on the stand, is a tall, bespectacled youth in a neat linen suit. He looked like anything but a professional troublemaker.

His record, according to his immediate superior, Dr. Gustav Peck, chief of staf of the labor advisory board, was not good. While he had performed valuable services at time, he was unreliable, frequently absent without leave. His name had long since been included in a list of those who would be first to go when the organization of the labor advisory board was pared down.

Miss Stabler testified later, however, that Dr. Peck had read her the list of those who were shortly to be fired, and she insisted that Donovan's name was not on it.

It was the case of Miss Nancy Lukes, a minor clerk in the NRA, which led to the dismissal of Union President Donovan and the trial before the national labor board. Miss Lukes had been discharged several weeks earlier and the union had taken up a fight to have her reinstated.

Miss Jean Kapusta, 19 years old and blonde, of Michigan City was chosen "Miss Indiana" last evening in a beauty contest which inaugurated the first annual Dunes Water Sports Carnival, a three day celebration at Michigan City.

She was one of thirteen finalists in the contest, each representing an Indiana city. Second place went to Miss Verna Rose Harris of Long Beach. The judges were Miss Rhea Seeger, fashion editor of THE TRIBUNE; Felix Mendelssohn of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer corporation, and Ray Topper.

Miss Kapusta and her court, composed of the other twelve entrants in the contests, will be guests today at the Long Beach Country club and on a yacht trip. This afternoon they will occupy the leading float in a parade celebrating the opening of repaved Main street in Michigan City and Miss Kapusta will cut the ribbon admitting traffic to the new thoroughfare.

Miss Kapusta will be crowned as queen of the carnival this evening at a coronation ball in the Oasis ballroom. Tomorrow she and her court will be guests of President Rufus C. Dawes at the World's Fair. Today and tomorrow a program of yacht and speedboat races has been arranged by the Michigan City Chamber of Commerce and the Michigan City Yacht club.

100 STORES FACE EVANSTON POLICE PADLOCKS TODAY

One hundred Evanston stores face today the possibility of having their doors locked by the police as the deadline for making payments on their 1934 city licenses was passed yesterday.

The deadline was set by the Evanston city council on July 23 after the finance committee reported that merchants within the city limits owed $11,667 for their licenses. The city collector was notified that the fees had to be paid by yesterday.

Since the council's ultimatum the city has received $4,410, but at the close of the collector's office last night it was indicated that 100 merchants still owed their 1934 fees.

The list of stores will be turned over to the police and each of the owners will be notified to appear at the police station, according to Mayor Charles H. Bartlett. There they will be booked for operating without a license and will be ordered to close unless they can show good cause for not having made their payment.

Mayor Bartlett said, however, that merchants unable to pay the whole fee, which varies according to the type of business, would be allowed to operate if they made partial payments.

TRAIN SMASHES TRUCK; TWO DIE, SEVEN ARE HURT

Accident Swells Toll of Glenview Crossing.

Two men were killed and seven others were injured late last night when the truck in which they were riding was struck by a southbound Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific train on the so-called death crossing of Waukegan road just south of Glenview.

The dead were Michael Giosb, 32 years old, 600 North Ridgeway avenue, and Pernell Shillcutt, 35 years old, 607 North Hamlin avenue.

Returning from Milwaukee Job.

All except the CCC worker were roofers, who had been on a job in Milwaukee during the day. Approaching the crossing from the north, they failed to see the train. The tracks cross the highway at a sharp angle. When the engine struck the truck it carried the victims several hundred yards before hurling them and the wreckage clear.

The crossing long has been known as one of the most dangerous in Cook county. In the last six years it has been the scene of twenty-four deaths. Recently the state accepted bids for the construction of a grade separation to end the death toll.

These deaths and two others increased the Cook county motor toll since Jan. 1 to 729.

Miss Bernice Lempa, 19 years old, 3224 West 38th place, was killed when an automobile in which she was a passenger, driven by Frank Penkala, 4051 South Kedzie avenue, overturned at 87th street and Cork avenue, Lyons. Penkala and two other passengers, one a woman, were only slightly hurt.

Boy Truck Victim Dies.

Aloysius Orlowski, 7 years old, 1134 North Hoyne avenue, died yesterday in the Lutheran Deaconess hospital of injuries incurred when he was struck by a truck in an alley west of 2146 Haddon avenue. Stanley Soja, 17 years old, 858 North Winchester avenue, the driver of the truck, was held by West North avenue police.

Robert J. Whitman, 41 years old, 6450 North Troy street, assistant to the traffic manager of the Pacific Fruit Express company, 58 East Washington street, died yesterday in a Twin Falls, Ida., hospital of injuries incurred Wednesday when the automobile he was driving struck a cow on the highway near the town.

LILY PONS PUTS UP CASH AND GETS BACK HER SEIZED BAGGAGE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 10.—After a day of furious bickering, during which charges and counter charges flew freely, Lily Pons, opera singer, tonight secured the release of her baggage in time to sail for Rio de Janeiro aboard the liner Caparcona, on which her fiance, Dr. Fritz von der Becke, is the ship's doctor. Miss Pons' baggage was seized by the government last night on the grounds that she had not paid her income tax since 1932.

The government's action caused a storm the likes of which has seldom been seen here. The furious Miss Pons refused to sing at a farewell concert in the opera house on the grounds that she was "ill and upset." The concert was abandoned and the audience's money returned. The storm assumed the proportions of a tornado when the opera house administraion sent doctors to diagnose Miss Pons' illness with a view to legal proceedings. She charged that the administration had not protected her interests by deducting the tax from her salary.

CONSTABLE SHOT AS HE TRIES TO SERVE WARANTS

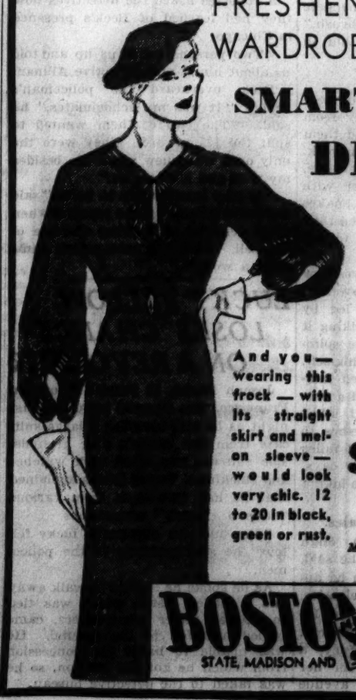

John Griffin, 22 years old, 104 North 46th avenue, Bellwood, a constable, was shot and possibly fatally wounded early today by four men who kidnaped him at 23d avenue and Main street in Melrose Park.

The Melrose Park police, informed there had been a shooting at the corner, went there. They found bloodstains on the sidewalk and were informed that two cars, into one of which the wounded man had been dragged, had driven away to the south.

A half hour later Griffin with a bullet wound in the abdomen and three other wounds on the arms and legs drove up to a fire station at 53d avenue and 25th street, Cicero, calling for help. He was taken to Frances Willard hospital.

There, before being placed on the operating table, he stated that he had been seized by men whom he had tried to serve with warants issued in the court of Justice of the Peace James McBride of Bellwood. These men, four in number, took him to a lonely spot on the drainage canal and left him in his car, believing he was dead, he said.

TEACHERS CHEER MAYOR KELLY AT PAY CELEBRATION

8,000 at the Fair Applaud Loan Success.

Nearly 8,000 Chicago school teachers poured into A Century of Progress yesterday to celebrate the successful negotiation of a federal loan to the board of education which will bring them $23,500,000 in checks for back pay within the next three weeks.

They gave an ovation to Mayor Kelly, who devised and sponsored the loan project, at a jubilee program in the Fair's Lagoon Theater. They cheered the mayor's announcements that there will be cash pay days for school employes in the future, and that there will be no salary cuts for teachers in the coming school term.

The celebration, staged for the school workers by the Fair management, brought city and school officials and heads of teacher organizations together in a pledge of future cooperation in all school problems.

Mayor Praises Teachers.

Mayor Kelly, whose address to the teachers was frequently interrupted by cheers and applause, paid tribute to the loyalty of a school staf which continued to work faithfully, he said, even when the board of education could not meet its pay rolls. He outlined the fight for the Reconstruction Finance corporation loan that now assures payment of seven months' back salaries to the teachers.

"We are here today not to celebrate any personal gains in the prospect of pay for the teachers, but to mark the fact that the children of Chicago and their educational opportunity have been protected," Mayor Kelly said.

"We are not here to distribute honors to those who have fought for a government loan as a solution of the Chicago school problem. That is in the past. We, who have the interest of the children in our hearts, must turn to a new program of upbuilding the school morale and creating greater educational opportunity in this city. To this end I ask the full codperation of all teachers and in turn pledge my codperation to you.

No Pay Cuts, He Says.

"You have been hearing rumors of possible changes and revisions in the board of education salary program for the fall. Let me tell you not to believe them. There will be no salary cuts and you will get your pay days regularly and in cash."

The teachers greeted this announcement with prolonged cheers.

Mayor Kelly then turned to a description of the campaign for the RFC loan, which was granted by Jesse Jones, chairman of the RFC, last Monday.

"For months before the present loan plan was devised many persons brought in schemes for solving the board of education problem," the mayor said. They all knew that we ought to borrow money and that we might borrow it from the government, but they didn't know how we would do it.

Describes His Loan Plan.

"Last winter, with the aid of friends, I devised a plan to mortgage school property not used for educational purposes as security for a loan. When we took this plan to Springfield and asked the authority of the state legislature to issue $40,000,000 in bonds to be sold to the federal government, certain newspapers pooh-poohed the plan and loosed a vicious editorial attack on it.

"One newspaper gave this plan support. That newspaper was THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. It gave consistent, intelligent, effective support at a time it was most needed. To that campaign you owe your prospect of full pay.

"I do not wish to minimize the support later given by other newspapers. It all helped. I'm appreciative, too, of the fact that you teachers through your organizations, helped also.

"Eventually Springfield approved the loan proposal and we turned to a fight in Washington. There we received the approval of the President, and we had the valuable aid of Congressman A. J. Sabath, Senator Lewis, and the other representatives in congress. Together we carried the loan program through."

Enjoy Day at Fair.

The teachers' jubilee was announced by World's Fair officials on Monday. Tickets were distributed to the teachers with their June pay checks early in the week.

Yesterday, before and after the Lagoon Theater meeting the teachers enjoyed visits to the Hall of Science, the Travel and Transport building, and the Hall of States, turning eventually to the more frivolous concessions and villages. One concession, the English Village, admitted teachers free.

While the teachers celebrated, city and school officials awaited the return from Washington of James B. McCahey, president of the board of education, who is bringing copies of the loan agreement approved by the RFC. The agreement will be presented to the city council and the board of education Monday. Ten days will be required for the council approval, expected Monday, to become law, and the way will then be clear for the transfer of RFC loan funds to Chicago and the issuance of pay checks.

Doctors Retrieve Penny Swallowed by Baby Girl

Carol Jean Harrison, 2 years old, returned to her home yesterday with a bright, new penny which slipped down her throat Thursday. Her father, David Harrison, had taken her to the John B. Murphy hospital, where doctors retrieved the coin. Carol Jean lives at 2142 North 24th avenue, Elmwood Park.

Youth Stabbed to Death; Former School Pal Held

Victor Hernandez, 18 years old, 1035 Blue Island avenue, last night was being held by the Maxwell street police for the murder of Frank Taglione, 18 years old, 1039 Blue Island avenue, his neighbor and his former school chum at Goodrich Grammar school. Hernandez admitted, police said, having stabbed Taglione in a quarrel at 13th street and Blue Island avenue.

MOVIE COMPANY PAYS PRINCESS HUGE DAMAGES

Settles Rasputin Libel Suit.

LONDON, Aug. 10.—(AP)—A settlement, which was said on good authority to involve a sum which would make $127,000 "look sick," was announced tonight in the libel suit of Princess Irina Alexandrovna Youssoupoff against Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Pictures, Ltd.

Miss Fannie Holtzmann, chief American counsel for the princess, announced the settlement with the statement that it closes forever the litigation against the motion picture producers in all countries. She declined to give the total figure of the settlement, but a source close to her said the amount was the largest ever paid in a libel case.

[A New York Times dispatch from London said the sum was understood to be about $750,000.]

Basis for Suit.

The case was based on the allegation of Princess Youssoupoff that the character Natasha in the film "Rasputin and the Empress" represented her as an adultress. The producers' defense was that the character was fictitious and not a representation of the princess.

Miss Holtzmann revealed that she has just completed a flying tour of every country in Europe where the film was shown with the result that the case was quickly brought to a conclusion.

She announced that there will be no further appeals of the British case and that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer will pay the £25,000 (currently $127,375) awarded the princess by the jury.

Miss Holtzmann acknowledged that a party given last night in her flat and continuing until breakfast this morning was a "victory celebration." Guests at the party had remarked about the friendly spirit shown between officials of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and the Youssoupoff "crowd."

A "Wow" of a Party.

One of the guests remarked: "Fannie put on one of the best parties Mayfair has seen for some time. It was a cross-section of a royal garden party, a Chelsea artist gathering and a West End first night."

An idea of what this guest meant can be obtained from the fact that the list of those present included the duchess of Rutland, former Mayor James Walker of New York and Mrs. Walker, Baron Bucozich, Douglas Fairbanks Jr., Count and Countess Kleinmichael, relatives of the former czar, Gertrude Lawrence, British actress; James Dunn, artist, and Gene Denis, American psychic.

DISCLOSE DALL ACTION FOR LIBEL AGAINST TIME

New York, Aug. 10.—[Special.]—A suit for libel by Curtis B. Dall, ex-son-in-law of President Roosevelt, against the magazine Time was disclosed in the Supreme court today when Cravath, De Gersdorff, Swaine & Wood, counsel for the magazine, applied to dismiss the complaint on the ground that no cause of action is stated. The complaint has not been filed.

The suit was based on an article published in April, it was said at the office of Caruthers Ewing, counsel for Mr. Dall, but no information was obtainable as to the details of the action and the sum sued for. The case will be heard on Aug. 26.

3,000 Here Complete Summer School Work

School ended yesterday for some 3,000 persons attending summer classes at eight high schools, seven elementary schools, and the Chicago Normal college. The summer sessions, supported by tuition fees, were for the benefit of those who failed in their regular work or who planned to skip a semester, except at the Normal college, where teachers were given additional training. The schools will remain closed until the fall term opens on Sept. 17.

Bonfire Ignites Clothing; Boy, 3, Dies of Injuries

Patrick Millary, 3 years old, 639 West 46th place, died yesterday in the county hospital of burns incurred when a bonfire ignited his clothing. Margaret Millary, 14 years old, his sister, is in the Mercy hospital having skin grafted on to burns she received in a similar accident two years ago.

PILOT LANDS CRIPPLED PLANE SAFELY AS AMBULANCE WAITS

Oklahoma City, Okla., Aug. 10.—(AP)—Malvin Sellmyer, weather bureau pilot, after warning Curtiss Wright airport officials by radio late today that he was coming in with a damaged landing gear and probably would crash, landed safely with two companions.

The plane, which Sellmyer had "ferried" from Tulsa for the Braniff lines, was badly damaged. Firemen, ambulances and airport attendants were waiting tensely when the speedy plane circled the field, swooped down and ground looped.

The passengers were Lester Brauer, young son of George Brauer, airport mechanic, and Luther B. Gray, a pilot.

CHIEF OF POLICE FREED IN KILLING, THEN ARRESTED

Police Chief Winchell Hills of South Chicago Heights was exonerated in the fatal shooting of Otto Emery, 42 years old, a Chicago Heights constable, by a coroner's jury yesterday, but he was arrested on a charge of manslaughter as he stepped from the inquest chamber.

A warrant charging manslaughter was obtained by Emery's widow, Mrs. Caroline Emery, and was served by policemen from the Homewood station of the county highway police. Chief Hills was released on bonds of $8,000.

Emery was slain in South Chicago Heights on July 28 by Chief Hills after he had shot and killed William Piner, 41 years old, a South Chicago Heights constable, after a quarrel over the arrest of a fan dancer by Emery.

The coroner's jury found that Emery had murdered Piner and then had been justifiably slain by Chief Hills.

WORKER CAUGHT BY WHEEL, HANGS HOUR IN HOT SUN

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 10.—(AP)—A workman accidentally caught in the wheels of an elevator shaft on top of the Astor hotel, hung there an hour under today's blazing sun before police and firemen could rescue him. One of the rescuing party was overcome by the heat.

C. W. Fullerton, 54, went to the hotel to make repairs. As he worked some one set the elevator in motion and it moved just enough to catch the worker by the right arm between the wheel and the cable. His screams of pain attracted occupants of the hotel.

MYSTERY PHONE CALLS PUZZLE POLICE, WOMAN

New Bedford, Mass., Aug. 10.—(AP)—A deluge of mysterious telephone calls, unrequested visits by undertakers, doctors and tradesmen and finally the arrival of fire engines and a police ambulance have baffled police and Mrs. Anna Davis.

A mysterious feminine voice has been responsible for the calls.

Mrs. Davis, who awoke this morning to find ten quarts of milk on her back porch, ordered by the mysterious voice, has finally been forced to adopt a code to let tradesmen know she is calling with a legitimate order.

Last week four undertakers came to the house to prepare her 28 year old son's body for burial.

Doctors came to the house at all hours in response to emergency calls.

Efforts to trace the calls, 20 to 30 of which have been received each day, have failed. They were made from public booths throughout the city.

Mrs. Davis was reported near hysteria as a result of the constant tension and worry.

FIND BODY IN TREE.

The body of an unidentified man about 45 years old and with an artificial left arm was found hanging from a tree in the forest preserve at 47th avenue and the Des Plaines river, Lyons township, yesterday.

HITLER DECREES ARMY MUST CALL HIM "MY LEADER"

Symbolizes His Position as Supreme Ruler.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 10.—"Mein Fuehrer" [My Leader] is the mode of address which all German soldiers must henceforth use to Adolf Hitler instead of merely "Der Fuehrer" [the leader]. This was decreed today in an order issued to the troops by Gen. Werner von Blomberg, minister for war, upon the order of the chancellor. It symbolizes Hitler's supreme command of the army, and the troops' allegiance to him.

Baron Franz von Papen's successor as commissioner for the Saar, a post he vacated to become German minister to Vienna, is Joseph Buerkel, whose appointment was announced in Munich. Buerkel is the Nazi chief of the Palatinate. He is a radical Nazi and a Protestant. The Saar is 69 per cent Catholic.

Farmers Balk at Grain Seizure.

BERLIN, Aug. 10.—(AP)—A definite shortage of feed grains in Germany was reported today by foreign agricultural observers returning here from a tour of the provinces.

This shortage and the consequent fear that farmers would use bread grains to feed live stock, in the opinion of these observers, prompted the new system of compulsory delivery of cereals introduced by the Nazi government.

The compulsory delivery is closely patterned after the Russian methods, requiring farmers to deliver by specified dates at the beginning of the new crop year fixed per centages of the cereals delivered in the old crop year.

Rumors already are current here, however, that the farmers are beginning to balk at this coercion, delivering only cheaper qualities of bread grains for the time being.

Oppose Fixed Price System.

Since German farmers are accustomed to feed a certain amount of rye to live stock, they can make ready use of bread grains, it was pointed out, to the detriment of the human food supply.

Farmers were reported to be dissatisfied with the system of fixed prices, which fail to compensate for losses through prevailing crop shortages.

They are being deprived, it was pointed out, of the natural gain in price levels through increased demand. The recent advance in prices, amounting to 6 marks on the ton for rye and 10 for wheat, was regarded as inadequate.

Agricultural observers are convinced that the recent rains definitly dissipated fears of a bad food shortage in Germany during the coming winter. Whatever rationing occurs, they believe, will be in special imported articles, including fresh vegetables.

The supplies of bread, potatoes and fresh meat are expected to be sufficient for all needs.

The German fruit crop is reported to have been the best in years as weather conditions in the southern part of the country have been restored to normal.

In feed grains, such as barley and oats, however, real agricultural trouble may develop.

The first cutting of hay was reported as 11,690,000 tons, just half the average for the last ten years.

The wheat yield, on the other hand, now is placed at 4,330,000 tons, slightly over the estimate made last month, and rye also is expected to surpass earlier estimates.

ALLEGED NAZI MAP SHOWS BIG GERMAN EXPANSION IN 1935

ROME, Aug. 10.—(AP)—A map showing a "Greater Germany" in 1935—a Germany including all of Holland and most of Belgium, Switzerland, Czechoslovakia, Austria and Lithuania—was given wide publication throughout Italy today.

The newspaper Messagero says the map was circulated freely in Jugoslavia at the time of the recent Nazi uprising in Austria, alleging that it formed part of the Nazi propaganda in that country.

The map depicts Alsace Lorraine, a great part of Poland and a generous slice of Italy, including Trento and Trieste, as part of "New Germany" stretching from the Baltic sea to the Adriatic. Amsterdam, Brussels, Berne and Vienna would be among the cities to become German property.

Messagero pointed out as a significant fact that the map shows Jugoslavia spreading out to absorb Fiume and some other Italian territory as well as a considerable slice of Austria. The newspaper charged that this propaganda bore fruit in the "assistances Jugo-Slavia gave the Nazis in Austria, her cordial reception of Nazi fugitives, and the mobilization of Jugo-Slavian armed forces at the border of Carinthia to counter-balance Italy's action."

MRS. OWEN EATS SEAL MEAT AT ESKIMO BANQUET

FREDERIKSHAAB, Greenland, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, American minister to Denmark, ate caribou and seal meat with Eskimos today at a banquet.

It was the first time a foreign envoy had visited Frederikshab, an important center for cod fishing. The Eskimo council presented Mrs. Owen with a proclamation of welcome:

"We hope, ambassador, when you return to America you will give your countrymen an insight into the progress of our land and people, so that honor will go to Denmark, as it is deserved."

Vice Chancellor of Austria Warns New Nazi Revolt Near

BY HAROLD ETTLINGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Aug. 10.—The probability of another Nazi putsch this year was frankly admitted today by Prince Ernst Rudiger von Starhemberg, vice chancellor and leader of the heimwehr, the Austrian private Fascist army.

Speaking to the foreign press, Von Starhemberg predicted that the leaders of the unsuccessful attempt to overthrow the Austrian government, in which Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss was slain, will find ways of explaining the failure to their followers and rally them for another attempt.

Von Starhemberg, in his second open attack on the German Nazis within a week, warned Austrian Nazi terrorists that there would be no mercy shown in the fight against them.

Plans to Unify Fighting Forces.

"It is difficult for us to combat terrorists," he said, "because their leaders are outside our country and they have money and the backing of a nation of 66 million people."

But the militia is ready at any time to fight another open revolt, he said, and is prepared to fight not only for Austria but for world peace.

Von Starhemberg revealed that Austria's fighting forces would soon be considerably strengthened by unification under one command of the heimwehr, the Catholic Sturmscharen, and other private armies now working together more or less loosely. In this connection he admitted that putting down the last putsch would have been easier if Austria had had a better fighting force, but that this was denied it by its own financial condition as well as the treaty of St. Germain.

The government loses in the July 25 putsch Von Starhemberg gave as 91 men, including 61 members of the private armies—30 heimwehr men and 11 others.

Says People Back Government.

Discussing the internal situation, the vice chancellor said the government was in complete control, backed by a majority of the population and confident of the armed forces.

"I myself was surprised to learn how little backing the Nazis found when they tried the putsch," he said. "The events of June 30 [when Chancellor Adolf Hitler "purged" the German Nazi party] caused many symphathizers in Austria to turn their backs on the Nazi regime."

Von Starhemberg spiked rumors that a Hapsburg restoration was being considered. There is no question of such an event for the present, he said. Restoration of the Hapsburgs is not a matter which Austria could decide alone in any case, since all the succession states are directly interested as well.

HOHENZOLLERN PRINCE DEFIES GERMAN COURT ORDER AND VANISHES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 10.—"Missing—a Hohenzollern prince," was the main headline in the Berlin press today. Prince Friedrich Leopold of Prussia was sought in vain by the foreign office, the police, and others.

Friedrich Leopold's mother was a sister of the late kaiserin. His father, who died a couple of years ago, was the notorious "Red Prince," so-called because he hoisted a red flag over his Glienicke castle at Potsdam when the kaiser fled to Holland.

The Potsdam court recently granted an affiliation order against Hermann Moeller, the prince's chauffeur. It ordered the prince to pay part of the chauffeur's wages to the mother and child. The order was disobeyed and the court commanded the prince and the chauffeur to appear before it on Sept. 18. The prince and his chauffeur have disappeared, and this command is now publicly displayed at the Potsdam courthouse.

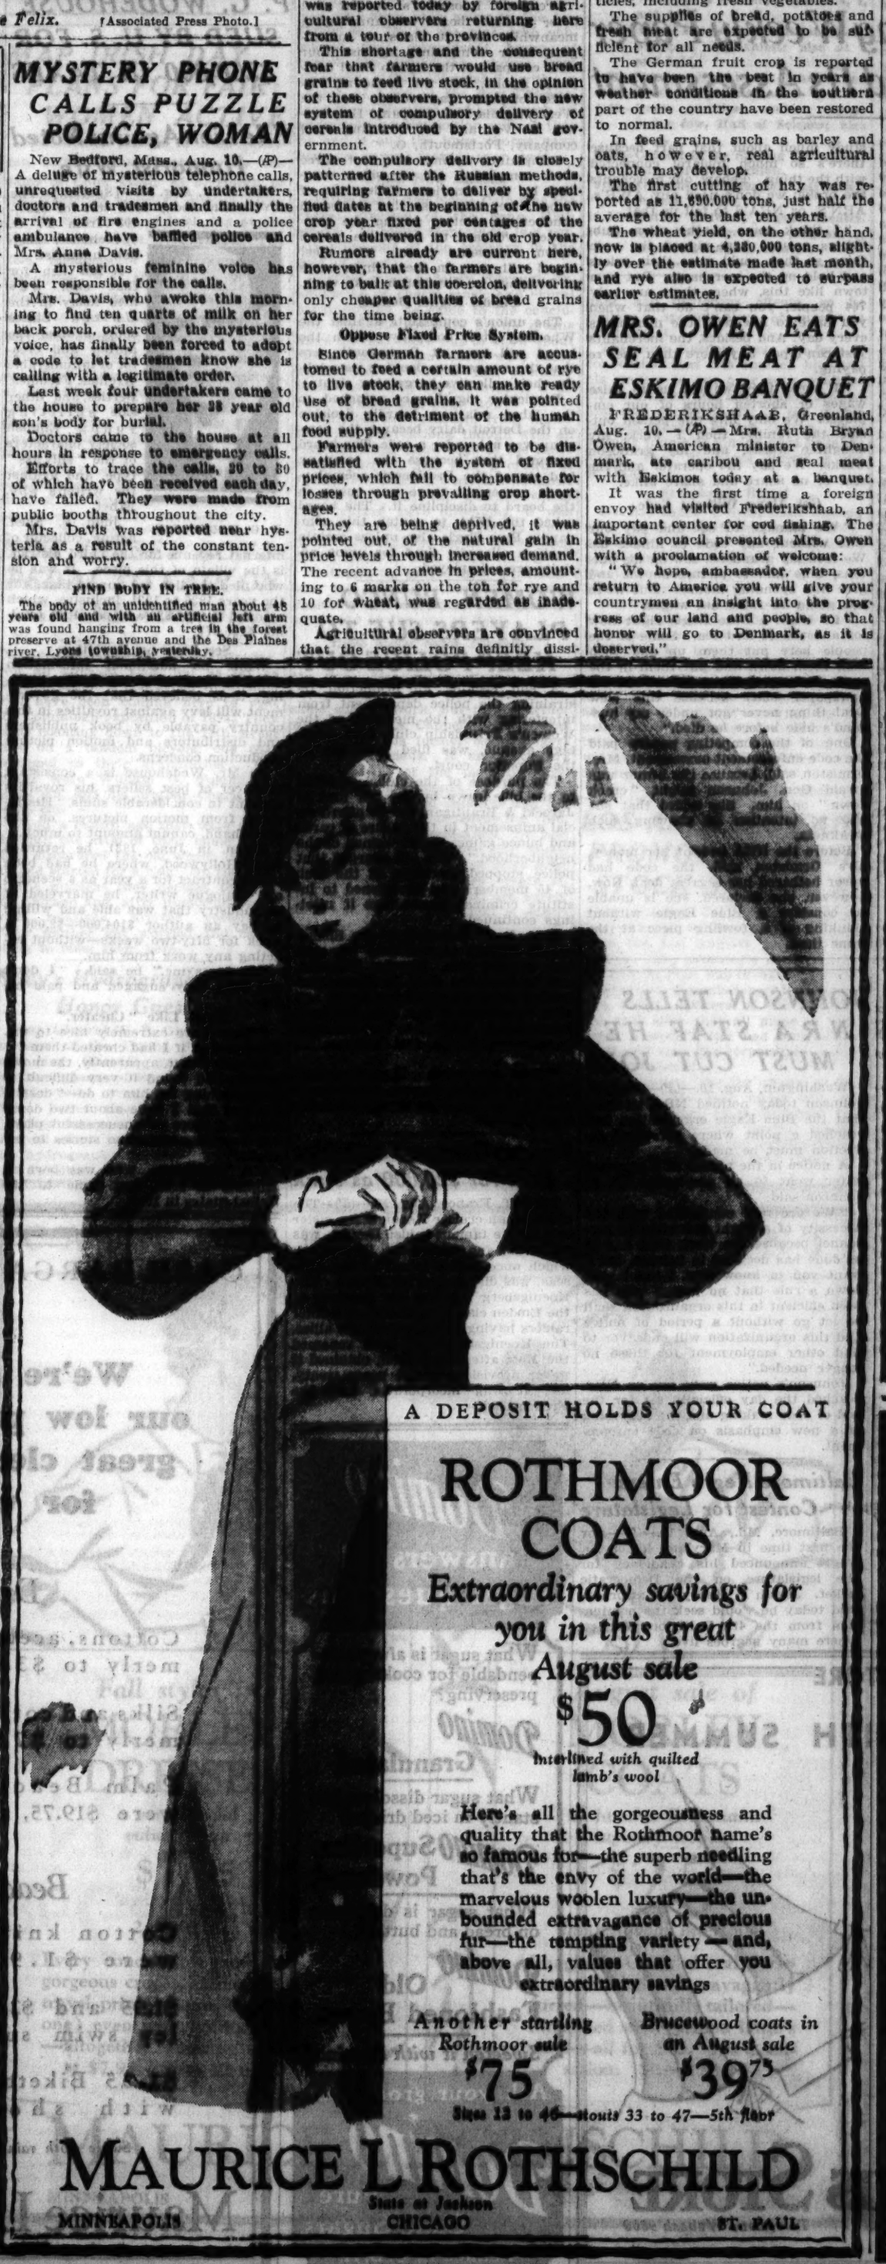

WHOOPING COUGH IS NEW MENACE TO QUINTUPLETS

CALLANDER, Ont., Aug. 10.—(AP)—Whooping cough in the neighborhood of the Dionne farm gave concern today to the parents and guardians of the famous 14 day old quintuplets.

The epidemic is of a mild type, said Dr. A. R. Dafoe today, and there is no present indication that it will affect the five children or other members of the Dionne household. The nearest case is half a mile from the Dionne home.

Should the disease make its appearance on the Dionne farm, said the physician, the whole family except the quintuplets and those necessary for their care will be moved out.

"We have taken all precautions against any of the larger Dionne children contracting the disease," Dr. Dafoe said. "They are not allowed off the farm and cannot play with other children. No other children can come to the Dionne farm. This has been a rule for some time. The older children do not come in contact with the babies, and for that matter seldom do the parents."

NRA MAY ABOLISH ALL COMPETITION ON CHARITY COAL

Radical Changes Planned in Buying Program.

New and radically different specifications for the purchase of three million tons of Illinois coal for use of indigent persons on the state aid rolls next winter were drawn yesterday by officials of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission. The new specifications, however, have not yet received the formal sanction of the commission members.

In effect the regulations will abolish open competition among both the mine operators and the retail merchants. The commission will regulate the production of coal by the mine owners and also will allocate the amounts which can be sold by the retailers. In each case fixed prices for the coal are to be charged.

Agreement between NRA coal code authorities from each code area in the state already has been given to requirements of the new specifications.

120 "Registered Merchants."

The producers will be allowed to mine coal for relief commission use on the same ratio as that shown in their production during the first three months of this year.

This coal then is to be shipped to 120 "registered" merchants in the Chicago area. These merchants are to be located six to a district in each of the 25 divisions of territory within Chicago as made by the relief officials for administration purposes. Each merchant in any one district is to deal in a different type of coal, and the amount he will receive for distribution to relief clients is to be allocated to him by the relief commission.

Under this plan relief "clients" will be given coal tickets and allowed to purchase their coal from any of the approved dealers they choose. When any one dealer has disposed of all his coal allocation, however, he will be unable to replenish his supply.

Gets 10 Per Cent Reduction.

According to the new specifications the commission is to be allowed a 10 per cent reduction from the standard code price for coal, as is any municipality. Freight rates for the charity coal are to be reduced by 20 per cent. Railroad operators and both mine operators and coal merchants have agreed to these requirements, it was said.

The specifications were discussed by members of the relief commission during their regular weekly meeting at 1319 South Michigan avenue yesterday afternoon. Most of the members favored the new plan, but no vote has been taken.

During the afternoon the commissioners also discussed plans for a new dental service, as submitted by the Chicago Dental society. The new plan which has been under consideration for three months was neither approved nor disapproved, and the commission members agreed to defer action upon it another week.

HOLDUP VICTIMS IDENTIFY YOUTH KILLED IN LEAP

CRIMINAL COURT.

John Russo, burglary, sentenced to 1 year to life in the penitentiary; Robert Maxwell, robbery, sentenced to 1 year to life in the penitentiary; James Falten, manslaughter, sentenced to 1 to 14 years in the penitentiary; Sam Petigrew and Arthur Schlesinger, burglary, sentenced to 1 year to life each in the penitentiary by Judge Benjamin P. Epstein.

The body of Edwin Hyland, 19 years old, who became wayward despite the care of a physician who had sheltered him for five years, was identified as that of a robber in the county morgue yesterday by victims of recent holdups. The youth was killed Thursday as he sought to escape from policemen by leaping from a window of his second floor room at 4824 Kenmore avenue.

Hyland was identified by Miss Pauline Sence, cashier of the Lincoln Square restaurant, 4670 Lincoln avenue, as the man who robbed her of $140 on two occasions a month ago. A second identification was made by Miss Eva Merquar, cashier of the Edgewater apartment hotel, 5726 Winthrop avenue, from whom he took $5. Several other victims of robberies also identified the body.

The youth's benefactor, Dr. Gordon C. Burdick, 1600 Sherwin avenue, told police that he and his wife had cared for Hyland since his father committed suicide five years ago. He said he had to turn the boy out two weeks ago because of his waywardness.

Bride Sees Army Flyer Crash to Death in Plane

Shreveport, La., Aug. 10.—(AP)—Before the eyes of his bride of two months and her aunt, Second Lieutenant Herbert Gibner Jr. of the 79th Pursuit squadron at Barksdale field, crashed to his death last night with his falling airplane in a field near the reservation. Lieut. Gibner was on a night training flight when his plane, witnesses said, went into a dive from an altitude of about 1,500 feet. His wife, the former Virginia Kroll, Omaha, Neb., and her aunt, Mrs. T. Garibaldi, were on the field watching the plane.

Board Orders Detroit Company to Rehire Six

Washington, D. C., Aug. 10.—(AP)—The labor relations board today ordered Ira Wilson & Sons Co. of Detroit to reinstate six workers allegedly discharged for union activity. Unless the company complies within seven days, the board said, it would be cited to the NRA compliance division for Blue Eagle removal.

Widow Running Weekly Paper Defies NRA and Its Assessment

Linneus, Mo., Aug. 10.—[Special.]—Mrs. D. B. Ormiston, publisher of the Weekly Linn County News, today offered to trade a slightly used Blue Eagle for a bottle of iced tea. At the same time she announced her defiance of the National Code authority for the Graphic Arts code A2 and A5 in the attempt of that body to collect $5.25.

Never chummy with the Hugh Johnson bird, Mrs. Ormiston recently has come to consider it in the same light that the ancient mariner must have looked upon the albatross. Mrs. Ormiston, whose husband died July 14, has taken over the newspaper in an attempt to make a living for herself, her daughter, Mrs. Homan, and a grandson, Todd Homan.

Assessed for Code Authority.

A definite break with the NRA was brought about by a recent communication demanding $5.25 for the National Code authority. The money was to be used, the letter said, for expenses incurred in code enforcement. She had never "bothered much" with the code regulations, Mrs. Ormiston said, because observation of them so apparently would have put h out of business.

"But I don't intend to pay that $5.25," Mrs. Ormiston said today. "This is a family affair and we don't need any help from Mr. Johnson to run it.

"I never said I'd observe the code. The only time I had anything to do with it was in July while my husband was sick. I went to a code meeting then, but I didn't promise to do anything about it.

"They wanted us to raise our job printing prices from $4 to $8.50 a thousand for letter heads. We couldn't ever collect that while we're running so close to the shore so we didn't raise our prices.

Refuses to Raise Rates.

"I guess they wanted us to raise our advertising prices, too. I didn't study much about that part because there's so much foldarol connected with the thing. Pshaw, our merchants are broke; we don't need any AWR's, ARN'S, or NRA'S to tell us that.

"I think some of the other publishers around here signed the code thing so they could raise their prices and hold up the merchants. But in a town like this, where there are only 764 people, you can't do that when you have to live with the merchants every day. And besides, the merchants just can't pay any more than they're paying.

"I guess they wanted us to raise wages or shorten hours of our employés. We only hire one person outside the family; then I work, my daughter works, and my grandson works. We pay the operator and the rest of us share and share alike.

Get Along Without Code.

"We manage to eat and pay our bills without any code to hinder us. We feed my grandson, sew on his buttons, take him to picture shows, and give him spending money. But we're not going to raise his wages.

"I'd trade a Blue Eagle right now for a bottle of iced tea. Some of the people here put them up and then took them down and put them in the shed. We never really had one in the newspaper office because this New Deal thing never got under my husband's hide before he died."

One of the competing papers paid the code enforcement assessment, Mrs. Ormiston said, because the owner was afraid Gen. Johnson might "crack down" on him. She added that she had no intention of showing such weakness.

Before the NRA sought her money, Mrs. Ormiston said, the code had never bothered her a great deal. Now, however, she declared, she is unable to consider a Blue Eagle without thinking of a fowling piece at the same time.

SEIZED AS NELSON, PRINTS SHOW HE'S NOT "BABY FACE"

Oconto, Wis., Aug. 10.—[Special.]—Sheriff Adolph Deuscher of Oconto county today arrested a man, suspected of being George [Baby Face] Nelson, and a woman companion who, while stopping in an Oconto Falls hotel, attempted to purchase narcotics.

Although the sheriff during the evening announced a belief the prisoner was not Nelson, who is regarded since the death of John Dillinger as the most dangerous American criminal at large, he decided to wait until finger prints had been read by Sergt. Otto Cronce of Green Bay before discarding the theory entirely. Cronce declared shortly before midnight the man positively was not Nelson.

The suspect declared he was Ray Dobb of Alpha, Ill., and that the woman's name was Frances Crawford. In baggage they had with them were letters indicating that the man is Frank Myers of Chicago and that he had been paroled from the Illinois penitentiary at Stateville. The couple arrived in Oconto Falls several days ago in an automobile with a Minnesota license. Dobb, or Myers, bears a slight general resemblance to the much sought Nelson.

ROBS SALOONKEEPER OF $255.

JOHNSON TELLS NRA STAF HE MUST CUT JOBS

Washington, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Hugh S. Johnson today notified NRA workers that the Blue Eagle organization had reached a point where personnel reduction must be made.

A notice in the nature of a personal letter went to all employés. In it, Johnson said:

"We are now confronted with the necessity of a slight reduction in personnel because the work that has to be done has declined in volume, but I want you to know that I am laying down a rule that no person who has been efficient in this organization shall be let go without a period of notice and this organization will endeavor to find other employment for those no longer needed."

Johnson's notice went out as NRA reached the day officially set for the end of code making and the beginning of a new emphasis on code enforcement.

EMPLOYERS IN 3 INDUSTRIES HIT BY NRA BOARDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 10.—[Special.]—The New Dealers today attempted to "crack down" on employers along a wide front, punishing them for dealings with their workers.

The national labor relations board, New Deal labor tribunal, decided that the Ira Wilson & Sons Dairy company of Detroit had broken section 7A of the NRA, even though the company was not operating under any code. The company had signed the President's reëmployment agreement.

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, chief of the NRA, sought to solve a dispute of long standing with the Hatch Hosiery company, Belmont, N. C., when he today snatched the company's Blue Eagle on the recommendation of the labor relations board. This action was one of the first taken by Johnson upon the order of the new labor tribunal.

Plan Steel Quiz.

President Roosevelt's special steel labor relations board was announcing meanwhile that it plans to investigate labor complaints against four steel companies, the Apollo Steel company, Apollo, Pa.; the Standard Tinplate company, Canonsburg, Pa.; the West Virginia Rail company, Huntington, W. Va.; and the Wheeling Steel company, Portsmouth, O.

Complaints against the first three steel companies, all of which were filed by the American Federation of Labor Steel union, ask that the board conduct an election among the companies' workers to determine which union represents them. The steel board will pass on these three cases at hearings in Pittsburgh next week.

Claims Rights Denied.

The union's complaints against the Wheeling Steel company, which the board will hear at Portsmouth, are that the company is denying its workers their collective bargaining rights.

Particular significance attached to the labor relations board's decision on the Detroit dairy because the company was not under a code. The board assumed that because the company had signed the President's reëmployment agreement there was power in the board to discipline it. The board asked the NRA to snatch this company's Blue Eagle also unless certain workers allegedly fired for union activity are reëmployed.

WOMEN BUNCO PLAYERS SUE TO KEEP POLICE OUT

A suit seeking an injunction restraining the police department from interfering with the meetings of the Women's Friendship club, 1906 Armitage avenue, was filed yesterday in the Superior court.

The purpose of the club, according to the bill drawn by the law firm of Jarecki & Brautigan, is "to afford social amusement in the nature of cards and bunco games to the women of the neighborhood." The bill charged that police stopped meetings of the club of 45 members and threatened to institute criminal proceedings if meetings continued.

Capt. Peter Tomchek of the Shakespeare avenue station said his men had notified Mrs. Martha Zielinski, said to head the club, to discontinue holding meetings about ten weeks ago after complaints of gambling had been investigated. The place has not been in operation for the last two months, he said.

"They were renting it out to everybody and having buncos every day," he said, "not just the three club meetings a week."

Famous German Sea Raider Sold for $20,000 as Junk

BREST, France, Aug. 10.—(AP)—The old German cruiser Koenigsberg, sister ship of the famous raider Emden, was sold today for scrap iron. The vessel, which once was a terror of the high seas, was disposed of for $20,000. The Koenigsberg was the last survivor of the Emden class, the Emden and other raiders having been sunk by the allies. The Koenigsberg had been renamed the Metz after the French obtained it under provisions of the peace treaty, and it was incorporated into the French fleet.

TAX UNIT VETERANS FACE CIVIL SERVICE TESTS; SEE POLITICS

Members of the Chicago alcoholic tax unit of the bureau of internal revenue, many of them veterans of ten years or more in the federal civil service, were considering yesterday an order that they must all take new civil service examinations if they are to remain in the government service. A number of them charged, privately, that the order is another attempt by New Deal politicians to oust Republican officeholders to make way for Democrats.

The alcoholic tax unit is a survivor of the old prohibition enforcement machine. Its employés were under civil service in the treasury department from 1919 until 1930. In the latter year, under a governmental reorganization of prohibition enforcement, the bureau was transferred to the department of justice. After repeal it went back to the treasury department.

Before congress adjourned Senator Kenneth McKellar [Dem., Tenn.], an ardent New Dealer, tacked on to the deficiency appropriation bill a rider providing that the tax unit get no funds unless all of its agents pass new civil service examinations before Oct. 1.

The jobs pay $2,600 and $2,900 a year. Some of the older employés now in the unit will be barred automatically from taking the examinations, for which an age limit of 50 years is set.

P. G. WODEHOUSE SUED BY U. S. FOR $250,000 IN TAXES

File Lien Against Noted Humorist, Wife.

P. G. WODEHOUSE.

A tax lien for that sum was filed today in the United States court against the author and creator of innumerable Archies, Freddies, Berties, and other side splitting young English society characters of the "silly ass" type, and against the writer's wife, Ethel.

John S. Shea, acting collector of internal revenue for the Third district, is the villain of this piece. It was he who filed the lien for unpaid taxes for the years 1925 to 1931, inclusive, which amount to $123,826 and penalties totaling $126,877.

See Levy on Royalties.

While no additional information could be obtained at the federal building, it is believed that the government will levy against royalties in this country payable by book publishers and distributors and motion picture production concerns.

As Mr. Wodehouse is a consistent producer of best sellers, his royalties amount to considerable sums. His income from motion pictures, on the other hand, cannot amount to much.

When, in June, 1931, he returned from Hollywood, where he had been under contract for a year as a scenario and dialogue writer, he marveled at an industry that was able and willing to pay an author $104,000—$2,000 a week for fifty-two weeks—without exacting any work from him.

"It dazes me," he said. "I don't see what they engaged and paid me for.

Feels Like "Cheater."

"They were extremely nice to me. But I feel as if I had cheated them."

He added that, apparently, the movie moguls had found it very difficult to find anything for him to do—"despite the fact that I have about two dozen novels, a score of unsuccessful plays, and countless magazine stories to my credit."

Mr. Wodehouse, who was born in England in 1881, first came to the United States in 1909.

from the worried mother, he continued, which sent him scurrying at 3 a. m. to the West 44th street apartment of a prominent movie director. He declared he took Mary from the apartment and returned her to her mother in the Knickerbocker hotel at 4 a. m.

"Adolph Zukor, I and the defendant's mother held several conferences concerning the director situation," Hemmer related. "It was finally decided to be to the best interest of the defendant to have her produce her pictures in Hollywood, thereby eliminating the possibility of a continued relationship between the defendant and the director."

A Trick on Belasco.

Another incident set forth in the bill reflected Hemmer's own managerial genius in setting a stage that deceived the late David Belasco. In order to be released from a contract, Hemmer said, Miss Pickord, by the use of cosmetics and a darkened room in the Polyclinic hospital [where her mother was ill], convinced the great Belasco she was too ill to appear in his production.

The filing of the bill of particulars was the reply of Hemmer's attorneys to the demand of Judge William Bondy for more details. Hemmer claims Mary and her mother orally contracted to reward him for his services either in the mother's will or by direct payment from Mary. He claims he received neither.

HAL ROACH HAS APPENDIX OUT; PILOT'S MAY GO

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 10.—(AP)—Speaking of coincidences. . . . Hal Roach, film producer, started to board his private airplane for a flight to New York yesterday. At the field he was seized with cramps and was rushed to a hospital, where his appendix was immediately removed.

Today Roach's pilot, Don Marshall, was taken to the same hospital for observation to determine whether his appendix also should be removed.

All of Panama Quivers in Quake; Walls Cracked

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PANAMA CITY, Aug. 10.—Almost the entire Republic of Panama quivered this morning when an earthquake shook the isthmus. The lobby walls of the Panama canal's administration building at Balboa Heights were damaged and many buildings were cracked. The canal's locks were not damaged. The canal's chief of surveys said a moderately heavy seismic tremor was recorded from 9:27 a. m. to 9:30 a. m., with the center of the disturbance about 50 miles from Balboa Heights.

OPEN FARM WEEK AT FAIR TODAY; PARADE AT 10 A.M

Chicago Will Be Host to Nation's Tillers.

Chicago will be host to the farmers of the nation during Farm week, which opens today at the World's Fair. Officials expect the week to set a new high in attendance for 1934, as it did last year, when Farm week drew a total of 1,350,000 visitors, the largest weekly attendance of the year.

As a preliminary to the Farm week program, State and Madison streets, the "world's busiest corner," was the scene yesterday of an open air radio broadcast extending Chicago's invitation to attend the Fair to the agricultural regions of the country. Speakers included Mayor Kelly, President Rufus C. Dawes of the Fair, Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau federation, and Walter L. Gregory, president of the State Street council, which cooperated in arranging the broadcast.

Stresses City's Importance.

Mayor Kelly, in his short talk, stressed the interdependence of the people of Chicago and the farmers of surrounding states—the importance of Chicago as a market for foodstuffs and other farm products and the importance to the city of the farm market for its agricultural machinery and other industrial products.

"Chicago is built upon the farms of the middle west," declared Mr. Dawes in his talk. "Chicago is prosperous when the farmers are prosperous."

Mr. Dawes also made a definite statement that the Fair is not to be continued next year in its present form, but made no comment upon plans to continue it under a different form of organization.

"If you want to see Chicago's great Century of Progress exposition," he said, "you must do it this summer. It will not be here next year."

Police Efficiency Shown.

The jam of 15,000 people about the speaking stand, set on a Surface Lines flat car at the intersection of the two streets, afforded an opportunity during the program for a demonstration of efficiency on the part of the police detail for the occasion, commanded by Lieut. David Flynn of the trafic section. Two fire engines came screaming down State street to answer an alarm. Foot and mounted police coöperated quickly to open a path through the dense crowd, and the apparatus passed through the lane with speed scarcely diminished.

Farm Week will officially open at 10 a. m. today with a parade down Michigan avenue, from Ohio street to the Roosevelt road entrance of the Fair. Leading will be a color guard of World's Fair guides and police, the Guides' band from the Fair, and the Black Horse troop, its members clad in their new parade costumes of medieval armor.

The post of honor in the parade, however, will be held by floats, pulled by tractors, and loaded with prize stock of all varieties—cattle, horses, sheep, swine, goats, and poultry. All of the vehicles of the Wings of a Century transportation pageant, except the locomotives, will also be in line.

There will be about 100 floats in all, most of them bearing farm products or illustrating the activities of their sponsors, commercial exhibitors at the Fair in the agricultural field, and a dozen bands and drum and bugle corps.

That farmers from the drouth stricken areas may not be denied a chance to visit the Fair for lack of cash, Fair officials have arranged an elaborate schedule of barter for tickets with farm produce. A pint of chinch bugs, dead or alive, is good for two tickets. Two dozen eggs will purchase one admission, a bushel of lettuce, four, and so on throughout a long list of farm products. Live stock will be accepted, and will be appraised at the gates.

Monday is to be Farm Organization day. Speakers scheduled are Chester C. Davis, administrator of the agricultural adjustment administration, and Senator Elmer Thomas [Dem., Okla.], inflationist leader in the senate, who will speak on "Currency Control."

FAIR ATTENDANCE HOLDS TO RECORD SMASHING PACE

BY EARL MULLIN.

The day's attendance set a new 1934 record for a Friday when, at midnight, 87,417 had paid admission. This figure is more than 12,000 greater than the previous Friday high mark established July 27, when 74,683 were registered. The average Friday has seen an attendance of 51,000.

For the last six days the Chicago Week special programs have consistently attracted thousands of visitors, placing each day in the higher paid admission brackets.

Week May Set Record.

The seven day period ending at midnight tonight may be the highest attendance week of the year at the Fair. Up to midnight last night the current week's visitors totaled 589,805, thus making necessary an attendance of 105,099 today to equal the record of 694,904 set during the week of May 27-June 2. The attendance by weeks since May 27 is shown in the following table:

Week—	Attendance.
May 27 to June 2	694,904
June 3 to 9	334,118
June 10 to 16	429,005
June 17 to 23	524,346
June 24 to 30	491,522
July 1 to 7	681,031
July 8 to 14	603,048
July 15 to 21	623,224
July 22 to 28	555,894
July 29 to Aug. 4	657,069
Aug. 5 to 9 [five days]	502,388

Two Big Features Today.

With a multiplicity of free attractions offered today officials were hopeful of setting a new attendance confident of setting a new attendance record for this week. Two major features, each considered to be big drawing cards, are on today's program. They are British day and the opening day of Farm week.

"While it is impossible to predict what attendance will do, so many factors entering into it," said Maj. Lenox R. Lohr, general manager, "the fact that the current week is our biggest to date, and farm week, which opens today, will be another big week, is encouraging. Last year farm week was our biggest week, with almost a million and a half admissions. We are hopeful of bettering that this year. All indications are that we are just now entering into the big attendance period."

Helps City Business.

Not only is the rise in attendance of great interest to the Fair, but to Chicago business men, transportation men and hotels as well. An increase of business that augurs well for the rest of the summer was reported yesterday by loop hotels.

British day at the Fair today will be observed with Chicagoans of English, Scotch and Welsh extraction out in force for a series of programs. Lewis Bernays, British consul general in Chicago, will make the welcoming address at 4 p. m. in the Court of States, following a parade from the Court of Honor, starting at 3:30 p. m. A score of British-American societies in Chicago will take part in the program.

World's Fair Notes

LOUISE MARIE LARSON, 6 years old, 7815 Calumet avenue, yesterday walked off with first honors in the Fair baby bathing beauty contest. After talking to her, officials learned her father is an unemployed bricklayer and Baby Louise was going home and give him the $100 cash award. She is blond with long curls, blue eyes, and weighs 53 pounds.

Greetings from Mayor Frank Couzens of Detroit will be conveyed to Chicago and the Fair today when Miss Buelah Stephan, 21 years old, Dodge Motors company beauty queen, meets Rufus C. Dawes, president of the Exposition, at 11 a. m. Miss Stephan arrived in Chicago last night in company with 800 other employés of the Dodge Motor company for a two day all expense tour to the Fair. The party is staying at the Morrison hotel.

Hungarian day will be celebrated tomorrow at the Fair with a complete program of Hungarian music, dancing, and playlets in the Hall of States Theater between 4 and 6 p. m.

Miss Mildred Smith, winner of the Fair's dental charm contest, will leave tonight on the Exposition Flyer on the Michigan Central railroad for New York where she will fill a few weeks' engagement on a commercial program.

The nine sectional beauty queens from southern Illinois to be judged for the title of Miss Egypt will be guests of the John R. Thompson company today at the north Thompson restaurant at the Fair. After lunch they will pass in review before the judges. The winner will be interviewed by Quinn Ryan, W-G-N Fair reporter of the air, in his 6:45 broadcast. The beauties yesterday made a complete tour of the Fair as guests of exhibitors.

The first motion picture ever made for public showing of the Chicago Symphony orchestra is presented daily at the Hall of Photography. Movies of the Detroit Symphony also are being shown in that home movie theater.

Bachman's band, conducted by Harold Bachman, is an addition to the roster of musical organizations now active at the Fair, where it will be heard for the first time tonight at 7 p. m. in the open air theater in the Court of States.

MAP IRISH DAY PLANS FOR FAIR; WOMEN ACTIVE

Five women leaders in Irish-American activities met yesterday in the office of Chief Bailiff Al J. Horan of the Municipal court to discuss plans for the observance of Irish day at the World's Fair next Wednesday. The five, members of the arrangements committee, are Mrs. Mary F. McWhorter, president of the ladies' auxiliary of the Ancient Order of Hibernians; Miss Frances Martell, national secretary-treasurer for the American Association for Recognition of the Irish Republic; Mrs. Norine Conway, vice president of the Irish day committee; Mrs. Michael Flynn, vice president of the Irish Society for Music and Drama; and Mrs. Catherine McGinley Prominski, president of the same society. Mayor Kelly is chairman of the Irish day committee and Mr. Horan is active chairman.

NEW JERSEY BOYS PEDAL TO FAIR ON GRANDAD'S BIKE

Two Newark, N. J., boys came to Chicago to visit the Fair yesterday. Not an unusual visit, but as far as transportation is concerned they could well have been coming here to visit the Columbian exposition of 1893. They came coasting down to the 12th street gate on a tandem bicycle; one that belonged to their grandfather. The riders were William G. Toland, 16 years old, and his brother Charles, 14 years old.

About a month ago they were going through the attic of their home when they discovered the old wheel, oiled it up and started for a ride. On the spur of the moment they decided to head for Chicago and, after numerous stops with relatives, arrived yesterday. Their mother got worried and came along to meet them here.

Navy's Hydrographer Is Honor Guest at Fair

Rear Admiral W. R. Gheradi, hydrographer of the United States navy, and Mrs. Gheradi, yesterday were luncheon guests of Rear Admiral Wat T. Cluverius, commandant of the Great Lakes naval station, in the Trustees' lounge at the Fair. Admiral Gheradi came to the Fair to survey the hydrographic exhibit in the Federal Building.

PASTOR BITTEN BY SNAKE GAINS; RELIES ON FAITH

Sylva, N. C., Aug. 10.—(AP)—A mountain preacher, in agony but refusing medical aid, tonight continued to pit his faith in God against a rattlesnake's venom—and apparently he was winning.

Although Albert Teester still was seriously ill from the effects of letting the reptile strike him twice Sunday night as a demonstration to his congregation of the power of the faith, the swelling of his body had diminished somewhat and he seemed definitely on the road to recovery.

Near death yesterday, the 39 year old Holiness church leader was able to prop himself up in bed and talk after a comparatively comfortable night.

"Not for a moment have I lost my faith," he said. "I had faith in the Lord that he would take care of me and he has shown that in the days since I was bitten."

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Here comes the "St. Louis Blues" into a preferred position on the Chicagoland Music Festival program at Soldiers' field Saturday night of next week.

It is probably the first time that W. C. Handy's wailing but refreshing musical picture of life among the lowly has ever been given a position on the program of a great music festival. Noble Cain is going to direct it. His Chicago A Cappella choir is going to sing it, and the Chicagoland Music Festival band is going to play it. Back of all this there is a story.

You all know Noble Cain, at least you who have been going to the festivals do. He is the man who conducted that magnificent hymn of praise, the Hallelujah chorus from Handel's "The Messiah" with a chorus of 5,000 at the first Chicagoland Music Festival and made such an overwhelming impression with it that he and it and the huge chorus have been an annual feature ever since.

Finds New Effects.

A few years ago Noble Cain was the choral director of the Senn High school. In many respects he is a person quite out of the ordinary in the field of music.

Having made a fairly thorough examination of choral music and choral organizations, he came to the conclusion that the ancients by no means knew all that there was to know about choral singing, that there were many undreamed of effects and combinations that could be put over if a director wished and knew how.

With his own freedom from inhibitions and conventions, though with an entirely sound knowledge of the heart of the subject, and with a crowd of youngsters under his baton who dared anything if only the director whom they trusted gave directions, it was not long before the Senn chorus began to be talked about an as astonishing development in high school music.

It began to create new standards, and this among other high school choruses that were just as eager and ambitious as the one at Senn.

Built Upon Senn Nucleus.

This, however, was not enough for Mr. Cain. He set himself to organize a permanent, adult chorus to do the same sort of work, but to go farther with it. The A Cappella chorus was the result. His former Senn singers were the nucleus. It now numbers sixty, and 23 of the members once were his Senn students.

In the few public concerts and the large number of broadcasting programs of this organization, he and they have gone far. They sing music of a complexity that would drive most choruses distracted. They create effects with their voices that are purely vocal and yet rise to a point of supervocalism.

They sing Bach in a way that would have caused the old cantor of Leipzig to rub his hands with glee. They bring out modern pieces that are only sung because there is an organization like the A Cappella chorus to sing them.

Writes Own Music.

Mr. Cain is particularly pleased now because they are working on a new setting of the 104th Psalm by Gunther Raphael. All it involves is making the chorus into a double chorus and giving six distinct vocal parts to each half. Once in a while he gets an idea of some new, especially brilliant and dexterous effects, so he writes a special piece of music to illustrate it.

The same freedom from the fear of convention that has enabled him and his singers to put over such brilliant flights enables him also to look around him and choose music of the people for performance by the chorus. If a popular tune hits him as good he takes it up. The "St. Louis Blues" is one of these.

Symphonic Blues!

He has made a symphonic setting of it for his chorus and band accompaniment. It ought to be something quite out of the ordinary and one of the best reasons for taking a trip to Soldiers' field.

The chances are that several things will be learned about the piece when he presents it. One is willing to predict that he has taken this dingy street arab of music, washed its face, combed its hair, manicured its fingers, and taught it to use the proper fork at table—all without covering up its gamin grin and amusing vitality. One believes—in fact, one hopes—that its wit and grammar will be alike unrestrained.

For Noble Cain knows his music.

LOS ANGELES FAIR PROMOTERS LOSE STOCK SALE O. K.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 10.—[Special.]—Permit to issue and sell stock given the Los Angeles National Exhibition, Inc., promoters of a world's fair here in 1935, was revoked by State Corporation Commissioner Daugherty here today. Officers of the corporation said later that all plans to promote a world's fair had been abandoned and that the corporation would remain dormant.

Investigation into the affairs of the corporation has been under way by Edward Dishlan, chief examiner for the commission, for several weeks after inquiry about the substantiality of its promoters had been made by several business men.

CHICAGO LOSING TO SUBURBS, CWA CENSUS REVEALS

Males, Nonfamily Groups Lead Exodus.

A decrease of 117,920 in the population of Chicago since the 1930 census and a marked population growth in suburbs were shown in figures made public yesterday by the Chicago census commission, the result of a survey made with Civil Works administration funds.

The population here April 1, 1930, was 3,376,438, compared with 3,258,518 on Jan. 9 this year, when the special census began.

According to Charles Newcomb, member of the University of Chicago's social science research committee, who directed the tabulating, the movement of residents outward from Chicago probably has come to rest largely in the nearby suburbs, since six counties in the Chicago area show a 230 per cent increase in population in the last three decades.

Males Lead Exodus.

"The shrinkage of population was chiefly among the nonfamily population, and chiefly among males," Mr. Newcomb's statement said. "The 1930 census showed 842,573 families residing in the city, compared with 833,209 in 1934, a decline of only 10,369.

"Part of the decrease in the number of families might be accounted for by the increase in the practice of doubling up of families within a common household. In order to keep the 1934 figures comparable with those of 1930 only one head could be counted for each household even though a subfamily group was present. The extent of doubling up will be revealed when the final tabulations are made for extra families per household.

Discussing the possible beneficiaries of the city's population loss, Mr. Newcomb said the ratio of the city's population to that of the suburbs had declined notably since 1900.

Other Cities Show Loss.

"At the turn of the century Chicago claimed 81.2 per cent of the total number of residents in the region," Mr. Newcomb said. "In 1930 this figure had dropped to 72.2 per cent. Several of the larger metropolitan cities have shown this tendency toward the dispersion of their peoples into surrounding suburbs."

Mr. Newcomb said also that immigration has since 1930 been less than the exodus for foreign homes. He asserted that only 14 per cent in area has been added to the city proper since the 1889 annexation of the town of Lake, the village of Hyde Park, and other large areas.

The Chicago census commission is composed of Mayor Edward J. Kelly, chairman, and Frederick Rex, William J. Bogan, William H. Sexton, Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, James Simpson, and Mr. Newcomb. Associated with Mr. Newcomb in the direction of the census project was Richard O. Lang, also of the University of Chicago.

EX-PRESIDENT HOOVER MARKS 60TH BIRTHDAY IN A SMILING MOOD

Palo Alto, Cal., Aug. 10.—(AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover was in a jovial, smiling mood today as telegrams of congratulation poured into his home here and friends and neighbors called on his 60th birthday.

"I have never felt better in my life," he exclaimed as he sauntered through the garden of his San Juan Hill home on the Stanford campus.

His two dogs, "Pat," a police dog, and "Weeige," a Norwegian elkhound, which once frolicked on the White House lawn, trailed at the heels of their master and growled for the privilege of sitting at his feet when he rested.

Mr. Hoover declined to talk on national issues, although one questioner pointed out "there are many interesting things to talk about."

"That's just the trouble," Mr. Hoover said, with a chuckle. "The interesting things are those we can't talk about."

He was slightly tanned from his recent trip to Yosemite park with former Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde and he remarked, somewhat proudly, that he had caught the limit of fish each day they were there.

Mr. Hoover was asked about his birthday cake, and he replied there would be none at the family dinner tonight.

Among the callers who paid their respects were Lawrence J. Judd, former governor of Hawaii, and James Garfield, son of the late President and secretary of the interior in the cabinet of Theodore Roosevelt.

ILLINOIS G. O. P. MAPS VIGOROUS FALL CAMPAIGN

Candidates Are Enthused by Convention.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 10.—[Special.]—Stimulated and encouraged by the great attendance and enthusiasm at the state Republican convention at the Fair grounds yesterday, the first that has been held since the Democratic landslide of 1932, candidates on the Republican ticket for state officers and in the congressional districts laid their campaign plans today for the November elections. They feel that they are certain to make gains in congress and that they lead the way in bringing Illinois back into the Republican fold in 1936.

Chairman Justus L. Johnson of the state central committee met with downstate congressional candidates and canvassed the situation in the districts which will be invaded in the first week of the Republican campaign, which opens Aug. 20. Every candidate will speak in every county at least once during the campaign, which is planned to bring to a close downstate on Oct. 6, so that a concentration may be made in Cook county after that.

Speaking Schedule Announced.

The downstate speaking schedule for the first week is announced as follows:

Crew No. 1—Francis G. Blair, candidate for reelection as superintendent of public instruction; William J. Stratton, candidate for state treasurer, and Representative Richard J. Lyons of Lake county will open in Carrollton in the 20th congressional district on the morning of Aug. 20. They will also speak in Jerseyville, Hardin, and Alton on that day. This is a Democratic area and considered one of the hard spots in the campaign. Speaker Henry T. Rainey is the member for the district and is opposed by Warren E. Wright of Jacksonville. The young Republican organization is making great headway in precinct organization here.

On Aug. 21 this group will go to the 22d congressional district, where Jesse R. Brown of Alton, temporary secretary of the convention, is the Republican candidate against Edwin M. Schaeffer of Belleville. This district reversed its former Republican majority by 47,000 in the last election. It is claimed, however, that this was because of the wet and dry issue and with that out of the way the Republicans have a good chance. Speeches will be made at Greenville, Carlyle, Lebanon, Belleville, and Waterloo.

Buford Hailed as Orator.

The next two days the caravan will be in the 25th district where J. Lester Buford of Johnston City is contesting against Kent E. Keller of Ava. Mr. Buford is superintendent of schools and is hailed as a new orator of the party. Addresses will be made in Chester, Pinckneyville, Murphysboro, Anna, Pulaski, Mound City, Cairo, Vienna, Marion, West Frankfort and Mount Vernon.

On Aug. 25 the caravan will move to Nashville, Centralia, Vandalia and Pana.

Crew No. 2 in the campaign consists of C. Wayland Brooks, Chicago and Milton E. Jones of Williamsville, candidates for congressmen at large, and Harold Williams of Taylorville. Their schedule follows:

Aug. 20—Taylorville, Shelbyville, Effingham.

Aug. 21—Flora, Fairfield, McLeansboro, Harrisburg.

Aug. 22—Metropolis, Golconda, Elizabethtown, Equality, Carmi.

Aug. 23—Albion, Mount Carmel, Olney, Lawrenceville.

Aug. 24—Robinson, Newton, Greenup, Marshall.

Aug. 25—Paris, Tuscola, Sullivan, Mattoon.

Branson to Join Forces.

On the second week this group will be accompanied by Representative Robert Branson of Centralia, chairman of the convention resolutions committee.

The Brooks-Jones attack will be in the 19th, 21st, 23d and 24th districts. The 21st is the Springfield area which had an immense Democratic majority two years ago, but which it is now hoped to swing back. The 23d is a Democratic area. Republican candidates in these districts are:

21st—Frank M. Ramey, Hillsboro.

Farmers Draft Plank.

The platform plank was the subject of much conference, and as finally adopted was largely the work of Senator Simon E. Lants of Congerville, farmers' representative in the legislature; Milton E. Jones of Williamsville, who farms 1,800 acres, and who is also a banker and horse breeder; Col. George G. Seaman of Taylorville, owner of 3,000 acres and one of the largest commercial hog raisers in the state, and H. E. Homeman of Danville, treasurer of the party, owner of a 1,600 acre farm, horse breeder, and president of the Sugar Creek Creameries. The agricultural plank in its final form follows in full:

"The Republican party takes the unequivocal position that upon restoration of agricultural prosperity depends the return of prosperity to all the rest of our people. Until the farmer of Illinois and the nation can have profitable prices for the produce, grain and stock he markets, he cannot have buying power. Until the farmer's buying power is restored at least 40 per cent of the country's buying power is stagnated. Until this stagnation is overcome and eliminated there will be no permanent recovery.

Urge Repeal of Taxes.

"We urge the summary repeal of all taxes that constitute a direct factor in keeping the farmer from receiving for his grain and stock a market price commensurate with the price paid by consumers for processed and finished commodities that have their base in agricultural products.

"The Illinois primary road system is practically completed, but only 30 per cent of the total mileage of the state has been improved with an all-weather construction. Seventy per cent of the farmers still live on dirt roads and have paid their share of license fees and gasoline tax, which is inequitable. More than 130 million dollars of road building funds for Illinois have already been diverted for other purposes. Construction experts estimate that 90 per cent of highway construction moneys is expended for labor. Therefore the money which has been diverted for highway construction has taken from labor 200 days of employment for an army of 200,000 men, or a sustenance from a million persons for a year, unnecessarily forcing persons upon relief.

Hit Gas Tax Diversion.

"We, therefore, condemn the diversion of gasoline tax moneys from road building by the present state administration and we oppose any further diversion of gasoline tax moneys from road buildings, whether by investment by state anticipation notes or otherwise. We further oppose any increase in the gasoline tax.

"We particularly urge that every reasonable effort be continued to secure state and national use of motor fuel blended with ethyl alcohol made of corn or other agricultural products grown in the continental United States. We also urge efforts to stimulate by every reasonable means the use of paint containing a large proportion of soy bean oil. We further commend and approve continued study and investigation to develop new industrial uses of farm products.

"We urge that there shall be no legislation or executive order that will in any way cripple or impair facilities of transportation of agricultural products now enjoyed by the farming industry.

Solution for Surplus.

"We believe the permanent solution of the farm surplus problem will be found in securing part or all of the following objectives:

"1. New industrial uses for farm commodities;

"2. Reciprocal trade agreements with foreign nations; after proper notice and hearings which give all interests affected an ample opportunity to be heard;

"3. Removal of marginal and submarginal lands from production and their restoration to the public domain, as a Republican legislature proposed and submitted in 1923 and 1930.

"We pledge our support to conserve domestic markets for domestic farm products. We are against tarif betrayals that hamstring farmers.

"We condemn the violation of law by the present state administration in refusing to purchase and supply state institutions with the butterfats required by statute.

"We favor national legislation whereby money will be directly loaned on farms at a lower rate of interest and on favorable conditions as to time without burdensome costs loaded on the farmer securing the loans.

"The Republican party favors restoring agricultural credit by removing restrictions placed upon agricultural collateral by the party in power. Confiscatory taxes placed upon homes and farms is one of the most alarming abuses of the present hour."

ESKIMO GOES ON TRIAL IN ARCTIC FOR SLAYING PAL

COPPERMINE, N. W. T., Aug. 10.—(AP)—Ahigiak, an Eskimo, dressed in his very best fur clothes, today went on trial for the murder of his friend, Aniruak.

Overcoming stormy weather, a judicial party of four men, headed by Magistrate J. M. Douglas, former member of parliament and one time mayor of Edmonton, came by plane to this little settlement on the Arctic's shore and the trial was started without delay.

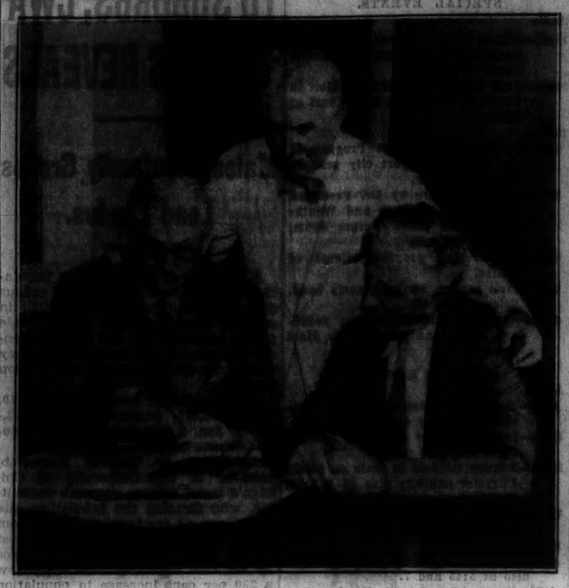

Curious throngs of Eskimos gathered outside the Royal Canadian mounted police post, where Ahigiak's life is at stake. They thought at first the judicial party came to seek caribou or buy fox skins, and could not understand why white men should try a man for the slaying of Aniruak three years ago. The greatest task of the judicial party will be to apply British justice in an equitable way with the standards of the native Eskimo.

Ahigiak is alleged to have slain Aniruak in their igloo on King William Island, 800 miles east of here, in the autumn of 1931. There is no jail at Coppermine and Ahigiak, under close supervision, has been allowed to live in his own igloo.

BEG YOUR PARDON

It was incorrectly reported in Thursday morning's TRIBUNE that dealings between the police pension fund board and the Lake View Trust and Savings bank had been investigated by an auditor. The bank under investigation was the Lakeview State bank. William O. J. Hattstaedt, mentioned in the article as president of the Lake View Trust and Savings bank, was actually president of the Lakeview State bank, which now is in receivership.

STATE CAMPAIGN BATTLE FRONT IS SHIFTED TO CITY

Democrats Reply to G. O. P. Convention.

The main battleground between Illinois Republicans and Democrats moved from Springfield to Chicago yesterday. Bruce Campbell, chairman of the Democratic state central committee, charged in a statement that the Republican state convention in Springfield Thursday was a "comedy of errors."

The Campbell statement was issued simultaneously with the arrival in Chicago of Henry P. Fletcher, chairman of the Republican national committee, who delivered the principal address at the Springfield convention. Fresh from an enthusiastic reception at the convention, Mr. Fletcher was optimistic about his party's success at the polls in November. He left for the east last night after conferences with Republican leaders here.

Charges G. O. P. Is Divided.

In discussing the Republican convention Mr. Campbell declared that after weeks of unsuccessful efforts to heal differences between warring Republican factions a "so-called harmony program" was formulated. Every faction was allowed to have its spokesman upon the platform, he said, so that the lack of harmony would not appear on the surface.

"The result was a conglomeration of inharmonious speeches by Republican office seekers that began nowhere and ended at the same place," asserted Campbell.

Every utterance, Campbell charged, was one of destruction, openly and patently for the purpose of trying to fool the people and get the office seekers back in office.

Asserts Labor Is Satisfied.

"The air was filled with loud voiced condemnation of 'imperialism, regimentation, monopoly, and centralization,'" said Campbell, "to all of which the Democratic party is now and always has been unalterably opposed, and none of which are issues in this campaign. Two things were picked out for special denunciation. These were the NRA and the AAA. No reasons were given why they were wrong, but generalities were indulged in to the nth degree."

Campbell asserted that satisfied labor, industry, and agriculture "cannot be hoodwinked by such resounding phrases" when greater production, far higher farm prices and increased employment with higher wages and better working conditions answer the question as to what these two measures have done for the people.

"The people of Illinois cannot be fooled by such play acting in politics," said Campbell. "They want facts and not platitudinous generalities dripping from the mouths of those who brought Illinois and the nation to the lowest ebb in history."

The Republicans did not dare, Campbell charged, openly to attack President Roosevelt. The attack on Gov. Horner, who is not running for office, was an unjust one, he declared.

Mr. Campbell also assailed Republican Chairman Fletcher, declaring that his speech at the state convention had not offered a single constructive criticism.

Comments on Roosevelt Speech.

After his arrival in Chicago Mr. Fletcher was interviewed at the Republican headquarters in the McCormick building. He commented only briefly on President Roosevelt's speech Thursday at Green Bay, Wis. In referring to the President's favorable mention of Senator La Follette, running for reelection, Mr. Fletcher said:

"Does it mean the start of a third party—an amalgamation?"

He was asked whether the President's speech could be regarded as meaning a perpetuation of the New Deal as a permanent form of government.

"Yes," was the reply. "I'd say that was the plain implication—that the basic recovery measures will be made permanent."

HALT NEW DEAL DOLE! SAY FARM BUREAU CHIEFS

Reds Getting Benefits, Warns Board.

New Deal relief policies were criticised severely yesterday in a set of resolutions adopted by the board of directors of the American Farm Bureau federation at a meeting in the Hotel Sherman.

"We deplore and condemn what appears to be a fast developing dole system which is being encouraged and demanded by communistic and socialistic influences in many sections of the United States," the resolutions stated. "This system is fast becoming permanent and unless immediately curtailed will destroy American ideals and the self-respect of millions of our citizens."

After asserting a belief that all "deserving citizens" should have an ample supply of food, clothing, and shelter, the directors declared their opposition to any "system of government unemployment relief or charity that encourages idleness and indifference to emergency employment at comparatively lower wages."

Demand Radical Changes.

"The American Farm Bureau federation," the resolutions continued, "believes that state and federal governments should immediately make radical changes in present unemployment relief policies. We believe a proper slogan would be:

"All who work eat.

"All who are unable to work eat.

"All unemployed who refuse to work at comparatively reasonable wages on emergency projects provided by government—don't eat."

Edward A. O'Neal, veteran president of the federation, asked to elaborate on the opinions expressed in the resolutions, said:

"The board feels that the present unemployment relief measures are tending to become something exactly like the British dole. We believe that recipients of relief should be made to work. The British dole, which started as our relief program started, led to statements by its recipients: 'We'll eat and we won't work.'

Fear New Farm Burden.

"The farmers have a direct interest in this matter, as any closer approach to the British system would place another permanent burden upon them."

Mr. O'Neal added that the suggestion of radical changes was purposely made general, as the bureau directors did not wish to become involved in the technical problems that have grown up with the administration of relief.

At the session, which closed the two day regular quarterly meeting of the directorate, another resolution was passed recommending that the bureau officers get in touch with the Farm Credit administration and insist that greater efforts be made to reduce interest rates to farmers and make a success of farmer-controled credit institutions.

In discussing the Tennessee valley improvement, the bureau directors recommended that the bulk of the power developed by the dams should be used in the manufacture of cheap fertilizer. They urged also that the Tennessee, from Knoxville to Paducah, be made a major waterway, with dams of sufficient height to develop power as well as to insure navigability.

SALOONKEEPERS RUSH TO PAY UP CITY LICENSES

A concerted drive directed by Police Commissioner Allman and City Collector Kaindl yesterday netted 453 payments of saloon license fees, making a total of 7,462 establishments licensed for the last six months of the year. The drive was ordered by Mayor Kelly.

Commissioner Allman instructed the police force to close all saloons that did not have city licenses. He declared that the police would continue to close the places until the delinquents had paid up. The license payments were due July 1.

Although thus far in the drive the number of licenses is below the total of 7,850 for the first six month period of the year, the city's revenue is $316,100 more, according to Mr. Kaindl. This is caused by an increase in the six months' license from $250 to $300.

Newsboy Finds Baby Girl Abandoned in a Hallway

A black haired, blue eyed baby girl was found abandoned yesterday in a second floor hallway of an apartment building at 151½ North Cicero avenue. Richard Anderson, 16 years old, 320 North Laurel avenue, a newsboy, found the child and called the Austin police, who took the baby to St. Ann's hospital. There the baby was given a new outfit of clothing to replace the worn blanket in which it was found. Later the waif was taken to St. Vincent's orphanage.

DOWLING 'KIDNAPING ROMANCE' HITS RIFT; BRIDE LEAVES HOME

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 10.—(AP)—The "kidnaping romance" of R. C. (Dapper Danny) Dowling, film dance director, and Marjorie Crawford, flying actress, apparently blew up today, but whether there would be a divorce was uncertain.

Questioned about a report that he had been doing the cooking in their apartment since their marriage last May, Dowling said:

"Well, maybe that is why she left."

Whatever the situation, "Dapper Danny" admitted his wife is no longer an occupant of their Hollywood apartment. Friends of the couple, whose marriage followed as a result of an alleged kidnap plot, said they understood she has gone to New Mexico and will bring suit there.

In the kidnaping charge she said Dowling took her to Yuma, Ariz., at the point of a pistol and tried to force her to marry him. Dowling was held for trial, but on the day the case was set for hearing he announced he and Miss Crawford had just returned from another trip to Arizona, during which they had been married. The charge was dismissed.

PICNIC TICKETS TO HONOR SABATH COST 50C TO $5

15,000 Put on Sale for Testimonial.

Perhaps the most ambitious social affair for a political figure since the pretentious series of testimonial banquets for politicians several years ago is being planned for next Wednesday in Pilsen park, 26th street and Albany avenue, in honor of Congressman A. J. Sabath. The affair is to take the form of a "testimonial picnic." If all the outstanding tickets are sold, $32,500 may be collected with which to purchase a gift or make up a purse for Congressman Sabath.

Members of the committee on arrangements at the Hotel La Salle were conservative in their estimate of receipts, however. They predicted a maximum of $10,000. Congressman Sabath was even less optimistic, declaring he would not be surprised if the figure did not exceed $300.

15,000 Tickets Sent Out.

A total of 15,000 tickets have been sent to business men and political workers of the Fifth congressional district. Those for business men are priced at $5 each, while those in the hands of political workers range in price from $1 to 50 cents each. There are 5,000 tickets in each of the three denominations.

Congressman Sabath said he had no part in originating the testimonial picnic, adding that he consented to it only at the insistence of Democratic leaders.

Folsom's Signature Unauthorized.

The letters of solicitation, which were signed by Richard S. Folsom, school board attorney, who is chairman of the committee, reviewed Congressman Sabath's 28 years of service and declared: "This committee feels that honor is due to Congressman Sabath not alone from his immediate neighbors but from the entire city."

Mr. Folsom, however, declared in Washington yesterday that he was not aware that a charge was being made for the tickets and had not authorized the signature of his name to the letters. Congressman Sabath requested him to take the chairmanship, Mr. Folsom added, and he declared he did so in the belief it was "an ordinary political picnic."

6 EX-OFFICIALS SENT TO JAIL FOR ELECTION FRAUD

Six persons who served as election officials in the 27th ward during last April's primaries were found guilty of contempt of court for ballot irregularities and sentenced to terms in the county jail yesterday.

Four were sentenced to ten months each by Judge Win G. Knoch of Wheaton, sitting in County court here. They are: Louis J. Rohenkohl, 839 Monroe street, Republican judge; Thomas B. Keane, 758 Harrison street, Democratic clerk; John E. Crowley, 847 Monroe street, Republican clerk, and Joseph V. Ruelle, 1654 South Turner avenue, Republican judge. All served in the 53d precinct of the 27th ward.

Two other former polls officials in the 51st precinct of the 27th ward were convicted of contempt in the court of Judge G. D. Long of Rock Island, sitting in the County court, and were sentenced to 90 days in the county jail. They are John Young, 213 Aberdeen street, Republican judge, and Joseph Oswald, 1000 Jackson boulevard, Democratic judge. They were found guilty of letting persons vote more than once.

SEEK POISON VICTIM'S KIN.

JUDGE REFUSES SAMPSELL PLEA FOR ACQUITTAL

Insists Defense Present Its Evidence.

that the transaction was purely a loan and not an illegal abstraction of stock from the treasury as charged by the prosecution.

"The directors of the company treated this matter as a loan and Mr. O'Hora knew it," Attorney Ditchburne said. "The state has failed to produce certain material evidence on this subject."

"That is not true," Prosecutor O'Hora replied with some heat. "The evidence shows that the directors never authorized this stock abstraction and that even after it was purchased back the directors made no formal record of it until months later."

Judge Criticizes Repurchase.

The repurchase of the stock from the Springfield banks by the directors after Sampsell had severed his connection with the company was the subject several times during the day of some caustic comment by the judge. The remarks were made during sessions in chambers, not in the presence of the jury.

The evidence produced in the trial showed that after Sampsell obtained the stock he pledged it with the Springfield banks. It was then selling on the market for $66 a share and when bought back by the directors it was only bringing $28 a share on the market in isolated transactions.

"That repurchase matter was surely some high financing," the judge remarked. "Why was it repurchased? Even the contention that it was bought to prevent payment of dividends would not justify the payment of the money. Why did they pay out $100,000 good money to buy stocks which could have been purchased on the open market for at least 50 per cent less?"

Loss of $62,000 to the Company.

"I suppose it was because the company admitted by its act that it was a loan to Sampsell," ventured defense Attorney Ditchburne. "We got a lot of solace out of that repurchase and the resolution of the board of directors sanctioning the transaction."

"I am talking about the poor gullible stockholders, whose money was used to repurchase the stock," said the judge as he closed his observations.

The evidence introduced showed that the directors of the Central Illinois company ratified the repurchase, which cost them some $62,000, about four months after the actual repurchase was made. The board's minutes showed also that no authorization was ever given to Sampsell to use the stock in question.

Reading of the minutes disclosed, too, that the company was practically under the direct domination of Samuel Insull. Samuel Insull Jr. was chairman of the board and his father and uncle, Martin Insull, were directors.

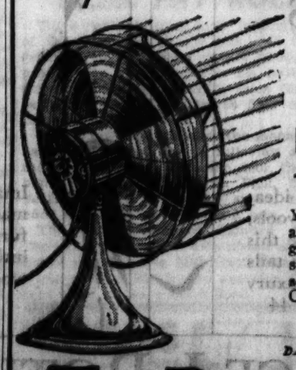

Official Recounts Redemption.

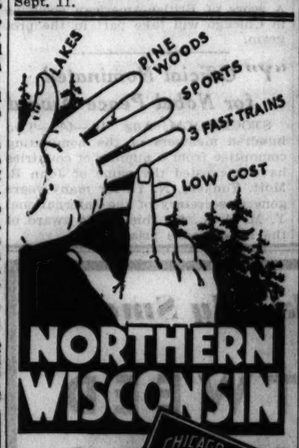

Carl E. Cripes, assistant treasurer of the Central Illinois concern, gave the evidence of the stock repurchase. He said that he acquired the stock by redeeming the Sampsell-Insull notes on orders from Oliver E. McCormick, who was treasurer for the receiver for the Middle West Utilities company.

The trial was considerably shortened by the fact that for the last two days the defense has agreed to stipulate records instead of making the state produce dozens of witnesses to trace them through their various sources.

New North Avenue Light System Turned on Early

A new system of forty-six 1,000 candle power lights was turned on for the first time last night along North avenue between Clark street and Clybourn avenue. The installation was completed ahead of schedule by W. A. Jackson, commissioner of gas and electricity for the city. The North Central association plans a celebration on Sept. 11.

CROPS DO WELL IN CENTRAL AND EAST NEW YORK

Some Are Below Normal, but Prices Gain.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 10.—[Special.]—Nineteen hundred thirty-four, which is being scrawled into the records as the driest in history, may turn out to be a profitable year for many farmers in the central and eastern part of New York.

Farmers interviewed in the Oneida lake region and along the slopes leading down into the Mohawk river valley are counting their blessings. On cool evenings they collect in the courthouse squares and band parks to discuss reports of the plight of unfortunate producers in the dry states where losses already have soared up to the billion dollar mark. Solemn faced farmers who have gone through other dry years scold the occasional grumbler who fusses about the relative shortage of rainfall this season.

Dairymen Make Profits.

Crop conditions vary greatly along the route from Geneva to Albany, but most dairymen and truck farmers already have increased their bank accounts through the sale of early harvested products. The outlook is favorable for a fair yield of crops to be harvested in late summer and fall.

In Madison county, near the exact center of New York state, truck growers have harvested a good crop of green peas. More than 1,200 acres of peas were planted. The crop is being sold at prices ranging from $1 to $2.50 a bushel for green peas in the pod.

Receive Pay in Oats.

Many of the farmers rent their land for the growing of peas and are paid in oats instead of cash. The common practice is to pay the farmer 40 bushels of oats for each acre of land planted to peas.

There is a good crop of cabbage in Madison county and in Chenango, the adjoining county on the south. Farmers report they have received bids of as high as $20 a ton for their cabbage this season.

Oats and barley are being cut in that section. Few fields have been threshed, but farmers estimate that the yield of oats will be from 20 to 35 bushels to the acre. Barley yields are expected to be slightly less.

Dairymen Receive More.

Dairy farmers in the New York milk shed have shared in the increased returns for milk this summer. New York state dairymen will receive $1,000,000 more for milk delivered in July this year than in July, 1933, and $2,000,000 more than for milk delivered in July, 1932, according to a statement made here today by C. H. Baldwin, state commissioner of agriculture.

For milk delivered in July they will receive a blended price of $1.60 a hundred, compared with $1.50 during the same month last year and only $1.10 in July, 1932.

COMPLETE COIN COUNTERFEITING PLANT IS SEIZED

The most complete small coin counterfeiting plant found here in a long time was discovered yesterday by secret service agents under Capt. Thomas J. Callaghan in a raid on a building at 21 North Racine avenue.

Three men were arrested. They are Walter Balinski, 35 years old, alleged owner of the plant; Arthur Lang, 22 years old, an assistant, and Alexander Gordon, 38 years old, 1 East Huron street, alleged distributor of the fake coins.

Equipment for the production of half dollars, quarters, dimes, and nickels, capable of duplicating actual coins so closely as to deceive practiced observers, and $10 worth of counterfeit nickels were seized. The plant had been operating for about a year, Capt. Callaghan said, and about $500 worth of fake nickels alone had been circulated in the last three months.

Peter Lucenti, 44 years old, and Fred C. Allen, 42 years old, convicted of passing counterfeit $5 bills, were sentenced yesterday to serve a year and a day each in Leavenworth penitentiary by Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley.

7 STORES BURN, LOSS $100,000 IN MISSOURI TOWN

Liberty, Mo., Aug. 10.—(AP)—Fire destroyed seven business buildings and badly damaged seven others here late today, with damage estimated at more than $100,000. No lives were lost and no injuries were reported. A report that two youths had been burned to death proved unfounded.

Two men were rescued from the Major hotel, which was badly damaged. E. B. Maltby, 80, who had refused to leave the hotel when flames started on the roof, was escorted down a ladder by G. L. Adams, a contractor. Firemen rescued Ervin Richie, who was bedfast in his room.

For a time the flames threatened to spread to the main business district around the historic city square, in the center of which is the Clay county courthouse, built in 1869.

14 Seeking Appointment as Evanston Postmaster

Fourteen candidates want to be postmaster in Evanston. Thirteen of them filed with the civil service commission in Washington, D. C., yesterday. They are Dr. Alexander Pope, George N. Taylor, Ernestine A. Sidway, City Collector Samuel G. Ingraham, Ray L. Dowdall, Dr. Robert J. Hathaway, Jeptha C. Stone, Eugene V. Doron, Ald. Albert J. Smith of the 8th ward, James H. Wells, Bernard A. Patterson, Arthur T. Becker, and Robert W. Luce. Postmaster William J. Hamilton, who has held the post since Dec. 1, 1921, has announced he will seek reappointment.

Actress Twila Hamilton Wins Divorce in California

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 10.—[Special.]—Twila Hamilton, actress, wife of John Kennard Hamilton, "Big Brother Ken" of the radio, was granted a divorce here today on grounds of non-support.

THOUSANDS FLEE WORLD'S FAIR IN DRENCHING RAIN

Shower Soaks Chicago and Suburbs.

A heavy shower which fell last night in Chicago, at the end of a day which saw the heat wave of the past week routed over the northern part of the middle west, drove thousands of World's Fair visitors to shelter and forced other thousands to leave the grounds hurriedly.

To prevent the drenching of its patrons, the Fair management allowed motor coaches and taxicabs to enter the north gate, pick up passengers at the Administration building and pass out at the 14th street gate. Between 9:30 and 10:30 p. m. 28,000 persons left.

The shower was accompanied by a temperature drop ranging from 13 degrees at the Municipal airport to variations of only a few degrees in other parts of the city. The official airport thermometer read 74 degrees at 9:18 when the rain started and showed 61 degrees at 11 p. m.

Cool Weather Today.

The official forecast is for further showers, probably, and moderate temperatures today. It is expected that tomorrow will be cloudy and warmer. Moderate to fresh easterly winds, it was indicated, will prevail.

Winds accompanied last night's rainfall were strong. Two youths, Edward Mueller, 16 years old, 409 Custer street, Evanston, and Milton Rusteen, 18 years old, 6214 Winthrop avenue, had to swim ashore when the 18 foot sloop in which they were riding filled with water and sank in the lake a half mile off Belmont harbor.

The youths had taken the boat, the Who Cares, property of an Evanston Sea Scout troop, to the Navy pier and were on their way back to the home port when the storm overtook them. They were striving to put into the harbor when the strong winds struck them. Both were exhausted when they reached shore.

Lightning Strikes Store.

During the storm a garage of the Fair store, at 2225 South State street, was struck by lightning and part of a brick wall was torn away. Several employés in the place at the time were stunned, but none suffered serious injuries.

The wind and rain swept the city from the south and west sides to the north shore, though no other damage was reported. Oak Park and other western suburbs reported heavy rain began falling at 10 p. m. Evanston and towns north got a good drenching.

Earlier in the day, winds blowing almost due south with a cargo of chilled air from Canada drove out extreme heat over a large middle western area. The official weather table at 8 p. m. showed that the relief had come to practically the entire northwest, to Wisconsin, all of Iowa but the southern end, and to the Michigan and the northern third of Illinois. Readings were still high in the central valleys, particularly in Missouri, and in Kansas. The high at St. Louis yesterday was 106, at Oklahoma City, 104, and at Kansas City, 110.

Scattered showers were noted over the area affected by the cool air. Chicago, besides the sharp shower at night, had a total precipitation of .17 of an inch in the morning. The highest temperature recorded here during the day was 85 degrees.

BERWYN IS SUED FOR $99,000 FOR ELECTRIC WORK

The city of Berwyn was named defendant in a suit filed yesterday in the Circuit court by attorneys for the A. A. Electric company of the suburb. The company is seeking $99,573 which it alleges is due it for maintaining and operating traffic lights, street lights, and other electrical equipment, and also asks interest at the rate of 5 per cent.

The bill, filed by Attorney John J. Sherlock, relates that on Aug. 1, 1929, the company entered into a six year contract with Berwyn to handle its electrical service, and that the city has failed to pay any money for the work.

In the itemization of claims is one for $818, given as the cost for furnishing and maintaining radio receivers used by the Berwyn police department from April 30, 1932, to July 1, 1934.

U. S. Releases Fournier from Payment of Fine

Unable to pay a fine of $3,000 for using the mails to defraud, Arthur J. Fournier, former head of an investment company bearing his name at 134 North La Salle street, was discharged yesterday as a "poor convict" by United States Commissioner Walker. Fournier, convicted of defrauding investors of more than $100,000 and committed to Leavenworth penitentiary in June, 1933, was paroled after serving about a third of his term. He presented an affidavit stating he was without funds.

Po' Br'er Rabbit

Aug. 10, 1934.

ASHY, cowering baby cottontail got "lost" on the auxiliary farm yesterday morning and was nearly scared to death before he was "rescued" from the busy life of the poultry yard. Of course there are quite a number of rabbits on the farm, but as a rule they do not pick the poultry yard for foraging trips nor do they ordinarily seek the company of the poults and the Barred Rocks.

Nevertheless, yesterday morning when Rawlings walked into the poultry feed lot to feed the chickens, guinea hens, and turkeys, there was an immature cottontail squatting right in the middle of all the noisy poultry. He was all hunched up, ears back, and apparently wishing that he had stayed in his own back yard. He didn't know which way was out. Guinea chicks were running all around him and fussy old hens clucked far too close for comfort.

Rawlings couldn't help laughing at this scared little rabbit who was so young that he shouldn't have strayed from the family circle. He had no trouble in picking up the frightened animal and carrying him out of the pen, so he could recover from his fright and move on to quieter places.

Rawlings has been making daily trips on horseback around and through the 12 acre fields of corn to determine when to put the crop into the silo. The outside rows, about 10 to 20 around each field, have been firing from top to bottom. Inside the field, however, the corn is still growing and the silo filling job is being held off in order to gain the utmost yield of green corn. In the meantime the binder and the silo filler are being repaired and greased so as to be ready for the big job.

The other night when Rawlings had finished his evening inspection trip around the farm he was surprised to find some visitors waiting in the barnyard. But his surprise at finding them at such a late hour in the day was nothing compared to the shock he received when they said that they would like to be guided out into the woods in order to see the turkeys on their night roost!

Two of the boys, Shadoan and Johnson, here on the experimental farm have been keeping busy this week hauling fertilizer to the fields and cutting weeds. The fertilizer taken from the cattle yard was hauled to a seventeen acre field where oats grew this year.

In going after the weeds the boys centered their attacks mainly on the thistles. The important thing they observe in weed cutting is this: It's necessary to cut them off low so that all the leaves of the plant are removed. Then the root of the weed is dormant, subject to attack and competition until new leaves are put out. If any leaves are left the normal life of the plant goes on while it is pushing out other leaves.

The boys have found that where weeds are cut with a mower, and therefore cut below all leaves, two or three cuttings get rid of them, even the Canadian thistles. Here on the farm the boys use a hoe, if not operating a mower to attack large patches, and cut the weed down close to the ground.

TWO BOYS DEAD, HOMES LOST IN KENTUCKY FLOOD

Ashland, Ky., Aug. 10.—[Special.]—Two persons were dead and hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of property damaged today as the result of the most devastating flood in the history of Carter and Rowan counties.

Raging torrents created by a tremendous downpour of rain swept away homes, laid waste to crops, and inundated towns.

The two deaths occurred near Hitchins when the barn on the farm of Everett Dawson was washed away and crashed against his house. Two boys, Harold and Marvin Lafayette, 8 and 4 years old, were washed into the raging waters of Tygarts creek and drowned.

The entire town of Olive Hill, in Carter county, was nearly completely inundated and was cut off from communication today as the angry waters of Tygarts creek rose swiftly.

Fifth Body Is Recovered.

Denver, Colo., Aug. 10.—[Special.]—The body of a woman believed to be that of Mrs. J. M. Dieken of Detroit, Mich., the fifth victim of the cloudburst that hit the mountain resort section west of here yesterday, was recovered today from Bear creek near Morrison, Colo.

NATIONAL GUARD TESTS SKILL IN WAR MANEUVERS

Rockford, Ill., Aug. 10.—[Special.]—Split into two forces, Illinois National Guard troops at Camp Grant opened two days of battle maneuvers this morning.

The 65th infantry brigade, consisting of downstate Guardsmen, waged the defensive fight, while the 66th infantry brigade formed the attacking army.

Artillery units and special troops, as well as the aviation squadron, were divided for the battle. Machine guns and rifles crackled and airplanes roared overhead at low altitude as the battle progressed.

Miles of telephone wires were strung, radio stations were set up, and all other phases of communications used in regular warfare were employed.

Originally scheduled to start at dawn, the mimic war was delayed until 8 a. m. by a heavy rain, which would have hampered troop movements and soaked equipment.

The war was called off at 11 a. m., with no decision given and no Guardsmen injured, despite the thousands in the field and the thousands of blank shells fired. The battle will be repeated tomorrow morning.

BIALYSTOK, Poland, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Divers today raised a bus which slid into the Bug river Wednesday and found 18 persons were drowned.

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 10.—Faced with a proposition of slaughtering 100,000 starving and thirsty cattle in the drouth stricken areas of southern Alberta and Saskatchewan, the dominion and provincial governments today gave initial consideration to a giant migratory scheme which would move thousands of families from the arid land into the colder but more fertile territory to the north of these provinces. In Alberta the migration would be to the Peace river country.

Millions of dollars of government funds have been poured into the blighted southern districts for the relief of poverty stricken farmers during the last four years. With recurring drouth and dust storms, which at intervals literally remove inches of the top soil of southern Alberta and Saskatchewan, the provincial and federal governments have about come to the conclusion that the territory should never have been colonized. This year's drouth has turned the country into a desert and the new proposal, which is likely to be adopted, is to leave it that way. About 1,000 Alberta families already have moved north on their own initiative.

Dominion government officials will discuss with packers next Tuesday a proposition of a three way split—provincial and federal government and packers—of the cost of slaughtering the 100,000 dying cattle in the area.

Three robbers, apparently informed of the time the weekly pay roll is delivered to the offices of the Photopress, Inc., at 725 South La Salle street, took $1,269 yesterday from the cashier's cage on the fourth floor of the company's building.

Only a few minutes after the money had been received and in full view of the 50 employés on the same floor, the bandits forced Miss Sarah Pick, 24 years old, 555 East 60th street, to hand them the money from a safe.

The men threatened Edward J. Challifax, the manager, with pistols and forced Martin Revis, 1157 North Washtenaw avenue, the elevator operator, to take them to the ground floor.

BALLOON TO GET COSMIC RAY DATA READY AT U. OF C.

A small balloon which is destined, perhaps, to help reveal more secrets of the elusive cosmic rays which exist in the stratospheric envelope surrounding the earth, was being held in readiness for a trial flight from the University of Chicago yesterday.

The balloon, equipped with a device which will automatically transmit its data by radio to a ground station, is the result of a year's study and work by Prof. Arthur H. Compton, University of Chicago physicist, and Prof. J. M. Benade, physicist attached to Forman Christian college, Lahore, India.

Wind Prevents Test Flight.

A test flight of the balloon was to have been made from the roof of the Ryerson laboratory on the university campus last evening, but because of a brisk wind the test was postponed until next week.

Although at the time of its flight the balloon will be free, it will be attached to the end of a 1,000 foot cable during the test. By this means Prof. Compton expects to obtain a final adjustment on the instruments.

The new recording apparatus, Prof. Compton said, is an outgrowth of the stratosphere flight made by Lieutenant Commander T. G. W. Settle last year. Its findings are expected to supplement those of the Settle flight, and perhaps surpass them, because of the greater height to which the smaller balloon is expected to ascend.

May Go Up Ten Miles.

"The time of the actual flight will depend upon weather conditions," he declared. "We hope to send it up within the next two weeks. We expect the balloon to rise from eight to ten miles. It may go higher, but our chief interest is in the first eight miles.

"I am hopeful that this new apparatus will clear up several puzzling points brought up by the measurements obtained in the Settle flight."

Prof. Compton expressed the hope that information obtained by means of the new device will support his theory that cosmic rays are in reality infinitesimal bits of matter. Others declare the rays are purely wavelike in character and behavior.

Radio to Bring Data.

Messages will be recorded by the ground crew from the miniature broadcast station, which is only a small part of the total seven pounds the equipment weighs. The gas bag, constructed of special rubber, will be only fifteen feet in diameter when fully inflated with hydrogen.

Barometic pressure, temperatures, and electric intensity will be flashed to the ground crew as the small balloon soars skyward. Each change will indicate what is happening as the distance from the earth increases.

One important feature of the plan, Prof. Compton pointed out, is that the balloon and its instruments may be lost forever without harm, inasmuch as its messages will be a matter of record on the ground. The total cost of the equipment was estimated at $100.

COURTNEY TO ACT ON AUDIT REPORT OF POLICE FUND

An investigation to determine whether grand jury action can be taken against persons who may have profited from irregularities in administration of the $10,000,000 police pension fund was announced yesterday by State's Attorney Courtney. An audit report, announced Thursday, said the books of the pension board investment committee indicated many irregularities.

"I have directed my first assistant, Wilbert Crowley, to get a copy of the audit Monday morning and find out whether grand jury action should be taken," said the state's attorney.

The state's attorney's announcement came while Shelby Singleton, secretary of the Citizens' Association of Chicago, was asserting that his organization was prepared to make a public demand for an investigation of the pension fund administration. The citizens' group was responsible, along with several of the more recently appointed members of the pension board, for the audit by George W. Rossetter & Co.

The audit report said that the brokerage concern of Joseph M. Johnson & Co. had made $100,000 in "excess" profits after selling the board more than $2,500,000 worth of securities. Police Captain Hugh T. McCarthy was a member of the pension board's investment committee which ordered the securities purchases from the Johnson firm. Capt. McCarthy's son, Hugh Jr., was a partner in the brokerage concern.

MRS. ANTONIO'S BODY CLAIMED BY BROTHER; FUNERAL IN ALBANY

New York, Aug. 10.—[Special.]—The bodies of Mrs. Anna Antonio, the 29 year old Albany mother of three children, and Samuel Feraci, 43, and Vincent Saetta, 34, her accomplices in the murder of her husband, who were executed last night in the electric chair at Sing Sing prison, were claimed today by relatives. Mrs. Antonio's body was taken by her brother, Pasquale Copello of Schenectady, to that city. She will be buried Tuesday in Albany.

Saetta's father, Antonio Saetta of Woodside, Queens, took his son's body to Woodside. Feraci's body was taken to Geneva, N. Y., by his widow. Expenses of his funeral will be defrayed by the Mutual Welfare League of Sing Sing prison, which also provided funds to enable Mrs. Feraci to visit her husband.

The State of New York spent almost as much money for matrons to guard Mrs. Antonio during her fifteen and one-half months in the death house as the policy on her husband's life, for which the murder was committed. The policy was for $5,000. The cost of three matrons was $4,650.

RED MEN PLEAD WITH RAIN GODS IN OLD CEREMONY

Animal Lodge Rite Is "Last Resort."

Geary, Okla., Aug. 10.—(AP)—The sun god glared today. His flails beat mercilessly on eight hundred or more bronzed figures on the banks of the North Canadia river—"Big Water" to the Indian, but only a trickle now.

It was the lurid animal lodge ceremony of the Cheyennes and Arapahoes, all but forgotten, a last resort in times of great stress.

The climax, a huge rain ceremonial, will be tomorrow morning. All day today, all night tonight, the plains Indians stomped and writhed through preliminary dances and rites.

There is no written ritual for the dance. The old chiefs must remember every move. They must remember well, for the animal dance has been performed but twice in the last generation.

The last time was seven years ago. For three days after the ritual the river bottoms were flooded, they say.

For years the heads and hides of big game that once roamed the plains are saved for the animal dance alone.

Only Feast Interrupts.

When the time comes—and it now is at hand—the dancers don the pelts of buffalo, wolves, bears, deer. On their heads are beastlike masks. And the dance is on, broken only for a feast of barbecued meat, to give strength for the final burst of frenzy.

Manitou thus will see his animals in supplication, understand that thirst has driven them to the "Big Water" and that their water holes are dry.

Then, if he is pleased, the rains will tumble down, say the red men.

There has been no rain here for weeks on weeks. The "Big Water" is at the lowest stage in twenty years, the sun glares on.

JAPAN REJECTS SOVIET RUSSIAN RAIL PROPOSAL

TOKIO, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Koki Hirota, Japanese foreign minister, today informed Dr. Constantine Youreneff, soviet ambassador to Japan, that Russia's counter proposal regarding the Chinese Eastern railway was not acceptable since Russia had ignored his "final proposals" of July 25.

His refusal was made during a conference at which Dr. Youreneff urged Hirota to use his good offices to persuade Manchukuo to accept Moscow's counter proposal for operation of the railroad.

Hirota indicated that there would be difficulty in continuing the negotiations, but nevertheless agreed to "convey the soviet's desire to Manchukuo."

FALL FATAL TO WORKMAN.

Comfort Stations in Tunnels Planned at Oak Street Beach

Plans which may result in the construction of underground comfort stations at three points along Oak street beach are being drawn by engineers for the Lincoln park commissioners, it became known yesterday. If the plans are found feasible and funds are forthcoming for their execution, park officials said, a condition which health authorities have condemned as insanitary for thousands of swimmers at the beach will be remedied.

Restrictions on building incorporated in the deeds under which the park commissioners were given their riparian rights to the lake front have been the rock on which all previous attempts to provide adequate comfort facilities at the beach has foundered. The new plans will avoid the restrictions by providing for comfort stations beneath the surface of the ground.

To Be Placed in Tunnels.

The new stations, according to the plans drawn by Hugh Young, engineer for the park board and for the Chicago plan commission, are to be constructed when the state highway division builds pedestrian tunnels beneath Lake Shore drive. For years the heavy motor trafic along the drive has made hazardous the approach to the beach by bathers.

During the last session of the state legislature a resolution suggesting that the state highway division build these tunnels was adopted. Recently Kendrick Harger, director of the local division of the state highway department, asked the park commissioners to draw up plans stipulating the sites where they would prefer to have the tunnels.

With the state bearing the expense for the tunnels, Engineer Young, after consulting the park board members, decided to include in his plans a design for underground comfort stations at the eastern end of the tunnels. In the tentative drawings the tunnels are placed at Oak street, Division street and North avenue.

Commissioners Favor Plans.

According to Attorney James M. Slattery, counsel and A. D. Plamondon, president of the board, funds for the building of the stations must come from park revenues. These will be available if the State Supreme court approves the legislation creating the new consolidated park system of Chicago. Other members of the park board have indicated that the proposed plans will meet with their approval when considered next week.

Highway Engineer Harger said yesterday that the state probably would spend $50,000 on the three subways. Park engineers said costs of the comfort stations probably would not exceed $100,000.

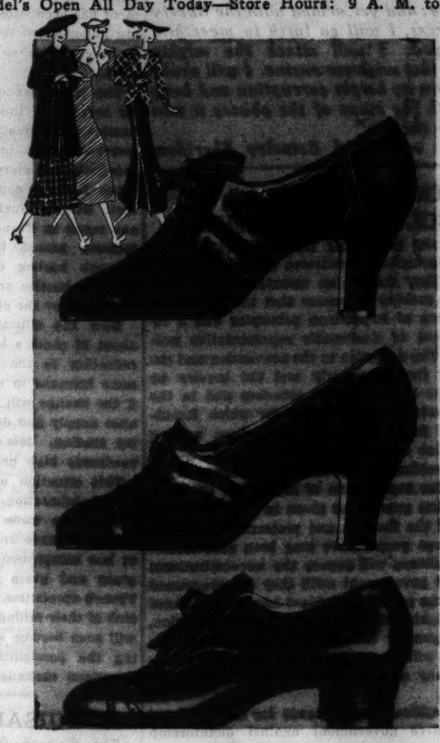

CLUB TO UNVEIL TABLET SHOWING SOCK AT KINGFISH

Sands Point, N. Y., Aug. 10.—[Special.]—A bronze tablet will be unveiled in the washroom of the Sands Point Bath club at 10 p. m., Aug. 26, to commemorate the time and place of the assault on Senator Huey P. Long last year. The Louisiana Kingfish exhibited a black eye for several days after this mysterious encounter but his assailant was never identified, although several persons proudly displayed bruised knuckles.

The plaque, about the size of a small dinner plate, will be dedicated formally with appropriate ceremonies during the evening to be known as Huey Long night.

"Give me but the liberty of the press and I will give to the minister a venal house of peers. I will give him a corrupt and servile house of commons. I will give him the full swing of the patronage of office. I will give him the whole host of ministerial influence. I will give him all the power that place can confer upon him, to purchase up submission and overawe resistance; and yet, armed with the liberty of the press, I will go forth to meet him undismayed. ILLINOIS REPUBLICANS DECLARE THE ISSUE.

Republicans assembling for the affairs of the party at Springfield constituted more than a convention. They formed an assemblage en masse of citizens seeking assurance that there could be a reassertion of Republican principles and a re-establishment of democratic representative government. The delegates to the convention and the officials of the state party met the inquiry by meeting the issue. In the speeches and in the platform were the declarations for which Republicans and many Democrats have been waiting as an outline of political action.

The Republican party in Illinois stands for a return to the constitution of the United States, a return to the guarantees given in it, and the enjoyment of the liberties and protections to which the American people have long been accustomed. The Republicans will oppose the unconstitutional schemes of government until they are abandoned and until the private individual has the assurance that his rights will not be limited by legislation, imposed upon by administrators, and denied by codes, but will be supported and sustained in the courts if any attempt is made to infringe or impair them.

The Republican party stands for constitutional representative government against dictatorship and loss of rights. It stands for law, order, protections, guarantees, and government by men respecting the safeguards of society. It stands against disorders, riots, incendiary pronouncements, unconstitutional laws, usurpation of authority, destructive experimentalism, foment of revolution, and the subjection of the individual citizen to the commands of authority not properly derived and not properly executed. The issue is between these two contrasting conditions and the Republican party in Illinois has stated it.

PANTS IN TEXAS AND FLOWERS IN NEW YORK.

Lawrence Westbrook was reported in Tuesday's TRIBUNE as in the President's party, reporting to the executive on the effects of the drouth, which he had been surveying as deputy emergency relief administrator. Col. Westbrook is a Texan who developed the project at Wood Lake, Tex. If the colonel is still with the President we suggest that he tell him all about Wood Lake. The President will be interested.

Wood Lake was the town 100 miles from Houston built to provide homes for 100 Houston families. Houses on fifteen acre tracts were sold by the government to the settlers for $2,000, payable in twenty years. To provide income above what could be realized from the sale of garden truck, an arrangement was made by Col. Westbrook with a Houston garment manufacturer by which materials and patterns are shipped to Wood Lake, made into overalls, and shipped back to Houston with the manufacturer's label sewed in. The work is done at a price low enough to justify packing and shipping the goods twice and carrying on the manufacture at a distance. There is no guarantee as to the weekly earnings, but the women can work as long hours as they care to.

Mrs. Katherine Budd, the Brooklyn woman who was stopped from making flowers in her home by NRA Compliance Director Straus, was doing exactly the sort of work which the government not only approved of in Texas but actually arranged for. Under the New Deal it is apparently legal for women to make pants in Texas but illegal for women to make flowers in New York.

A WILD DUCK TAKES A CHANCE.

Once there was a wild duck who was as free as the east wind. When he wanted to go places he went places. He knew when he was well off. He spent the summer north of the Lake of the Woods and the winter in Florida. He knew how to take care of himself. He had a good eye, a good head, and strong wings. He was free and well fed, and he remembered that his grandmother had warned him eternal vigilance was the price of liberty. It was an old wild duck proverb.

One day in traveling the wild duck passed over a pond on the estate of a kind man. On the bank he saw an appetizing collation. It was an inviting spread of grain and wild rice. Pickings had been thinner than usual for the wild duck, both north and south, owing to drouth and the drainage of some of his favorite marshes. The free lunch looked pretty good and the coast was clear. I'll light and put on the feed bag, said the wild duck to himself. I'll get a snack of this. This is pretty soft, said the wild duck after he had taken a second helping. Maybe I'd better hang around here a few days. I'll give it a play.

He hung around a few days and the amiable man strolling about came upon him. I see you've got some good common sense, said the amiable man. There's plenty of this cafeteria around. The difficulty is distributing it. This is a little scheme of our own. We're changing things. The wild duck was poised for a takeoff, but he could see that the kind man was full of good intentions. You might add a little more wild rice to the diet, said the wild duck. I'm glad you mentioned it, said the kind man. What we welcome is constructive criticism. Some one is balmy, said the wild duck to himself, but it isn't me.

What you need do to that bird, said an adviser of the amiable man, is to clip his wings. I know them ducks. They'll fly off. Kindness is all right in its way, but you've got to keep him from making a fool of himself. Do you really think so? asked the amiable man. I know it, said the adviser, who then caught the wild duck and clipped his wings. The wild duck could fly about as far as a hop toad, but that didn't seem to matter. He could waddle to his food.

Those down feathers would make a comfortable chair cushion, said the adviser. This is a case of everything going out and nothing coming in. We'll go broke that way. Who does this duck think he is? A rugged individualist? He should learn his duty to society. Before any one could say Jack Robinson the adviser seized the wild duck, neatly wrung his neck and plucked him. Now we're sitting pretty, said the adviser, and about forty minutes in the oven will do this bird about as I like them. But you needn't stick around, he said to the amiable man. There won't be enough for you.

ANOTHER PRICE-FIXING EXPERIMENT FAILS.

One more experiment in government price-fixing is proving itself unworkable. The French government has been subsidizing wheat growers by limiting imports and by fixing an arbitrary price, two or three times as high as the world price, for wheat.

The consequence was a needlessly high price for bread and, therefore, a reduction in the consumption of bread. A collateral result was an increase in the production of wheat. Less was consumed and more was produced. In consequence many farmers could find no legitimate sale for their wheat. Such a situation could have only one result in France or any other country: The farmers moved their grain into consumption through bootleg dealers. News dispatches say that the bootleg price fell as much as 70 cents a bushel below the official price.

Now the official price has been lowered by about 12 cents a bushel. That may permit some reduction in the price of bread and result in some increase in consumption, but it is doubtful if the change will make enough difference to balance supply and demand and thus eliminate bootleg trading. Meanwhile the French are paying needlessly high prices for their food.

This situation ought to stimulate activity by our administration, which now possesses the power to conclude trade treaties without congressional action. France and the United States have more or less complementary economies. We can trade grain and grain products for wine and other French specialties. If the French are not already sick of their failing experiment in price-fixing they will soon become so. The time is ripe for exploring the possibilities of expanding the Franco-American exchange of goods.

A NUISANCE CONDONED.

The Chicago trafic code provides that "no motor vehicle shall be operated upon any street unless the same is provided with a muffler in efficient and actual working condition and the use of a cut-out is forbidden."

This is a reasonable regulation which ought to be obeyed by all motorists and enforced by public authority. But Capt. Flynn, head of the police trafic division, has reported that of twenty-eight arrests for its violation since Jan. 1 not one has resulted in conviction. Fifteen were dismissed by judges of the Municipal court, a course of action which suggests a willingness to put law in contempt for the sake of the votes of lawbreakers. At best it shows a lax regard for law and public comfort. Creating unnecessary noise is not as flagrant an offense as killing people by reckless driving, but it is a nuisance which affects the public health and the comfort and pleasure of motoring. There is no excuse for it in the conditions of motoring in this region, if there is anywhere, and it is a failure of sworn duty on the part of magistrates to condone it. Judge Justin McCarthy evidently holds this opinion and in fining two noisy motorists in the Trafic court on Thursday told them that their offense is a discourtesy to the community at large and has become so common with the growth of motor transportation that it constitutes a menace to health demanding stringent regulation. Nonenforcement of this regulation may be less serious in itself than a failure to punish some other offenses in motoring, but it is a part of the general lax enforcement of regulations which, as Judge McKinley says, encourages contempt for law and all the abuses of inconsiderate and reckless driving.

TAKING ANOTHER TACK.

[Rockford Register-Republic.]

Because of drouth conditions the AAA has been forced to modify regulations as to planting lands retired from production under the corn-hog limitation program, but restrictions on cotton production, under the Bankhead act, will be enforced.

It is now permissible for farmers to plant wheat or other small grains on lands under reduction contracts, but only for use as hay or pasturage and not as cash crops. Feeder pigs may be bought without limit, but must be kept separate from hogs produced on the contracting farms.

Governmental experiments with crop production parallel, in unexpected consequences and unpredictable results, the efforts of mankind to correct the faunal balance of nature. First some bird or animal is declared a pest. Then the slaughter begins. Before long another and worse pest gains ascendancy. Homo sapiens then discovers that the "pest" he destroyed was the natural enemy of the pest he promoted.

So far the highest intelligence of man has been no more effective in the correction of natural law than the simple philosophy of ancient husbandry. Every interference with supply and demand brings new problems and new necessities for further adjustment.

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE-LINE: Back in those days when there were no street cars on North Clark north of Diversey mother used to take us on Sunday afternoons for a long, long walk to Graceland cemetery to our grandmother's grave.

To the east of Clark and north of Newport avenue was a deep woods that included the property where Cubs park is now located. About Addison street on Clark was a toll gate where the word "tax" was first met with and explained. Since then it has become a most common word. Pedestrians didn't have to pay toll tax, which applied only to wagons and buggies and their occupants.

North of Grace street was a lot containing a grassy mound which contained a vault. It was at the extreme rear of the lot and had open work iron doors into which we could peek. We were told it was the tomb of Dr. Truman Miller's wife's mother. Dr. Miller was a factor in our young lives. His home was on Clark at the southwest corner of Fullerton.

Arriving at Graceland we frequently saw funeral processions going in. There were Sunday funerals then. In the old gateway was a bell that tolled solemnly as the carriages and buggies passed beneath. One of the Kids of Lake View.

In the '80s and early '90s McEvey ran a little saloon on Halsted between Quincy and Jackson which was probably the only one of its kind in the world. Unless you were pretty well known you would not be served a second drink. If you appeared under the influence of liquor to the slightest degree you would not be served at all, but invited to leave and given a cigar as you passed out.

McEvey stood behind the cigar case and invited every customer as he went out to "have a cigar." Signs prominently displayed were "No Gambling or Games of Chance Permitted," "No Loud, Boisterous or Profane Language Will Be Tolerated." And they said McEvey made money.

It might be partridge, quail or snipe he'd flush,

Not only game but feeble swimmers he'd retrieve,
Sensing their danger. 'Tis years since I wrote

And still his needless death I grieve.

AS WE CAME INTO The Wake-Line sanctum from the heat outside, entering after attempting as usual to use the wrong one of two keys to open the outer door, we kept thinking of something cool, amber, foamy. We read from the mail a serious poem or two. The thought, now a longing, persisted. What to do? Ah, there it is in the bookcase, that volume which has been staring out at us for the last 10 days, "A Prohibition Primer." We read a chapter. Wonder of wonders! No longer a thirst for something cool, amber, foamy. Instead an unquenchable desire to read a "Dumbbell Pome." Such is the influence of matter over mind, if any.

SQUINT OR CROSSED EYES.

THE term squint, or strabismus, includes not only crossed eyes but any variation from the normal position of the eye in which both eyes are unable to focus on the same point. The term astigmatism, which some people associate with crossed eyes, refers to an entirely different condition.

In squint one eye turns further in or out than its fellow eye. Often the eye which turns has defective vision, but this is not always true. It is thought that in some instances an eye with normal vision loses this after it has become crossed because vision is not employed. This perhaps explains the peculiar fact that persons with crossed eyes seldom see double. They learn to disregard completely the image seen by the crossed eye and react to tests like persons with only one eye. This is true even when vision of the crossed eye remains good. The crossed eye may have perfect vision when the fixed or uncrossed eye is covered, but as soon as it is uncovered the patient fails to use the crossed eye.

Some persons have what is known as alternating squint. They see images alternately with either eye, the other eye turning in or out. In other cases one eye turns in or out only at certain times, being straight most of the time. While paralysis of one or more of the eye muscles is often responsible, this is not ordinarily the cause. In most cases in which the eye turns in there is an error in refractive power—usually farsightedness or hyperopia. Hence the squint develops in infancy or early childhood, when the eyes are first used for near vision. Mothers will often trace the squint to some illness or injury, but these may only hasten its appearance, the true cause being already present. In some cases a congenital defect of one eye is the cause, especially when the eye turns out.

There is a widespread opinion that a child cannot be treated or even examined satisfactorily until he is old enough to read letters. This is not true, as children may be examined by means of instruments such as the retinoscope and opthalmoscope and their refractive errors corrected by glasses at the age of 18 months or less. In this examination drops which dilate the pupils are used.

It is most important that children be examined as early as squint is detected, since in many instances the use of glasses, when prescribed early enough, will correct the squint and obviate the necessity of an operation. This gives the squinting eye the best chance to develop useful vision, and often in later life the glasses may be dispensed with. Exercises of the two eyes together by means of the stereoscope and other instruments are also of service in correcting many cases of squint.

A fair number of cases are not improved by such means and require operation. By one or more operations it is possible to correct nearly every case of ordinary squint, the exceptions being those due to paralysis of a muscle. If vision has become seriously impaired, it may not be restored by operation, but the eyes will remain straight and the appearance is normal. Such an operation may be performed whenever it becomes evident that glasses and exercises are not bringing about improvement. The saving of sight owes much to modern advances in surgery of the eye.

ROUGHAGE.

L. L. writes: For about two years I was given over to the use of whole wheat bread. After my experience I am against its promiscuous use by the general public on the grounds that a weak stomach or intestines will be scraped in due time to the point of irritation, just as if sandpaper were rubbed across tender skin.

1. Is it not advisable to make certain of having a strong stomach before resorting to the use of whole wheat bread?

2. I am not certain that my children have strong intestines, though they are never constipated, and for that reason have ordered them never to touch whole wheat bread. Am I wrong in my contention?

3. Should such irritating food be eaten by any one merely on the advice of a food fanatic?

4. Don't you think that the increase in stomach and intestinal ailments is partly the result of the uncontroled and arbitrary use of these so-called roughage foods which have a tendency to irritate the mucous lining?

REPLY.

1. Whole wheat bread or bran and foods containing an excess amount of roughage should not be used where there is any reason to suspect colitis or any form of stomach or intestinal irritation.

2. Bran is indigestible.

3. No.

4. Cattle handle excess roughage very well. Humans do not.

PULMOTORS.

R. C. writes: 1. Can a man be found on the bottom of ten feet of water and be brought back to life after lying on the bottom for three hours?

2. When the pulmotor squad is called to a drowning and the victim is still unconscious can the life guard tell them to go back where they came from?

3. What is the best method of respiration—artificial or with a respirator?

REPLY.

1. No.

2. Some one who is competent, a physician preferably, should determine whether the heart is still beating or can be caused to beat through the direct injection of adrenalin. If the victim is dead there is no advantage in using a pulmotor.

3. Artificial respirators are sometimes of great value, although the Syivester or the Schaefer method of respiration in most cases is adequate.

PROPERTY INTERESTS.

Chicago, Aug. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A was willed a sum of money. B was trustee, and used the money, after which he passed away. C, B's wife, made a loan on their small farm and satisfied [1] B's claim. D and E, daughters of B and C, were willed a sum of money which went through Probate court. F, from whom the loan was obtained, is now threatening [2] foreclosure. 3. The question is, would D and E lose their share through this foreclosure? They had no part in securing the loan.

F. W. P.

1. Apparently B was a debtor rather than a creditor. We assume that you mean that she makes good on B's obligation.

2. Foreclosure of what? If he received a mortgage, he would presumably be in a position to foreclose on the property covered by the mortgage.

3. B's wife would have no power to mortgage more than the undivided interest that she received from her husband, if that is what you mean to ask.

CONTEST OF WILL.

Chicago, Aug. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. My grandmother died leaving her entire estate of a few thousand dollars to one child, not even mentioning the remaining four in the will. Is this legal, and could the will be broken? 2. She had signed notes for one son so he could mortgage the land grandfather had given him. The loan company is about to foreclose. Could they put in a claim for a deficiency judgment in case the farm sells for less than the loan? 3. This son was supposed to pay rent to grandmother but has not done so. In case the loan company took the land over through sale, or otherwise, would they have to pay this back rent to clear the title? R. M. W.

1. The will stands unless undue influence or lack of testamentary capacity can be proved.

2. They could take a deficiency against her estate, but not against a new owner who had not expressly assumed the mortgage.

3. Not necessarily.

ESTATE EXPENSES.

Berwyn, Ill., Aug. 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Two sisters were sole heirs to their mother's estate, probated in Missouri. No statement of assets or expenses was ever received, but the estate, after all claims, was about $300 in addition to notes still uncollected, amounting to $300. A check for $63 was sent to each sister, together with the uncollected notes, in full settlement. A public administrator handled the estate. 1. Is there a limit to court and administrator's fees, or can they charge what they like? 2. Can the heirs obtain a statement of collections and expenses?

1. The Probate court should pass upon the fairness of the charges.

2. The best way to find out is to try. We are not in a position to say whether you can get it without paying for it.

From Across the Sea

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON.—A remarkable situation has arisen in London offices owing to the shortage of girl stenographers. This fact was revealed by the head of one of the largest employment bureaus for stenographers, who advertised for 1,000 girls and received but four replies. She has been compelled to advertise for married women in the hope of luring them from their homes to fill London's numerous office vacancies.

Business houses are clamoring vainly for clerks and secretaries.

Now the ministry of labor has held an inquiry into the shortage of young office workers, and found it is due to a reduced birth rate during the war. The bulk of clerical work in London business houses is done by girls 17 to 18 years old earning $8 weekly.

There are 5,000 fewer girls between the ages of 17 and 18 today in London than there were last year, according to recent statistics. This is because of the lower birth rate of 1915-'16. Next year there will be 10,000 fewer than there are this year, and in 1936 that deficit will have increased to 16,000. Not until 1938 will the balance be restored.

The shortage of stenographers is so great that a number of large manufacturing firms on the outskirts of London have to run their businesses short of staf. Headmasters and mistresses of county council schools and the large schools which train stenographers say they are overwhelmed with inquiries. They have not enough pupils to fill the posts.

Banks and insurance offices which have always been known to have a long waiting list to join their clerical staf are now advertising in the newspapers for help. One firm advertised every day for a fortnight for a stenographer between 20 and 23 years old, stating "salary by arrangement."

It had one application. The girl was untrained. In dispair they engaged her at $10 weekly and sent her to a school of stenography for a fortnight's training.

THE GOVERNMENT AS INVESTMENT BANKER.

Madison, Wis., Aug. 7.—According to a news item in yesterday's TRIBUNE, the senate committee investigating security firms is much excited over the sale of some $4,970,789,100 foreign government bonds in this country by private investment houses. Thirty per cent of these bonds are now in default.

The committee seems oblivious to the fact that the federal government bought some $11,000,000,000 foreign government securities, of which nearly 100 per cent are in default.

There is a fundamental difference between the private and government transactions. No one was compelled to buy foreign securities from the private investment houses, but every one must foot the bills incurred by the government.

I would like to know by what process of transmutation an act that is iniquitous when committed by a private individual or company becomes sanctified when committed by an agency of the federal government. CURIOUS.

ADMIRAL BYRD.

Robinson, Ill., Aug. 6.—THE TRIBUNE carries many articles on Admiral Byrd at the south pole, and today's issue has a whole column on his being safe. Now, who do you suppose cares about Admiral Byrd? No doubt the Rockefellers who are sending him and spending the money care, and no doubt the National Economy league cares. Did it ever occur to you that the admiral seems to have a lot of health and vigor for a man who is pensioned by the government at the rate of $4,500 a year for getting his ankle twisted in a gymnasium?

There are about 20 million people in this country, war veterans and their relatives and friends, who are fed up to the brim with Admiral Byrd and all he really and truly stands for.

PANHANDLERS.

Chicago, Aug. 6.—In view of the New Deal's promise that no one shall go hungry, I am wondering why there are so many beggars on the streets. In my neighborhood they seek the silent streets, where few people pass along the sidewalks. Naturally, to meet one of these tough looking fellows in the middle of a block, under these circumstances, is a terrorizing experience. One is afraid not to give. ANOTHER VICTIM OF A CODE.

Chicago, July 28.—I wish to express my appreciation for your recent editorial in regard to the NRA and its administrator, Mr. Johnson, and at the same time call your attention to the havoc that has been wrought by the NRA in the jewelry industry.

Prior to the enactment of the code for retail jewelers, when one found himself to be topheavy with merchandise, he either called in a legitimate jewelry auctioneer or his jewelry jobber recommended one, and a legitimate, bona fide auction sale was put on whereby the jeweler's customers got real values, the jeweler turned his slow-moving stock into money, the jobber was paid, and everybody was happy. Naturally I am referring to legitimate jewelry auction sales.

Now, under the jewelers' code, a jeweler cannot hold an auction sale unless he is in dire need or going out of business. This is fine in theory, but the joker in this is that before a jeweler who is in dire need or going out of business can hold such an auction sale he must first apply for and get permission from the local committee who are appointed by Mr. Johnson. This local committee consists of his competitors who naturally are jewelers. You can easily guess the rest. Nine cases out of ten he will be turned down; and then again show me any merchant that wishes to expose his books and his private affairs to a competitor to raise a certain amount of money.

I have been in the legitimate auction business for over thirty years. For that length of time myself and associates have fought everything in the auction line that savored of fraud, and we have never made any contracts for auction sales that were not free auctions, everything sold legitimately for the high dollar. I have made considerable money in the auction business, but like many other people I also have had many losses in recent years, and at my age in life it's not so easy to take. This would not bother me so much as the fact that the NRA has taken away my means of livelihood completely.

I have recently had three cancelations of sales from firms that positively refuse to show their books to competitors in order to conduct an auction sale, and I assure you they are in dire need.

BY JUDITH CASS.

TWO large and important weddings today in the country to the west and north flavor quiet midsummer with pleasant romance. At 10:30 o'clock this morning Miss Mary Callender, daughter of Mrs. William David Callender of Naperville, will become the bride of Thomas J. Donovan, son of Lieut. Gov. and Mrs. Thomas F. Donovan of Joliet in historic SS. Peter and Paul church in Naperville.

At 5:30 this afternoon Miss Catherine Klotz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Klotz of Kenilworth, will exchange her wedding vows with Donald Lloyd Williams of Duluth and Minneapolis on the terrace that surrounds the Klotz home.

Gov. Henry Horner is here from Springfield to give Miss Callender in marriage. Serving her as maid of honor will be her sister, Miss Joan Callender. The bridesmaids will include Miss Ann Callender, another sister, Miss Priscilla Sims, Miss Dorothy Ruttle, and Miss Valerie Haight who has come from Kennebunkport, Me., especially for the wedding.

James Donovan is to serve his brother as best man and ushering will be John Limacher, Francis Dunn, Robert Philbin, and Hubert Zalar, all of Joliet. Following the ceremony there is to be a reception and wedding breakfast at the 100 year old home of the Callender family, Oakhurst, in Naperville. A stringed orchestra is to play until 2:30 after which another will provide music for dancing. Mr. Donovan and his bride will leave on a wedding trip in the late afternoon from which they will return Oct. 1 to make their home at 3270 Lake Shore drive.

Give Many Parties for Miss Klotz.

Miss Klotz and Mr. Williams will repeat their vows this afternoon after Miss Klotz' brother-in-law, the Rev. Austin Pardue, who is pastor of the Gethsemane church in Minneapolis. The round of parties that has been given for the young couple was climaxed last night with a dinner dance given by Mr. and Mrs. Klotz at the Indian Hill club.

Mrs. Pardue will precede her sister to the out of door altar as matron of honor, while Miss Mary Louise Dillon will attend Miss Klotz as maid of honor. The bridesmaids are to be Miss Helen Smith, Miss Jean Rawlins, Miss Dorothy Williams of Duluth, a sister of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Charles D. Klotz of Richmond, Va. The bride's small niece and nephew, Nancy Pardue and Peter Pardue, will be the flower girl and ring bearer.

Wellington J. Brown of Duluth is to act as best man for Mr. Williams. Ushering will be Donald Howard of Winnipeg, Charles D. Klotz, Robert Gardiner of River Forest, and Frank Rhame of Minneapolis.

All of the wedding guests will remain for a garden reception after the ceremony and then Mr. Williams and his bride will leave for the Land o' Lakes in Wisconsin where they are to spend their honeymoon. After this they will go to Minneapolis to make their home.

Out of town guests here for the ceremony besides the members of the bridal party are Miss Catherine Williams of St. Paul, an aunt of the bridegroom; Mr. and Mrs. William R. Williams of Duluth, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Patterson of Duluth, and Miss Mary Hunter of Minneapolis.

Jane Brand Will Be Bride Aug. 21.

Up at Lake Geneva, where every house is filled with guests this weekend, plans for a marriage are being discussed in one household. It is that of the Armin Brands, whose daughter, Jane, and her fiancé, Baron Ruprecht von Boecklin, have arrived in Lake Geneva from New York, where the baron lives and where Miss Brand and her mother have been for several weeks. They went east with the baron at the time the engagement was announced, the culmination of a several weeks' visit that he had been making at the Brand home on the lake.

Tuesday, Aug. 21, is the date set for the wedding, but few of the other details are planned yet. It is to be a quiet home wedding, with Mrs. Louise Rehm, Miss Brand's cousin, as the only bridal attendant. Albert Hopkins, Harry Sutter, and Clemens Brinkman, all of Chicago, are guests at the Brands' this week-end, having gone up for the invitation golf tournament that started on Thursday and that ends tonight with a dinner dance at the Country club, at which the trophies will be presented.

The John H. Hamlines, the George F. McLaughlins, and Robert A. Gardner went to Lake Geneva from Lake Forest to spend the last of this week with the Henry P. Ishams, whose winter home is in Lake Forest and who summer at Lake Geneva. Mrs. Alice B. Hatch and her son, Aldis Hatch, are with their relatives, the William N. Pelouzes and Miss Medora Pelouze, and Ira L. Couch, the Frank Whitings, Miss Catherine Luxen, all of Chicago; Mrs. August Pabst of Oconomowoc and Mrs. George Stark and Miss Eleanor McEwen of Tarrytown, N. Y., are visiting Lawrence Whiting and his stepchildren, Miss Henrietta Countiss and Fred Countiss.

The junior Albert F. Madleners are having a party of twenty at the dinner dance tonight. Among others who will entertain at it are the Ishams, the Henry H. Porters, and the Harry N. Giffords.

Three Engagements Announced in East.

From the east this morning comes news of three engagements of interest to Chicago society. Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Vane of Haverford, Pa., announce the betrothal of their daughter, Miriam Elise, to Lieut. Chandler Wilce Johnson, son of Mrs. Jared Johnson of Highland Park. Miss Vane was presented to Philadelphia society several years ago after finishing at Miss Wright's school. Lieut. Johnson

Skokie Club Tennis Player

Miss Lucy Jane Hedberg will represent the Skokie Country club in some tennis matches to be played tomorrow afternoon, starting at 3 o'clock, at the club. She will be paired with Loring Fiske in the doubles and their opponents will be Miss Mary Reed and Dustin Grannis of the Onwentsia club. The Knollwood club is to have a gala day today with exhibition tennis matches in the afternoon, commencing at 3:30 o'clock, and a tennis ball tonight. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

A MAN who was in Crown Point last week very kindly rang up to give us some Dillinger addenda. It seems that at the Woodward hotel departing guests are given a little souvenir. It is a little wooden pistol made of fiber board, and it says on it, "When in Crown Point, stop at the Woodward."

Civic Pride—Nomenclature—Memorabilia.

THIS strange local pride again cropped out when the proprietor of the hotel had a weather vane made for his hostelry in the shape of a wooden gun and put up on the peak of the roof. This was taken down shortly after, however. The lady sheriff of Crown Point came over and begged, with tears in her eyes, not to have this reminder of the jailbreak flaunted from the housetop.

* *

THERE is, we are told, a move on the part of some of the citizens to have the name of the town changed to "Wooden Gun," Ind.

THE other day as book lovers and manuscript collectors were poring over letters written by Samuel Johnson, Walter Scott, Charles Lamb, Alexander Pope, Thackeray, Lord Byron, and others in the Rosenbach collection, two women stopped for a moment and glanced from one letter to another in bored fashion. Then one of them turned to the other and said:

"A friend of yours (a gentleman, of course) tells me you do me the honor of requesting my autograph. I could scarcely refuse any young lady—certainly not the daughter of your distinguished father. Yours truly,

"A. Lincoln."

MENTION of manuscripts and letters brings to mind that E. V. Lucas, writing in the current Harper's Magazine of his visit to America to find material for the first collected letters of Charles Lamb tells of finding in Chicago a hitherto unknown letter written by Lamb in conjunction with his young ward, Emma Isola. It belonged to the late John A. Spoor. He also found valuable material in the hands of Chicago's No. 1 collector, Attorney Oliver Barrett.

Film Studios Impose Censorship on Writers for Fan Magazines

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 10.—[Special.]—Motion picture fan magazine writers must in future write their articles with the advance approval of the studios employing the film stars they are writing about. The new censorship regulation was instituted today by agreement of the publicity heads at all the major studios represented in the Hays organization.

The magazine writers must obtain studio approval for their ideas before they interview any actress or actor and must conduct the interviews with a third party present.

"Too many things written about movie stars recently have been dirty, exaggerated or represented breaches of faith," John Leroy Johnson, one of the studio officials, stated.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

The postmaster general, James Farley, having recently returned from a trip west early this week, joined Mrs. Farley in New York yesterday and has gone to Saratoga with her to remain until the first of next week.

Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, director of the mint, has gone to New York for a short visit. Her son, Bradford Ross, who has been with her at the Mayflower since early last winter, has returned to their home in Wyoming for the remainder of the summer.

Revised Mae West Film Sent to New York Censors

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 10.—[Special.]—The expurgated edition of Mae West's movie production which started under the title of "It Ain't No Sin" and wound up as "Belle of the Nineties" was shipped to New York today by Paramount for resubmission to the censor board of that state. A number of sequences were altered and a marriage performed in the cleanup edition.

BY ANNA NANGLE.

Robert Young, Madge Evans, and Otto Kruger are the featured names in this film, but Una Merkel made the biggest hit with me. She gets a break in her rôle, and does she make use of it!

As Cassie she's a plain-spoken gal who knows her way around and deals out verbal cuffs to all the little boys and girls in her circle when they get out of line. Most of the scenes are in a bar in Paris where American literati [?] gather to drink brandy.

Ringleader of the group is one Sam Colt, a dashing one-armed newspaper correspondent who apparently lives on alcohol, played by Otto Kruger, whom I'd drather see on the stage.

His stooge and friend is young Pat, just one of those pleasant, likable lads—always handy to take care of the detail work for the glamorous but lazy Sam. He introduces Sam to a pretty little American tourist, who naïvely takes him seriously and gets all set to marry him when he proposes. Unfortunately, the gentleman is sent to America and from there to China by his office, so he sends Pat to tell her he'll have to break the date.

Poor Julie takes it on the chin, but pulls herself together, gets a job and settles down to wait for word from Sam—which doesn't come. Finally news of his death comes through, and after many complications she decides to marry Pat. But on her wedding day doesn't that little rascal Sam turn up, returned from apparent death and China, and from the look of him I think he walked all the way. The end of the film may surprise you.

The film moves quickly and entertainingly, and the dialog is exceptionally good and very funny in spots. There's quite a handsome fashion show, arranged by Adrian, the M. G. M. designer who decks out all that studio's stars.

Maureen O'Sullivan Says She Will Wed Farrow Within Month

LIVERPOOL, England, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Maureen O'Sullivan, motion picture star, left tonight for Ireland, after stating that she expects to be married within a month to John Farrow, writer for the films.

Farrow, who had been in Liverpool, went to Canterbury, where he will assist in shooting scenes to be used in the motion picture "David Copperfield."

Miss O'Sullivan was accompanied by her father. She expects to remain in her native Ireland for from three weeks to a month.

A reliable source in Dublin said that Miss O'Sullivan and Farrow had been denied permission to marry in the procathedral there.

Farrow and Felice Lewin Farrow, daughter of the late Arthur Lewin, millionaire San Francisco mining man, were divorced. They have an 8 year old child in custody of the mother.

Sally to Announce List of Party Guests in Tribune Tomorrow

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

I know you boys and girls will be waiting for tomorrow's TRIBUNE, anxious to see if you've won invitations to our Frank Buck party at A Century of Progress next week. Well, 100 of you won't be disappointed, anyhow—and those who weren't winners will be interested to learn about our next party.

It's an unusually nice one, I think, one especially planned for children, and something that you don't encounter as often as you do lots of other forms of entertainment. You can read all about it and how to win an invitation tomorrow.

The winners will receive individual invitations for the Frank Buck party. So if your name is on the list please notice the address carefully, and if it's printed incorrectly let me know on Monday, so we can make the correction.

Lutherans to Hold Special Services at World's Fair

For Lutherans of several synods, Sunday, Aug. 19, will be Lutheran day at A Century of Progress. Members of the coöperating synods will assemble at a twilight service at 7 o'clock in the court of the Hall of States, when the 400th anniversary of the translation and publication of the Luther Bible will be observed. Addresses will be given by the Rev. Dr. T. F. Gullixson of St. Paul and the Rev. Dr. Ross Stover of Philadelphia. A choir of 250 voices from the North Austin Lutheran church will lead the music and offer several anthems.

The first formal rehersal for "The Pageant of the Celt," dramatization of Irish history from its beginning to 1916, which is to be presented Aug. 28 and 29 in Soldiers' field, was held last night in the Auditorium hotel. The pageant is being given by the Irish Historical Productions, Inc. More than 2,000 persons are to be in the cast. The director is Edward J. Scanlon of the Municipal Opera of St. Louis.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Any woman can look and feel as crisply fresh as this pretty miss if the essentials of summer grooming are never forgotten.

At least one and preferably two of some dainty little triplets floating around town are more than worthy of your attention and your ownership, ladies. Especially if you are as fanatic as you should be on the subject of good grooming during weather that does its darndest to make you look and feel like the traditional last rose of summer.

One of the triplets is a liquid deodorant that will afford continuous protection if you use it a couple of times a week. As in the case of all such products you must be extremely careful to follow the accompanying directions to the letter, and if yours is the type of skin that has little quirks all its own regulate your use of it accordingly.

This excellent deodorant has a sponge applicator that in itself minimizes the chances of irritation. It has an attractive scent and the bottle is a little beauty.

There's a powder, too, that carries on the good work of keeping you fresh. You can use the liquid every second or third night and the powder every day, perhaps many times a day. The latter is a great aid to consistent daintiness if you use it as a dusting powder after the bath, sprinkle it in the shoes and stockings or dust it about whenever you think the perspiration menace is creeping up on you.

A third member of the trio is a cream deodorant for those who prefer 'em to liquids. It's nonirritating and they do say that it doesn't do any damage to the clothing, which is certainly a point in its favor.

These triplets that guard your daintiness are inexpensive and you can buy them in shops everywhere.

Social Service Course Added at Mundelein

Cardinal Asks Training for Profession.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Despite the apparent monopoly of government agencies in the social service field, churches of all faiths have announced special courses for professional training in the social sciences.

At the request of Cardinal Mundelein a department of social service will be opened on Sept. 24 at Mundelein college, 6363 Sheridan road, offering intensive training in this work together with actual experience in the social welfare organizations of the city.

Mundelein college is favorably located for this type of work, since Chicago ranks second in the United States in its numerous charitable organizations.

The Rev. Dr. Herbert W. Prince, rector of Holy Spirit Episcopal church, Lake Forest, has announced that Chicago will be the center of extensive studies in religious social service during the coming year.

The first step, Dr. Prince stated, has already been effected in the appointment of Dr. Hazel Foster of the Presbyterian college of education, as president of the Association of Church Social Workers. Other officers of the association are drawn from the various denominations, and, although the association is national in character, all of the officers are of the city because Chicago is to be the center of the experimental activity.

"After extended investigation," Dr. Prince said, "the committee has concluded that the church has a definite place in social work, but that the training for that work must be the equivalent of training for secular social work."

Dr. Prince attributed much of the breakdown of social work under church auspices to the lack of technique on the part of clergy who attempt to do their own social work and their failure to select competent personnel for social work in their parishes.

"To remedy this," commented Dr. Prince, "there must be established more technical courses in social work in the theological seminaries."

Plans being worked out call for the certification of all church social workers, the minimum requirement for which is to be two years of professional training on a graduate basis.

Finds of Week Are Listed by Style Expert

New Cigaret Holder Has Cotton Filter.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Finds of the week! Fancy and otherwise.

First, the trickiest cigaret holder of the age, a little cellophane tube or holder for fastidious smokers. The idea is sanitation by filtration. The tube or holder is just about half as long as a fag, has two peepholes so that you can see where and how far you have to push in the cigaret, and then a pledget of sterilized cotton. So the smoking cigaret, going full tilt, is on one side of the cotton and you on the other.

The most satisfying result is a delightful mellow smoke free of small irritants and impurities. They are grand new discoveries for sensitive smokers; are nice gifts because they are so low in price [boxed in twenties and yours for a song], and they assure fingers, lips and teeth an unyellowed surface, since all you touch is the moisture proof, color fast cellophane.

Nimble fingered shoppers are always looking for bright ribbons to fashion new neck accents, for otherwise plain frocks will grab the latest stuff almost before it is unpacked. Gorgeous wide crinkled silk ribbon, imported, comes in ravishing color combinations—for instance, a tangerine shade four inches wide, side by side with a stripe of glittering gold and jade green. This glamorous ribbon comes in varying widths in all the most exciting and eye filling combinations and will make the most picturesque neckline accents you can manage.

If you are one of the vast tribe of walking shoe collectors, you will rejoice over some handsome alligator skin models. They are made with a darn good looking though sensible walking heel. The alligator skin has been patched on in clever diamond shaped pieces. What makes them so different is the fact that two ages of the 'gator tribe have been sacrificed for feminine fashions. The baby 'gator, with considerably smaller lifelines showing, is a pleasing and most decorative contrast with the patches of a grandfather alligator with deep etched lines of a gay old blade that knew his way about the lagoons.

Both pump and strap models in a stunning rich shade of brown are especially stressed.

MARY MEADE

★Are you tired of all the old picnic menus? So are a lot of people. And that gave Mary Meade an idea. Recently she jotted down every smart and novel picnic stunt ever devised. The result is her "modern picnic"—beanpole beans, corn cooked in the ground, stone-pit baked potatoes, biscuits baked on a stick, and stone-oven apples! And the equipment is simple. All you need is a handy man and a folding wire rack with legs that push into the ground! And, we almost forgot, she tells you how to make "cowboy coffee."

Her Husband's Fiancee

BY ELIZABETH YORK MILLER

SYNOPSIS.

Cecily Marshall returns after a year's absence to the home in Bellchester, England, where she had lived with her husband, David Marshall, the city's leading merchant prince. Cecily had been a shopgirl at Marshall's. Beautiful Audrey Lowe, who had wanted David herself, and her cousin, Reggie Davies, had contrived to break up Cecily's marriage. David believed Cecily unfaithful and won a divorce from her and the custody of their small child, Rose Ann. The child grieves for her mother. Fearing for her health, Nanna, her nurse, secretly wires Cecily. When David, who is about to marry Audrey, discovers Cecily's presence he orders her and Nanna from the house. Rose Ann develops brain fever and David is forced to send for Cecily. Rose Ann improves. Cecily rejects David's proposal that they remarry for Rose Ann's sake. She takes rooms in Bellchester, with Nanna, and determines to prove her innocence. She sees Rose Ann daily. Audrey has been blackmailed by Mrs. Partridge, the wife of the deceased innkeeper she had bribed to swear that Cecily and Reggie had shared the same room a night they were marooned due to motor trouble. David tries unsuccessfully to break his engagement to Audrey. Audrey, to get Mrs. Partridge to leave Bellchester, gives her a valuable brooch, which was a present from David. Cecily searches for Mrs. Partridge and learns that she has gone to London. David has dinner at Audrey's home.

INSTALMENT XXIV.
IN FEAR OF SCANDAL.

David felt a cold pensiveness about Audrey that was hard to understand, unless it meant that she was going to ask him for a string of pearls for her wedding gift, although they had already decided that it was to be a small car.

At the thought of the car, David's mind flew off at a tangent. He supposed that for the sake of his peace of mind he would have to turn over his car to Cecily and Rose Ann. MacDermott had started that business by saying that Rose Ann ought to be taken for motor drives to hasten her convalescence. One couldn't expect Audrey to share a car with Cecily, and now David began to see that he could scarcely share it himself. That meant keeping three cars, in the end, with two chauffeurs. More expense. Ye gods, where would it end?

"David, there's something I've got to tell you."

"You know that lovely brooch you gave me."

"Yes—what about it?"

"I don't know how I'm going to tell you. I've either lost or mislaid it."

"Really?"

"I've looked everywhere, darling—in every possible place. And now I remember there was something wrong with the catch. I think the last time I had it on was the day I lunched with you at your club."

"That was Monday," David said anxiously. "What did you do after lunch?"

"A little shopping. I had tea at Marshall's—the place was packed."

"And you didn't notice when you got home?"

"Yes, but just for the moment I thought I couldn't have been wearing it."

"You had it on at lunchtime," said David. "I noticed how well it looked against the green and mink of your new costume. Do you think anybody could have stolen it without your knowing?"

"I—I don't see how they could," Audrey faltered.

"I suppose you've been to the police?"

Audrey said no, she hadn't, and David was angry.

"It seems to me you're taking it very lightly. Do you know how much that brooch cost?"

"Yes, I was with you when you bought it. O David, don't scold me, please. It's bad enough to lose it without your getting so furious."

"But I can't understand why you haven't made inquiries—why you haven't advertised——"

"Because I kept hoping I'd find it," sobbed Audrey. "I haven't even told mother."

"If you didn't have it on when you got back on Monday, then you've wasted your time searching around the house. I know you had it on at lunch that day. If the safety catch was defective, then you should have taken it back to the jeweler's."

"I don't know that it was defective, but I had to be very careful fastening it. It was stiff and a little tricky."

This explanation seemed to David to savor of carelessness. Audrey, no doubt, thought he was made of money. He disliked mentioning it to her, but for the past six months his auditors had been worrying him about that big bill of hers at Marshall's. The moment she became Mrs. Marshall he must settle that overdue account, and warn her that what bills she ran up in the future she must pay herself. That was what her marriage settlement was for—not exactly pin money.

"Since you haven't done anything about it yourself, I shall go to the police myself," David said. "And I'll also put an advertisment in the Echo."

Audrey assented in a half-hearted fashion. She believed it more than likely that Mrs. Partridge would have had the good sense to dispose of the brooch in London, despite the fact that she claimed to know some one in Bellchester who would give her a good price for it.

"I wish we didn't have to," she said with a sigh.

"What an extraordinary idea. Why?"

"Because it will be all over Bellchester in no time, even if you advertise with a box number, and there's been so much talk already—due to Cecily's arrival—that I don't see how I can bear any more."

David said: "I think you're being rather tiresome, my dear. Bellchester can go on talking—it can talk its head off for all I care. Anyway, I don't intend to take the loss of £1,500 lying down."

"O, David, if you say any more I—I'll do something desperate."

"Sorry, my dear. But you do see, don't you, that we can't leave it like that?"

"Yes, of course, I see. I'm just as miserable as you'd like me to be."

"Poor old thing! I really am sorry I was so cross. You must try to forgive my edginess."

Earlier that evening the disappointed Cecily had gone back to her lodgings, had supper, and then restively turned her attention to the subject of Reggie Davies, her co-victim.

Unless Reggie had been in the plot, too—which seemed to her most unlikely—then he must be as anxious as she was to have that wrong righted. She thought it was just possible that he might be able to help her get on the track of Mrs. Partridge. Reggie worked in a travel bureau. Perhaps in Cecily's flurried mind there was some unconscious association of ideas between Mrs. Partridge's disappearance and Reggie Davies' occupation.

Cecily knew where he lived, of course, but when she set out for the Grand hotel that evening after supper, her heart failed her.

Reggie probably wouldn't like her coming there, for it was only a boarding house, after all, in spite of its pretensions, and nourished a perfect hotbed of tittle tattlers. Nor did Cecily want to ask him to come to Mrs. Leach's. Some neutral ground was advisable.

She finally found a tobacconist's shop which was just closing down. She bought a box of cigarets of the kind Reggie smoked, and was accommodated with the use of the telephone.

"Hello, who is it, please?"

"O, is that you, Reggie? This is Cecily—Cecily Marshall. I want to see you. It's most awfully important. Could you possibly meet me somewhere?"

"Where?"

"Can you suggest some place? If it's all the same to you, I could come to the Grand."

"O, no, please don't do that." Desperation and entreaty mingled in his voice with the effect of a sob. "It's a little awkward trying to talk to you here, even over the telephone," he added.

Cecily understood. What he said to her could be overheard. Perhaps some one in the office was listening in.

"Meet me at Levy's cafe as soon as you can get there," she said, and immediately rang off, giving him no choice in the matter.

It was the only place she could think of on the spur of the moment, and scarcely could she have selected anything less advisable.

Levy's was a sort of coffee and sandwich house of refreshment, highly respectable, but almost too popular.

However, it possessed nooks and corners and would not fill up until the cinemas closed. This hour would find it at its emptiest, and Cecily hoped Reggie and she would have finished their conversation long before then.

She thanked the tobacconist and paid him. Then she hurried off to keep the rendezvous.

Plant Which Paralyzes Vocal Organs on Display

The dumb cane, an exotic plant whose juices paralyze the vocal organs of any person who partakes of them, is one of the pieces of interest on display this week in the Aroid house of the Garfield park conservatory. Members of the Arum family, such as Jack-in-the-Pulpit, Calla lily and skunk cabbage and other plant life existing in the same conditions of light, heat, and humidity, also may be found in this exhibit, called one of the most noteworthy in the world.

Helen Mack Is Scoring in Lee Tracy Film

Gets Autographed Dollar from Director.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 10.—[Special.]—Helen Mack, who's playing the tragic wife of Lee Tracy in "The Lemon Drop Kid" at Paramount, has been receiving a penny from Director Marshall Neilan each time she has made a perfect take. Today she received an autographed one dollar bill. It was after a crying scene. Neilan wrote on the bill: "I cannot tell a"—and an arrow led to the face of George Washington on the currency—"to my favorite actress—Mickey Neilan." Helen'll never spend that dollar.

Charles Brabin wanted to test Jean Parker, high school ingénue, for the part of the innocent young girl in "Wicked Woman" which he's to direct at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. By mistake his secretary sent for Cecilia Parker instead. Cecilia, who came all made up and would have been much disappointed to be sent home, was put through the test and did it so well that she may get the rôle. As Jean is already under contract, the blow would be lessened if she did miss the part through the accident.

Bill Powell has been entertaining the Boy Scout troop of his 12 year old son, Bill Jr., all week at Yosemite Park. . . . Henry B. Walthall is playing the town drunk in the Lee Tracy-Helen Mack story "Lemon Drop Kid." . . . Just twenty years following the release of "Birth of a Nation," which established him as the outstanding film star of that time, Walthall has been signed to another long term contract. The new contract is with Fox. The Little Colonel's first rôle under the new Fox papers following the current subordinate part at Paramount will be in John B. Erskine's "Bachelor of Arts." His daughter, Patricia Walthall, 17, now in high school, also will be in that film.

Adela Rogers St. John Hyland, who is guiding Enzo Fiermonte's effort to crash films, has herself been signed by Paramount to do the screen treatment of a Damon Runyon original "Marchioness of Queensbury," intended as a Max Baer vehicle. Baer will be here in a couple of weeks to do the verbal and financial sparring which precedes all large artistic efforts of world's pugilistic champions. Gertrude Michael and Alison Skipworth will be in the cast. The story is said to parallel incidents in the life of Max.

Alan Campbell, Dorothy Parker's new husband, has a two-way contract with Paramount; he'll be either actor or writer as the studio sees fit to assign him. Miss Parker also draws a Paramount contract, and a fat one. Her assignment is to write the screen vehicle for a Carole Lombard-Lee Tracy picture from "The Case of Mrs. Ames," an Arthur Somers Roche original.

After having obtained releases from contracts at two other studios, Fox and Warners, during the last year, Virginia Pine, Chicago divorcée, has signed a new screen contract with Columbia studio. . . . Brian Aherne expects to have a couple of hours, and no more, to pack his things between the end of his current movie appearance here as Helen Hayes' lead in "What Every Woman Knows" and his required arrival in London to start rehersal for the new Noel Coward play on Sept. 10.

The place with a swimming pool that Carl Brisson and his wife have rented and are holding their much mentioned lawn parties at is the place formerly occupied here by Clara Bow. Its rental is quoted at $750 a month.

"Home Frozen Delicacies," a booklet containing 50 recipes for refrigerator frozen and ice frozen desserts, is on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street, Tribune Tower, and Hall of Science, A Century of Progress, for 10 cents. By mail, 13 cents, stamps or coin. Address mail requests to Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

BY MARY MEADE.

Ever pickle walnuts? Mrs. W. K. P. is able to buy the imported ones, which she finds most delicious, but she is minus the method of pickling. So out of an old German cookbook comes the answer.

PICKLED WALNUTS.

Walnuts in the "milk stage," before they have formed their hard shell, are needed here. Clean them well, then let them stand 14 days in cold water, changing the water once each day. On the last day, drain and boil them until tender in fresh, clear water. Then boil together two cups of sugar, one ounce of whole cinnamon, and one cup of water, cooking for only one minute. Add the nuts and continue boiling them for five minutes. Pour them into a crock a. d let them stand for three days. Then boil them again for three minutes, and turn sirup and nuts into sterilized jars. If the sirup is not heavy enough it may be boiled a little longer before being poured over the nuts. Close the jars and store them away.

Then here's a tip for the next expedition of south pole sitters. Over in Germany a patent has been applied for which may put an end to the old bugaboo of staling breads. This latest trick in the baker's art consists of freezing the bread with carbon dioxide to keep it fresh. It is claimed that when the bread is thawed out again it's as good as new.

And did you ever hear of the pomato? It's a little cousin of both the tomato and the potato family, and its stepfather is Luther Burbank, famous horticulturist. Every one knew that these two plants were of the same family, but until scientist Burbank came along no one had been able to amalgamate them. This gentleman finally succeeded, giving us the curious pomato, which he called a fruit and not a vegetable.

Although the two of them are backward about being born in the same skin, tomatoes and potatoes do just dote upon running together after they're both grown up. So we humor them by offering:

TOMATO POTATOES

Cook new potatoes with the skins on, then peel and slice them. Pour over these slices a rich, flavorful tomato sauce, simmering them five minutes. Then dish up and sprinkle the top with finely minced parsley.

Or, make it a soup and salad luncheon one of these days. Any luscious fruit salad will do, and with it present bowls of fine golden cheese soup:

Cream of Cheese Soup.

1 tablespoon cooking fat
1 tablespoon flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 quart milk
¼ pound American cheese

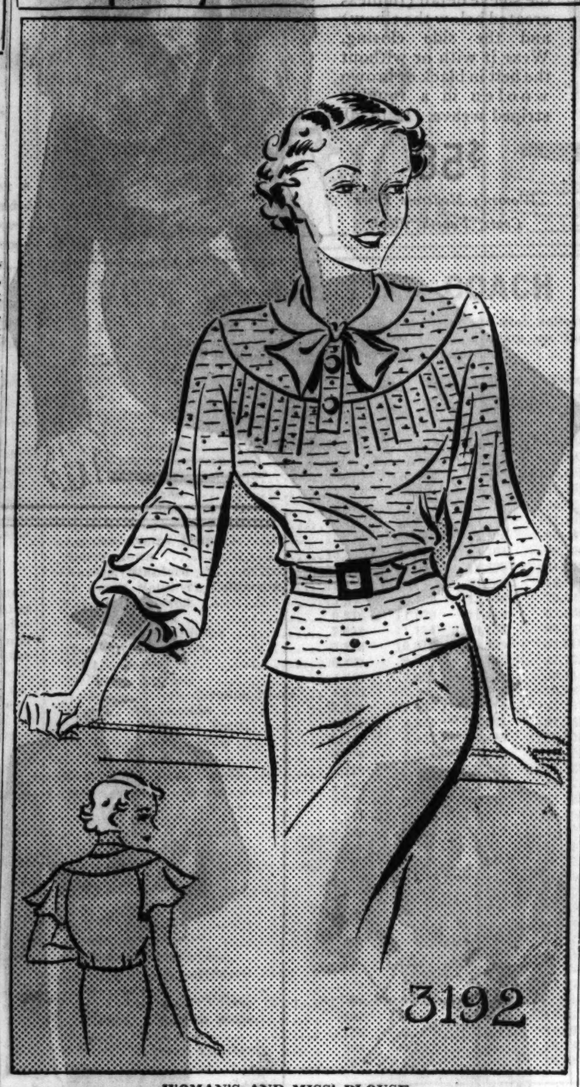

Simmer together the onion and fat. Then add the flour and salt, stirring until smooth. Slowly stir in the milk, then the grated cheese. Cook the soup until thickened and serve with a sprinkling of paprika.

Simplicity Means Perfection

WOMAN'S AND MISS' BLOUSE.

Here is a new blouse that is easily put together. Raglan sleeves and roundly shaped yoke, with the lower part having small tucks that make the blouse fit smoothly to the yoke, are about all there is to it. A tie silk in watermelon red (an off red shade) made this darling blouse, and white bengaline silk made the shirtwaist bowed collar. Pale shades of taffeta, satin, net, and surahs are among the favored materials for early fall wear.

The pattern, No. 3192, comes in sizes 14, 16, and 18 years and 34, 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measure.

Pieced Quilt Has Wide Possibility for Originality

Patterns of this quilt design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices. One South Dearborn street, Tribune Tower, and Hall of Science, A Century of Progress.

Grandmother's Dream.

BY NANCY CABOT.

It is difficult to find a more attractive pieced block than "Grandmother's Dream." It may be alternated with plain blocks, or the coverlet may be made entirely of pieced squares. For the border, instead of the usual bands three or six inches wide, a narrow binding offers a dainty finish.

was graduated from the United States Naval academy in 1929. The wedding is to take place the end of this month.

In Germantown, Pa., Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wriggins are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Betty Roberts, to Fred Tenney Conger, son of Dr. and Mrs. Guy Parke Conger of River Forest. Miss Wriggins attended the Germantown Friends school and was graduated later from Wellesley college, where she achieved membership in Phi Beta Kappa. Mr. Conger is a graduate of Dartmouth college, where he was a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity.

The engagement of a former Chicagoan, Ernest Clayton Johnson Jr., son of Mrs. Ernest C. Johnson of East Orange, N. J., to Miss Jean Swan Hill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rowland Hill of East Orange, is also made known today. Miss Hill is a graduate of the Cornish school and Cornell university, and Mr. Johnson a graduate of the University of Illinois and the Sheffield Scientific school of Yale university. He is a member of Phi Delta Theta and Theta Tau fraternities. The wedding is to be an event of this fall.

Arrange Parties for Tennis Stars.

Social affairs will compete in interest with the games themselves next week at the South Shore Country club when the national professional tennis championships are played on the club courts. Yesterday Miss Frances Weary and Miss Peggy Wiley, as co-chairmen of a committee in charge of entertainment for the visiting players, made plans for a luncheon before the opening games next Saturday, also for a racquet ball that evening at the club.

Continuing throughout the week there are to be more luncheons, teas, and dinners, winding up a week from Saturday with a second large ball. One of the interesting features of the games will be the ten young women and young men, all of them sons or daughters of club members, who will be dressed alike in shirts and shorts and usher at the matches.

Robert Hall McCormick and William Prescott Hunt Jr. are leaving today for a trip through Canada which eventually will end at Bar Harbor, Me., in time for the marriage on Sept. 8 of Miss Patty McCormick and Warren Buckler Jr. of Baltimore.

Mrs. Edgar Marston Visiting Her Father.

The friends of Mrs. Edgar Marston II., in Lake Forest and in town are hoping that they can persuade the former Florence Carr to make her visit longer than she intended it to be, for otherwise she will be leaving within a few days. She came from her home in New York the other day, minus husband and baby daughter, which explains why she is determined not to be away from home long. She is visiting her father, Robert F. Carr, in Lake Forest.

Another visitor who is very busy seeing old friends—she used to live here—is Mrs. Higginson Rogers, who arrived the middle of the week to spend a fortnight here. She is at 900 North Michigan avenue.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

Yesterday we found that when the opening bidder has an unshaded long suit and also three aces in his hand, but nevertheless his partner can make a jump take-out, the question of small slam is hardly in doubt and our concern is with the chances of a grand slam. The opener will respond to the forcing take-out in his own suit. From then on the time factor is assured and twelve tricks are in sight.

Probing the Long Suits.

The concern of both partners is now only to ascertain whether a trick will be lost in either of their long suits. This task devolves on the responding hand, for he knows that the opening no trump bidder has some support for his take-out suit, whereas the opening bidder does not know whether the responding hand has any support at all for his own concealed suit. The responding partner should first deal with his own suit. He should rebid it if it consists of [a] five containing three of the top four honors, or [b] six cards. The fact that he made a jump take-out announced two of the top three honors. This, in conjunction with a six-card holding and the knowledge that opener has at least A x, K x, or Q x x, may be assumed to solidify the suit. If he cannot rebid his own suit on these grounds, he must ask himself whether he can solidify his partner's suit, which he knows to be as good as A K Q x x or A K x x x x. With Q x, J x x, or x x x x he should raise his partner's suit. If able to make neither of these two positive bids, he should say so by bidding no trumps at the level of his partner's last bid.

Responsibility Now Reverts to Opener.

On hearing this no trump bid, a denial of two suits as we have seen, opener must be prepared to sign off at six no trumps. If he has to concede a trick in one of the long suits, surely he can squeeze out the protection in the other. On the other hand, should he hold—

[a] More than minimum support for his partner's suit; for instance, K J x or A J x x or Q J x, he should raise the suit. This would enable responder to bid seven in his suit if he held only x x or x in opener's concealed suit. With ample trump control, both in top cards and in number, he can ruff a round of the opener's suit, two if necessary, and so set up low cards in that suit on which to discard any second or third round losers that he may have in the off suits.

[b] If his own concealed suit is so strong that he cannot expect support in it from his partner, and does not need it, he should rebid that suit. A K Q J x or A K Q x x x would fulfill these conditions. Responder will now know that the only trick likely to be lost is in his, the responder's suit. With three trumps to the tenspot for his partner, he can bid seven in the partner's suit, for the latter will now be able to ruff the responder's suit and set it up to provide discards, if it fails to drop. Only an adverse trump holding of x x x x x against a five-card suit or J x x x against a six-carder will defeat a grand slam arrived at in this manner, and we would all be willing to take this chance especially when the two bidding hands are neither of them abnormal in distribution, so that the likelihood of abnormal distribution against them is all the more remote.

[c] If either hand contains the cards which make it sure that both their long suits are solid, he should immediately bid seven no trumps, as soon as the bidding has shown that this decision is up to him. He should not expect his partner to supply information which he is known not to possess. Such slams should be bid in no trumps, not only because of the higher trick value, but to evade the remote risk of a first round ruff. Then again, if, after all, one suit encountered a fantastic distribution and failed to break, the play can be switched to the other, and a usually inescapable squeeze applied to the opponent who holds the stopper in the first suit. If one of the suits break, as it must on this bidding, you are likely to have thirteen tricks anyhow in top cards without having to use the small cards of the other suit. At worst, an unexpected finesse might have to be taken.

'Widow's Peak' Is Available with Tweezers

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

If you don't like the way your hair grows around your forehead, you don't have to stand for it. Just make an appointment with a salon with a reputation for smart work and get yourself a widow's peak, a higher forehead, or what would you like?

I don't know whether this is an attempt to give the tweezers longer hours of employment, but it is the tweezer that is employed in this new hairline shaping. A right snappy idea, don't you think? A lot of women aren't delighted with the way their hair grows around brow and temples. If tweezing small patches of hair will give a cleaner, sharper accent to the line, a shapelier contour, why not have it? It won't be any more painful than tweezing out the eyebrows.

The idea apparently grew out of the forehead lifting, seen in certain adaptations of banged hair. That front hair was cut back a good fraction of an inch in some cases, giving just the proper space between eyebrows and forehead line of hair to justify the cut-back.

It's a question of just how eligible to the distinction is a forehead not naturally fitted to the widow's peak. The peak certainly is distinctive and, according to tradition, a quite ravishing asset. For some strange reason, many women whose hair naturally takes on the mid-forehead dip have ignored its charm potentialities and brushed and dressed the hair so that it was completely lost to view. I look for its revival now that artificial peaks are becoming the ambition. You, with the natural dip in the forehead, are encouraged to accent it, exaggerate it slightly by cleaning out stray growth to the right and left of it.

Harold Lloyd Visits Chicago; Considering British Movie Offer

The actor said he was considering a million dollar British film offer. He prefers, he added, making his own pictures, because he can use plots he likes.

Dr. and Mrs. Nicholas Murray Butler have left for Southampton.

Miss Helen Rudd Owen, daughter of Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, United States minister to Denmark, arrived from Copenhagen yesterday on the Scanyork, accompanied by Miss Mary Norman Hopkins.

Mrs. Hugh Hartshorne, who is at Weekapaug, R. I., for the summer months, is spending a few days in town.

Hollywood

BY SIDNEY SKOLSKY.

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 10.—[Special.]—Here, then, are a few quick glimpses of the people who write the pictures you see; and also some of their idiosyncrasies while at work.

Ben Hecht, who wrote the flicker "Viva Villa," likes to write in his pajamas, but this is not possible at the studio. He pounds a typewriter, always has the windows closed, and the room is thick and blue with smoke.

You can walk through many offices of scenario writers before you discover a typewriter. It is chiefly the former newspaper men who use them. The others prefer a pencil or a stenographer to dictate to; perferably a good-looking stenographer.

Robert Riskin, who fashioned the screen plays of "Lady for a Day" and "It Happened One Night," always writes longhand. He makes odd drawings on the sheet of paper until he can think of the line to write. He does all his rewriting in longhand and hands the final penciled script to a secretary to be typed.

Anita Loos, whose latest is the new Jean Harlow flicker, "The Girl from Missouri," has an office at the studio, but really does most of her writing at home. She writes at night, in longhand, and must have all the lights on.

Charlie MacArthur generally keeps a saxophone in the room where he is writing, and now and then, for diversion, Charlie will get up and toot a few notes on the saxophone. There's nothing like tooting your own horn.

Grover Jones and Bill McNutt, a standard team which did, among many flickers, "Lady and Gent" and the screen version of "One Sunday Afternoon," have a unique method of collaborating. Grover and Bill sit opposite each other in an office. Both of them have a dictaphone in front of them. One will dictate the dialogue, the other the action. Bill will talk into the machine: "Gladys now enters the room, walks over to the table, picks up the pearls, looks at John. . . ." This is the cue for Grover. He will then utter the dialogue into the machine. By using this method they write a complete shooting script, with stage and camera directions.

Sam Mintz, who wrote Ann Harding's "Gallant Lady," among a fleet of others, always writes in longhand, but he must have a waste paper basket at the foot of his desk. After he finishes writing a page, Sam tosses it into the waste basket. He lets the pages stay there until he finishes for the day.

William Anthony McGuire, now writing "The Great Ziegfeld," can't work unless he has a box full of sharpened pencils in front of him. He will write with one point until it becomes dull and then picks up another pencil and continues. He will keep writing until he has used every pencil. He gauges how much writing he wishes to do by the number of pencils he places in the box. McGuire likes to work best at night and far into the morning.

Wilbur Daniel Steele has the best method, though. He starts writing every morning at 5 and writes continuously for four hours. At 9 o'clock in the morning he stops, his day's work done. He then goes out to play.

Crossness and Correction Not Synonymous

Discipline Most Effective When Tactfully Done.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

I don't suppose there's any mother, no matter how capable, who doesn't have to be reminded of things. We each have our pet failing—our enemy we have to fight. Perhaps we're impatient, or we talk too much, or we're quick-tempered and have to watch ourselves all the time. Or perhaps we're concentrating on trying to correct without crossness. This last is a lesson worth learning.

The tendency to accompany correction with crossness of voice or face or manner is something that I think we can all stand being warned against, not once, but every once in so often. Hence today's column. It's an easy habit to get into—though it's also an easy habit to get out of, too. But it's easiest of all if you never get into it at all.

When your baby begins to walk and it old enough to get into mischief is the time to start learning to do whatever correcting you have to in a perfectly amicable manner. If you will just keep that picture of yourself in mind, you can do it right on through the children's lives, with only occasional slips.

Of course, our ideal is to guide our children tactfully and to substitute the desirable activity for the undesirable, with a minimum of correction. But when we do have to correct, let's remember that we can do it just as well—no, better—if we do it in a perfectly pleasant way.

This not only makes you feel like a nicer person yourself and makes you seem like a nicer mother to your child, but it is much more effectual. When a child is corrected or told to do something in a pleasant voice that takes his doing for granted, he's not nearly so apt to resist the idea, especially if he's in his teens.

I know a grandmother who has developed this art to perfection. I've seen mismanaged or crotchety grandchildren come to visit her—and her way with them is like a soothing, smoothing hand. She'll correct them in the same kind of easy voice with which when sewing she'll say, "Please hand me my scissors." You see how it is? There's nothing to resist. I won't say it always works like magic—but it often does. And what a difference it makes in atmosphere.

RUSSIA TRAINS 18,000,000 MEN FOR WAR SERVICE

Polish General Reveals Huge Soviet Army.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Aug. 10.—Soviet Russia is today prepared to put an army of more than 3,500,000 men into the field, according to Gen. Wladislaw Sikorski, Polish war hero and former premier of Poland. The general, who has access to unusually competent sources of information, reports the soviet government's land forces to consist of the following units:

287 regiments of regular infantry.
100 regiments of garrison and fortress troops.
79 regiments of cavalry.
18 regiments of territorial cavalry.
1,500 batteries of guns of various calibers.
15 regiments of communication and intelligence services.
5 regiments of quartermaster department.
15 railroad regiments.
5 motor car regiments.
60 armored trains.
300 heavy tanks.

These units, the general reports, make a total of 3,500,000 bayonets, 150,000 cavalry swords and 10,000 cannon. But the list is not complete. In his opinion there should be added the special selected army of the G. P. U. [secret police], which numbers 60,000, another 100,000 riflemen who patrol the soviet frontiers, 60,000 more armed men who are now detailed to guard the Russian railroads, and still another 150,000 assigned to guard factories, depots and ports.

Air Strength a Mystery.

Gen. Sikorski admits that it is difficult to correctly estimate the size of Russia's air forces. He says the Bolsheviks are keeping this information secret. The aviation plants and airdromes of Russia are so closely guarded by special detachments of the G. P. U. that it is impossible to obtain accurate information. However, he surmises that Russia today possesses 2,000 military airplanes of different types and sizes. The majority of these machines were designed and modeled in Russia, such as the ANT 3 and R 3 models.

Soviet aviation works are equipped with sufficient technical apparatus to enable the mass production of airplanes, continues the general, remarking that Russia has also an adequate number of schools for the training of pilots, mechanics, and other aviation specialists.

In this connection he reports that the world today can thank Germany for the fact that Russia possesses the largest army in the world.

"When Commissar Chicherin broke up the Geneva conference by forming an alliance with Germany through the Rappalo treaty on April 16, 1922, and followed this with a secret military convention two years later German military leaders began to help Russia to arm," said the general. "Germany hoped that Russia would some day help it to realize its ambition to rule Europe."

Russia and Germany Now Foes.

Today Russia and Germany are enemies and, through ironic fate, the armed colossus which Germany helped to create is now allied with France against it.

Quoting Leon Trotzky, former soviet minister of war and now exiled from his country, Gen. Sikorski reports that Russia has obligatory military service for all able bodied men between the ages of 21 and 40. For the first five years they must perform active field service. The next fourteen years they are listed in the reserve. In this way soviet soldiers are kept in the army for 19 years, with periodical training. And each year a fresh batch of recruits joins the colors.

Russia is able to register each year 1,300,000 men liable for military service. After rejecting 400,000 on medical and other grounds, there remains a fresh army of 900,000 soldiers to be trained and equipped, in good health and physical condition. In other words, continued Gen. Sikorski, Russia has at its disposal 18,000,000 able bodied men between the ages of 19 and 40 who are available for her army.

Compared With Czarist Army.

Under the czarist régime the Russian regular army numbered 800,000 men. Soviet Russia reduced this figure to 562,000. Under the czar this huge army was illiterate and morally and mechanically deficient. The bolsheviks have improved the morale efficiency and intelligence. When the special picked C. P. U. troops are added the Red army now numbers 620,000 men.

"Military drill is on the curriculum of all schools and universities and higher schools have their special courses for training officers," the general says. "In the grammar schools both boys and girls receive instructions ranging from bayonet drill to the use of machine guns and automatic rifles, and especial care is given to a course in gas warfare. This training is absorbed by the youth before they reach military age.

"In case of war the soviet government will be able to mobilize from 16 to 18 million men within a short time. In comparison with the former Russian army the Red army is not only better trained and equipped but can also be much more quickly converted into a fighting machine. Considering the wngth of soviet frontiers which need defense the soviet general staf can place into the field 3½ million men immediately and for every 1,000 men at the front Russia has 750 waiting in reserve. Today if Russia should be obliged to mobilize an army of 4 million men it has sufficient reserves available to last it for two years, even if the regular army were engaged during this length of time."

Polish Groups Will Keep Anniversary of a Battle

United Polish organizations will celebrate Sunday the anniversary of "The Miracle on the Vistula," a decisive battle on Aug. 15, 1920, when Polish armies checked the bolshevik advance on western Europe. Exercises will be held at the Kosciuszko monument in Humboldt park at 2 p. m., according to Z. Stefanowicz, chairman.

BOOKS

'Holy Deadlock' Hits England's Divorce Laws

A. P. Herbert Writes Novel of Supreme Skill.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Holy Deadlock," by A. P. Herbert. [Doubleday-Doran.] The August Book of the Month selection.

FROM the incomparable title to the end of the 372d page "Holy Deadlock" is an example of supreme skill. A. P. Herbert's "The Water Gypsies" was to Americans only a charming and delicious tale of life on the Thames. But to Mr. Herbert and to many English readers it was a plea for a reform. Its supremacy as a novel was due—in the eyes of the cognoscenti—as much to the fact that he had written a top-notch novel as a weapon of reform as to any other fact, for while many pieces of fiction have brought about social reforms, it is a real rarity that a polemic is at the same time a first class piece of creative work.

Mr. Herbert is by nature a humorist and a reformer [he is one of the most popular of the contributors to Punch, and also one of the most persistent of the class who "write a letter to the Times]." He has laughed many an old fogy notion out of the English mind as he laughed into it the use of the Thames river with "The Water Gypsies." But in nothing he has written has the marriage of his humor and his passion for more sensible human existence been a happier one than in "Holy Deadlock."

It is a thorough ridiculing of the divorce laws of England and incidentally one of the rare English books in which America and her treatment of her citizens receives praise, although Mr. Herbert apparently doesn't know that divorce in the state of New York is still possible only on the grounds which cause such hilarious and tragic consequences in "Holy Deadlock."

In England, only for adultery may man and wife sever their legal union, and then only if one, not both of the partners, bring to the court evidence of infidelity. Misconduct on the part of both man and wife seals forever and aye a union which might drive both to the even more criminal action of murder. And besides, England boasts a gentleman called the king's proctor, whose duty it is to see that after a decree nisi the partially divorced behave themselves. He must [or may, on the complaint of even such well wishers as those who write anonymous letters] set traps for the nisi-ed.

With such complications one might imagine how a hilarious tale might emerge from the efforts to put assunder what and whom God hath joined. But Mr. Herbert does something more than hilarious, something touching and at times bordering on tragic in its implications with his guying of the inconsistencies of the law. He studied to be a lawyer and was admitted to the bar, so he writes from the inside looking out, though not, one hastens to add from the point of view of the unwilling prisoner behind the bars of marriage, for he dedicates "Holy Deadlock" to "Mrs. A. P. Herbert on the nineteenth anniversary of her wedding," and is half of one of the model happy marriages in literary England.

In his latest book the two who wish to sever their "holy deadlock" are nice young people who want to be decent, who want each other to be happy, but who after seven years find they can't make a go of their marriage, and for two years have lived apart. After their earnest meeting as social workers, John Adam and Mary Eve [their names are the only fishy thing in the book] marry and John leaves social work to earn more money working for a publisher of school books, and Mary, who looks like "a walking daffodil," goes on the stage and becomes the idol of London. Neither their working hours nor their play times coincide. They respect each other, are fond of each other, but their health, their spirits, their work are downcast by their life together. After two years of living apart Mary has found that she loves an announcer at the British Broadcasting company and John's affections have turned to a calm and comfortable schoolmistress. A new marriage for both of them seems a way to happiness. Mary asks John to "behave like a gentleman" and give her grounds for divorce.

The middle of the book is concerned with John's two efforts officially to spend the night with a lady at Brighton that he may be branded an "adulterer." To tell what happens would be to spoil one of the best stories anybody ever told. But after a good deal of difficulty the decree nisi is granted and in six months John and Mary hope to be able to marry his schoolteacher and her announcer and live happily ever afterward. But there is only the law of divorce, but all legal procedure—exactly where Oliver Wendell Holmes is said to have left it when he made an impressive observation to a lawyer pleading for justice, "This, my dear sir, is a court of law, not a court of justice."

To the English, "Holy Deadlock" is brilliant special pleading as well as incomparable fiction. To Americans it is a curiosity supreme, propaganda which is literature.

An amusing corollary to Mr. Herbert's comic tragedy is an observation in Cicely Hamilton's recently published "Modern Russia" [Dutton], in which she says that divorce in Russia can be obtained for the price of one-half pound of butter if the separatees are good proletarians.

"Prize Baby" Is Story of Pioneer Family in Chicago

"Prize Baby" [Christopher] is a story of Chicago in the eighties, nineties, and early twenty hundreds, of a pioneer family in the grain business, of the poverty-harassed descendants of a Swedish sea captain, and of the gay and gruesome days and nights in the gaudiest of the midwestern cities. It is the work of Norman Victor Christensen, who uses Norman Victor as his only slightly veiled nom de plume.

"Beyond the Street" Tale of Life in Big High School

Edgar Calmer's "Beyond the Street" [Harcourt-Brace] is the first piece of modern fiction to fictionize the varied life within a big city high school, the lives of teachers and pupils, and the subcurrents of their individual lives. The author (aged 27) was once a reporter on the Paris edition of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Mystery of the Week

BY MORTIMER QUICK

In "The Strangled Witness" [Farrar & Rinehart] by Leslie Ford you have up to the minute Washington, New Deal and all, with a couple of murders thrown in for good measure. How, when, and where to lobby is learned as a side line, fascinating but dangerous as the two killings prove. There is a noble senator, a less noble but handsomer one, a beautiful and clever widow, a nice young girl and all the people and things that naturally, in detective fiction, revolve around such a set of characters.

But there is also Col. Primrose, a special investigator, and his soldier servant, Sergt. Buck, who are unusual even in 1934 Washington. They are a grand pair, with no airs about them and pretty smart, so you'll like the book even if the solution of the crime leaves you a little cold. The timely setting is interesting, too, and the story moves briskly along in a readable sort of way.

You'll be fooled less often than are the detectives and you'll be entertained most of the time that you read. Anyway, mystery story readers should by this time have a tolerant sympathy for mystery story writers. How would YOU like to invent several murders per book and then think up some loose character or other to commit them?

What's Wrong with England? Here's Answer

Two Canadian Women Pen Guide to Britons.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON.—[Special Correspondence.]—An amusing book, in which two young Canadian women make fun of their English cousins, is to be published in the autumn by Dents. The authors are Frances Douglas and Thelma Lecocq, and the title of their book is "Britannia Waives the Rules." The book itself is described as a "Confidential Guide to the Customs, Manners, and Habits of Modern Britons," and it claims to tell the traveler "everything he wants to know, the English everything they won't believe."

The fun is point-blank; the authors' method that of complete irreverence. I do not know if many English people will read the book (they may content themselves with the reviews and extracts), but all who have visited England and formed their own conclusions as to the natives will read "Britannia Waives the Rules" with curiosity and satisfaction.

The same firm is publishing what may be described as the perfect companion to another one by the same author. Roger Dataller is a young coal miner who went to Oxford university, and his first book was called "A Pitman Looks at Oxford." Having left Oxford, Mr. Dataller returned to the South Yorkshire coal field from which he came, bent upon organizing adult education among the miners and their wives. In his new book he gives an account of his experiences and shows how the old life looks to one who has escaped from it and returned, not as a complete stranger but as a graduate.

New sharpness is in his insight and old sympathy is mingled with his zeal. Taken together, the two books will complement one another most interestingly. Mr. Dataller is an admirable writer, a keen, acute observer, a man of sensibility, and he is writing about something he knows at first hand. His new book is called "Oxford Into Coalfield," and it will be published in September.

Another young Oxford man of whom I have high hopes is one who writes under the name of John Connell. His new book—it is his second—is called "The Fortunate Simpleton" (Cassell). I know nothing about it, but I know Mr. Connell's journalistic work, which is always fresh, vigorous, and amusing. He is barely 25, and his one danger is that of fluency. He can argue about anything under the sun is an anti-highbrow, a sailor, beer-drinker, and expert improviser of scene and conversation.

When not sailing a boat of his own and writing books he is on the staf of the London Evening News, for which, without turning a hair, he will write the account of his talk with somebody he met in the train or a denunciation of Bloomsbury or an argument with a member of the older generation. His first book was called "Who Goes Sailing?" (also Cassell), and was published a couple of years ago.

ALL-STAR POLL CLOSES; 635,000 CAST BALLOTS

BY ARCH WARD.

The nation-wide contest to pick a coach for the 1933 All-Americans ended last night with a vote that surpassed all expectations. While it was impossible to obtain an accurate count, it was estimated that more than 135,000 ballots were forwarded to the sports department. Thousands more will arrive today from fans who put their votes in the mail late last night.

Beginning at noon yesterday returns were filed by the thousands. They came from Boston, Los Angeles, and hundreds of intermediate points. Nearly every state in the Union was represented. The staf of young women that has been busy for days tabulating the vote will not finish its work before noon Sunday. The winner will be announced in the Monday editions of THE TRIBUNE.

635,000 Cast Ballots.

Accepting the estimate of yesterday's vote as 135,000 and assuming that at least 10,000 more will arrive today, the total vote for coaches will exceed 470,000. Add to this the 165,000 who voted for the players who will make up the team and you have a figure of 635,000 for the entire contest. Nothing like it has ever occurred in sport. The number of returns tops the first all-star baseball game, conducted by this department a year ago, by more than 165,000 and is nearly twice the vote that was received in this year's baseball poll.

Jimmy Crowley, who jumped into the lead yesterday morning, retains first place today, but his margin has been cut from 8,000 points to 1,664. At the pace votes rolled in yesterday this lead means nothing. A man can be first one day and sixth or seventh the next when the nation's football fans go to the polls. The Fordham coach, however, has been the real surprise of the contest. He received more than 14,000 votes Wednesday and Thursday.

Kizer Is Second.

Noble Kizer of Purdue, Robert Zuppke of Illinois, and Dick Hanley of Northwestern, who have been front runners since the voting began, are almost together for second place. Kizer has a slight edge, Zuppke is third, and Hanley fourth. At least two other candidates are still in the race, Slip Madigan of St. Mary's and Harry Kipke of Michigan. Lou Little of Columbia is within striking distance, however. Little received strong support from New York and New England fans. He has a lead of 6 to 1 in Boston, for instance, where The Herald has been soliciting opinions. His nearest rival in that section is Hanley of Northwestern. Hanley became populer in Boston when he used to bring the Haskell Indians there to play Boston college. Crisler of Princeton is running third in New England.

Fifteen hundred votes for Zuppke were brought to the office yesterday by an officer from Fort Sheridan. Kizer was second choice and Kipke third on these ballots. Before the officer had left the department a telephone call from Laporte, Ind., brought the information that couriers were on the way with 8,000 votes for Kizer. Other Indiana centers, notably Indianapolis, Fort Wayne, Muncie, Anderson, Terre Haute, and Lafayette added more than 20,000 to Kizer's total.

They Come by Express.

Hanley's workers in Evanston, who have conducted two voting booths in the business district, estimated their number would exceed 15,000. Scores of Chicago's largest industries collected an enormous vote that appeared to be fairly well divided among Kizer, Hanley, Zuppke, Kipke, and Crowley.

John T. McCutcheon, TRIBUNE cartoonist, got under the wire with a vote for Kizer, who is coach at Mr. McCutcheon's alma mater. He picked Hanley second and Zuppke third. The Kiwanis and Rotary clubs of Lincoln, Ill., a town of 12,000 population, submitted a combined vote that was 100 per cent for Zuppke. The Illinois leader also ran far in front at Bloomington, where the Pantagraph conducted a poll. A. A. Stagg of the College of the Pacific ran second there.

Ottawa, Ill., sent in an express package loaded with votes for Madigan. It appeared to contain several thousand. Final tabulations from Lafayette, Ind., showed Kizer had collected more than 18,000 in the poll carried on by the Journal and Courier.

THE DEANS CHASE PEANUT SELLING BROTHER HOME

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 10.—[Special.]—The Dizzy Deans, the original Dizzy, his wife, and Paul, proved today they aren't so dizzy after all. After a family conference, Elmer Dean, an elder brother, who had arrived today from Houston, Tex., with avowed purpose of selling peanuts and soda pop to St. Louis fans, departed precipitately for the Houston ball park where he began his career as vendor.

The Deans are reported to have taken the position, on advice of Mrs. Dizzy Dean, that Elmer's technique in the stands in hawking peanuts might prove embarrassing or at least place his pitching brothers in an undesired light.

Halas, Bears' Coach, Uneasy as He Sizes Up All-Stars

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Thirty-three football players, the first actual all-American squad ever assembled, have received a vast amount of publicity during the last few weeks. No one denies that these young men from the four corners of the country have earned fame which was reflected in their selection on the squad gathering here Wednesday to prepare for the game at Soldiers' field on the night of Aug. 31.

However, may we remind the thousands of fans, many of whom already have purchased tickets to the game, that the parties of the second part, the Chicago Bears, have at least an equal part in football's greatest drama? The desire to see the boys who made gridiron history last fall on the Pacific coast, in the central states, the south and in the east, is laudable. But these Bears have carved out a chunk of gridiron history including a professional championship and they have no idea of relinquishing their honors to 33 college boys one jump from their alma maters.

Halas Defends Pros.

Which brings us back to George Halas, coach of the Chicago Bears, who still is bubbling over with anger, first because he fears his team will be forced to play under the college forward pass rule and secondly because his boys have been accused, at least indirectly, of having a setup and at the same time of engaging in the business of football only because they are paid salaries.

"It has been said that professional teams are interested primarily in staging a spectacle which will please the customers and that victory is only a second thought," Halas said. "The two thoughts won't jibe. It's difficult to please the public unless your team wins and I can prove this by the receipts of the Bears for the last few years. If only a spectacle, a glorified pageant, was necessary, then the White Sox could outdraw the Cubs if they hired a band and wore purple uniforms. Or, any college game would draw as many customers as any other regardless of ability of the respective teams.

Forget Money Angle.

"The surest way to play to empty stands is to lose games. The next surest method is to have a squad which doesn't put out 100 per cent of its ability regardless of the score. I know right now from the many letters I've received from the members of the Bears' squad that the boys look on this all-star game the same way they regarded the New York Giants last December when the championship of the National league was decided.

"As far as playing only to get paid or to please the public, the players actually don't give either a thought during the game. Can you imagine a half back thinking about his weekly pay check when he's faced by a couple of 200 pound husky tacklers? And the boys who strut in front of the sidelines don't last very long in professional football. Each man must carry his share of the burden.

Pros Stress Offense.

"Football is a great game and any man who ever played it well hates to stop.

"I'll agree that professional football, in the main, is more spectacular than the average college game. It is spectacular because the players are taught that offense is more important than defense. A lead of one touchdown provides no occasion for folding up on offense and playing conservatively for the remainder of the game. This system may please the crowd more. It should, but it's none the less effective football tactics."

Halas also maintained that the idea the all-star players would not have any advantage from previous experience together is erroneous.

Know Various Systems.

"Much depends on the choice of the coach, for it will be his right to select the style of offense," Halas continued. "For instance, let's suppose that Jimmy Crowley of Fordham, Noble Kizer of Purdue or Slip Madigan of St. Mary's is chosen. Without delay a team could be named from the 33 members of the all-star team which would have had three years' experience with the Notre Dame system of attack. An equally strong group could be named if the head coach wished to use the single or double wing back type of offense.

"Consider also that these players are the best obtainable from last year's teams. They have had experience, more experience than many of the present stars of the professional league had when they entered the National league. Regardless of the style of offense they played in college, all learned the various systems in order to stop the attack of the other fellow.

Ed Krause Experienced.

"Ed Krause of Notre Dame was a great tackle and he knows the Notre Dame system of attack, but don't you suppose that after three years of competition against Pittsburgh and Northwestern that Krause also knows the Warner system of double wing backs?

"The Bears don't underestimate the individual strength of the all-star squad. The Bears also know that in two weeks these college boys can be worked into a strong, effective team. For one thing, the coach won't have to take time out to teach his men how to block and tackle. And after all, these are the fundamentals of any style of play."

"MY FINAL YEAR AS A REGULAR," SAYS BABE RUTH

Home Run King Wants Job as Manager.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 10.—(AP)—George Herman [Babe] Ruth, the Yankees' aging slugger, announced today he would complete his active major league career at the end of the present season.

"I'm definitly through as a regular player at the end of this season," the Babe declared.

Ruth, who was troubled with his ankles last year and with his knees this season, now seems fully satisfied that his physical condition demands his retirement as a regular. He played with the Yankees today against the Red Sox, but retired in the eighth after hitting safely.

BABE RUTH.

Would Like Managership.

"I really don't know what the future holds for me—time alone will tell," he said. "I would like to remain in the game as a manager and perhaps do a little pinch hitting on Saturdays and Sundays or days when I figured it would help the gate."

Ruth said he planned to join John Shibe and Earl Mack in a trip to Japan following the world series.

He Won't Go Hungry.

"There is nothing I would like better than to finish my career in Boston where I started. Also I would like to wind up this season by playing on a championship Yankee club and get into the world series.

"I don't know what I'll do next season but I won't go hungry. I have enough money to keep the wolf from the door. I started at $600 per season and at the peak of my career I received $80,000—more than the President of the United States gets."

PHILS SIGN WILSON

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 10.—(AP)—Lewis [Hack] Wilson, former $33,000 a season home run slugger of big time baseball, dipped into the the National league clothes closet for the fifth time today, came up with a Phillies uniform, and prepared to take up an outfield assignment.

With a confident look at Baker Bowl's short right field wall, the man who sat on the National league's home run throne four years ago and who was cut adrift, unconditionally, by the Brooklyn Dodgers only day before yesterday, signed a Phils contract this afternoon and was informed he would get into the lineup tomorrow.

THINK OF YOUR FUTURE!

What will you say when you're aged and gray
And your grandchildren draw up their chairs
To ask of the fight on that glorious night
When the College Stars clashed with the Bears?

Can you talk by the hour of how Schwammel and Sauer
Did battle with Musso and Sisk,
Or mumble with shame that you passed up the game?
A dollar will save you the risk.

Yes, sir, or Madam, for $1 plus the 10 cent tax, you may see the 1933 College All-Americans play the Chicago Bears the night of Aug. 31. You may order by mail from the Football Ticket Manager, Chicago Tribune, or in person at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street; Tribune Tower or Hall of Science, A Century of Progress.

Talking It Over

[Copyright: 1934: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LADIES and gentlemen, this is a fish story that is a fish story. . . . Michael J. Flynn of the south parks is eating a 15 pound muskellunge today that was caught in a unique way. . . . Edward A. Kelly, United States congressman from Chicago, Thursday was a member of a fishing party at Lost Lake resort near Sayner, Wis., that was trolling for pike. . . . Suddenly the bait was caught by a fish that bore resemblance to a pike. . . . It was the tiger of the northern waters, a muskellunge. . . . They played it cautiously, gradually getting it into shallow water because the fishermen had neither landing net nor gaff hook. . . . Ray Perry, brother of Ald. Harry Perry of the 18th ward, was growing exhausted. . . . The fish also was becoming exhausted, but it finally freed itself of the hook. . . . Congressman Kelly, however, was not to be denied his catch. . . . He leaped into the water to tackle the tired muskie. . . . He missed the first tackle, but came back again and again until he flopped the fish onto the beach, where it and the congressman lay gasping. . . . He sent the fish to his friend, Mr. Flynn, who knew nothing of its heroic capture. . . . And no foolin', Congressman Kelly is in Wisconsin for a rest. . . .

Remember "Death Valley" Jim Scott, who used to pitch for the White Sox and later became an officer in the world war and still later a minor league umpire? . . . Well, he now is the preacher of a new religious cult which has its headquarters in the mountains near Los Angeles. . . . Joe Kopcha, who will play guard for the Bears against the 1933 All-Americans at Soldiers' field Aug. 31, will graduate from Rush Medical college on Aug. 24. . . . Lawrence Lawver, end candidate for the Northwestern eleven, has decided this is a tough world. . . . He worked several months on a concrete mixer and is now suing for his salary. . . . Duane Purvis, Purdue's great half back, is serving as a counselor in a Wisconsin boys' camp this summer. . . . He writes that he is keeping in shape by chasing deer and catching porcupine. . . . Forty-one per cent of the favorites at Arlington Park this year won their races. . . . This is something of a record for formful racing at a major track this summer. . . . President John Heydler has started another drive for faster games in the National league. . . . He has ordered umpires, managers, and players to step on it. . . .

The Yale football team will train at a camp near Gales Ferry on the Thames, the Eli crew's training base for the Harvard race each year. . . . Elmer Layden will help organize a Notre Dame club at Ironwood, Mich., tonight. . . . Bill Stewart, National league baseball umpire and National Hocky league referee, is not a Canadian, as many suppose because of his connection with hocky. . . . He learned to skate after deciding he wanted to be a hocky official. . . . The Cubs this spring could have bought Curt Davis, now the winningest pitcher the Phillies have had since Grover Alexander. . . . Frank J. Roach, one of the senior captains in the Chicago fire department, now stationed at 1713 North Springfield avenue, was a widely known semi-pro catcher twenty-five years ago. . . .

Francis Dunne, Hawthorne racing official, used to take his exercise by kicking a string hanging from an electric light until some culprit cut off about six inches from the string. . . . Frankie Harmon has offered Joe Foley $12,500 for the return bout between Frank Sigilio and Davey Day. . . . The bid was refused. . . . Lew Fonseca will show his baseball movies at a convention of high school coaches in Topeka, Kas., Tuesday. . . . Bill Terry attributes his high batting and fielding averages to the fact he doesn't worry over his managerial duties. . . .

Ten Years Ago Today.—Detroit moved back into first place by defeating Boston, 13 to 7. . . . Cliff Woodbury won the three feature auto races at Crown Point, Ind. . . . Ethel Lackie won the national 100 yard free style title at Baltimore. . . . The Senators shoved the White Sox into sixth place by defeating the Hose, 4 to 2. . . . Ed Merkner of the South Chicago Wheelmen won the senior amateur state bicycle title.

Haas Defeats Jones to Win Junior Title

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Golf's latest Bobby Jones, the 18 year old youth from Detroit, played for all the name is worth yesterday in the final 36 hole match of the western junior tournament at the Hinsdale Golf club, but that wasn't sufficient to keep Fred Haas, another and stringier 18 year old from New Orleans, from winning the title, 3 and 2.

The Detroit Jones was the surprise of the event, winning all of his earlier matches with finish reminiscent of the Atlanta Jones. Haas, on the other hand, established himself as the tourney favorite by coming here with the southern amateur crown, tying for the qualifying medal, and disposing of his earlier opponents with true southern leisure.

Haas Comes Back.

Neither finalist disappointed his public yesterday. Jones had his big inning in the morning round. He was 3 down to Haas' great 34 on the first nine, but came with a rush to be 1 up at the midday intermission. Haas reversed this in the afternoon, reaching the turn 1 up and then taking the next two holes. Jones took the 12th, but that was his last stand, for Haas was content with halves on the next three and a deciding 3 on the 16th.

It was the first time in the 21 years' history of the tournament that a southerner had been able to win the title, for the original Bobby Jones never competed in the event, and gave Haas, a sophomore at Louisiana university, a double victory this season.

Jones—Out	455	343	644—39
Haas—Out	345	444	544—37
Jones—In	564	344	4
Haas—In	455	344	3

He alleged that in the spring of 1931 he made an oral agreement to play with the Cubs after his graduation. He said that Rogers Hornsby was manager of the Chicago National league club at that time and William L. Veeck was president.

"DON'T KNOW HIM."

Rogers Hornsby, manager of the St. Louis Browns, last night said he had no recollection of Eddie McGrath, former Harvard baseball captain, who has filed a suit for $20,000 against the Cubs.

Rout Tietje in Eighth with Five Runs.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The down trodden White Sox encountered additional complications yesterday while engaged in their routine labors. They couldn't figure out what was being thrown at them by Irving Bump Hadley, their one time mate. Neither could Leslie Tietje keep the Browns of St. Louis from frisking him for hits that produced an 8 to 2 victory for the visitors. That makes nine times the Hornsby-guided Browns have slapped down the Sox in 15 chances this season.

BUMP HADLEY.

Although Tietje was behind after Harland Clift stunned him with a home run blow in the third, the youthful Iowan pitched fair to middling ball during a good portion of the afternoon's frolic. In seven innings he surrendered only six hits. That performance, however, exhausted his cleverness. In the eighth he folded up completely under the pressure of base hits and before Harry [Call-Me-Slim] Kinzy, the collegian, could end the assault, five men had scored. Tietje's blowup was similar to that in his last start more than a week ago against the same team.

Hayes Bolsters Defense.

The feebleness of the Sox attack, probably due as much to the class of the hitters as to Hadley's deception, was especially noticeable after the second inning. In that round the makeshift Chicagoans stepped up and asserted themselves to the extent of three hits good for one run. However, that was merely a flash. They promptly returned to their usual state and in the four subsequent innings they put only one man on base. He walked. Then in the seventh they finally broke the monotony with a hit and in the eighth they came up with another. A run came from this because the Browns at that stage weren't worried about such an inconsequential item.

There was a noticeable improvement in the Sox defense because of the return to second base of Jack Hayes, who, because of an arm operation followed by a thumb fracture, started in his fifth game since May 8. The sprightly second baseman was involved in nine fielding chances, some of which were of considerable help during Tietje's tenure.

Tied Up for a Moment.

After going hitless in the first inning the Browns came up with a couple of safe smacks in the second and a run resulted, Pepper led off with a long fly to left, but Uhlir, despite an impressive somersault, didn't get the ball. It rolled away for a double. Pepper moved to third on an infield out and scored on Melillo's single to

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 10.—The Cubs, who came to this tropical city last night snorting pennant threats, late this afternoon were wheeled back to their hotel more severely lacerated than they have been in the memory of observers. The grievous state of affairs is the result of a 17 to 3 beating which the third place Cardinals rammed to them in the opening of the four game series.

The Cards made 21 hits off Lon Warneke, Bud Tinning and Roy Joiner, including Rip Collins' 24th homer of the year. They doubtless could have made many more, but a thermometer on the field registered 120 degrees and Manager Frisch, who retired after making four straight hits, warned his lads not to run around any more than they had to.

Rookies Hit Homers.

On the other hand, the pennant contending Cubs would have been shut out except for homers by two Coast league rookies, George Stainback and Augie Galan. Stainback put the Cubs ahead in the first of the third when he scored with English on his homer. Galan got his after the game was well tromped into the ash can.

The Cardinals' main and most brutal assault came in the last of the third when nine runs were chased across on eight hits, including four in a row off Rescuer Bud Tinning, who didn't stay to witness a put out in his behalf.

The Cardinals scored first, making a run after two were out in the second inning. Collins' single, an infield out and Durocher's single did it.

In the first of the third the Cubs felt pretty proud when they went ahead 2 to 1. With two out English drew his second walk off Tex Carleton and came home ahead of Stainback, who knocked his second homer of the year.

Warneke Becomes Wild.

And now listen to what happened in the latter half of the third. Warneke walked Whitehead and Rothrock, and Frisch's bunt went for a hit when Warneke picked up the ball as it was about to roll foul. Hack went to the center of the diamond and ripped the right arm off Lon's sweatlogged undergarment. It seemed like a good move, for Lon fanned Medwick.

Then came a deluge of hits. Collins singled to center, scoring Whitehead and Rothrock. Davis also singled to center to score Frisch from third. Tinning rushed in to stem the tide, but Fullis singled to center, scoring Collins. Durocher's single filled the bases. Stainback let Carleton's single get past him, Davis, Fullis and Durocher scoring. Carleton reached third on the error. Whitehead knocked the fourth straight single off Tinning, scoring Carleton, and his relief work was over for the day.

Joiner came in, and Rothrock was thrown out by Hack. Frisch singled to drive in Whitehead with his second run of the inning. Medwick supplied the third out by fanning again.

Joiner Gets Pounding.

Joiner got the Cardinals out with only one hit in the fourth, but was bruised for five runs in the fifth. Durocher's single, a double by Rothrock, Frisch's fourth single, a single by Medwick and Collins' homer accounted for the accumulation.

The Cardinals added their sixteenth and seventeenth runs in the seventh when Medwick tripled with Whitehead and Rothrock on base.

Manfredo, Former Manager of Young Corbett, Dies

Bien Fait, Blessed Event Favored Today.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Ed Corrigan in person, in whose memory the big race on the program at Hawthorne is named, probably could not pick the winner of the Corrigan handicap to be run this afternoon.

In his day Corrigan not only was the flaming torch of hoss racing but he was quite a handicapper and a plunger when he believed his handicap figures were right. He picked and wagered on many winners.

This Corrigan handicap of this afternoon is a puzzler to even the most energetic handicappers. The Corsicana stable entry from Texas, including Bien Fait and Blessed Event, shapes up as the favorite and no doubt will rule as the post time choice.

They Are Both Consistent.

Bien Fait has won two important races on the Hawthorne program and Blessed Event has accounted for another. This entry, however, will not be a short priced choice by any means. Advising Anna is in the battle under 110 pounds.

In the Stars and Stripes handicap at Arlington, Advising Anna gave all the horses in the Corrigan handicap field this afternoon a sound beating, and if her trainer, Little Jack Howard, the Kentucky plunger, should decide to push in his bankroll on Advising Anna, she will come very close to forcing the Corsicana entry from the post of favoritism.

Late Date Has Support.

Late Date, from Audley Farm stable, also will come in for considerable backing and the J. W. Parrish entry of New Deal and Howard will have many persons willing to speculate on their chances. New Deal has turned in two fine performances at Hawthorne, winning one event while he was beaten only by a head by Bein Fait in last Saturday's renewal of the John Schank Memorial handicap.

Corrigan, when he built Hawthorne, intended that the track on the west side, his own bailiwick, should be a monument to him. So many stormy happenings were recorded in the early history of Hawthorne that Corrigan's name almost was forgotten in the more modern scheme of things in racing.

Corrigan went on to build many more tracks and engaged in a fight with the then powerful Western Jocky club, which he lost, and which found his fortune of a million or more dwindled to almost nothing at the time of his death 10 years ago.

Hawthorne Is Popular.

Just where Corrigan's name belongs in the history of American racing no one seems willing to suggest. Anyway, if there had been no Corrigan there perhaps would have been no Hawthorne, which long has been the turf playgrounds not only of Chicago's west siders, but of persons from all other parts of the city.

The field for the Corrigan handicap this afternoon arranged in the order of post positions:

Sherry Purse Just a Romp for Reservist

The Sherry claiming purse at a mile and a sixteenth was the feature of yesterday's racing at Hawthorne and it brought the most one sided contest of the meeting.

Reservist, from the stable of Mrs. Ray Pollard of Texas, cantered home ten lengths in front of Curb Bit, owned by Sherif Lester Tiffany of Waukegan. Prince Pest finished third.

Curb Bit had enjoyed a long lead in the early stages but Reservist bore down on him like an express train, wheeling into the stretch and went on to win all by himself. He ran the mile and a sixteenth on a slow track in 1:46 3-5. In the mutuels he paid $10.56.

Jocky Dublin Taylor finally shook off the jinx that has been trailing him when he came from far back on 6 year old Smear to win the third race by nearly two lengths. Renaissance finished second and Full Up was third. Smear paid $6.54 to win and wound up a daily double which paid $28.24.

Snobeedo, the favorite in the first race, finished next to last yesterday. Snobeedo was the eleventh straight favorite to be beaten in the first race at Hawthorne.

Cooler weather caused the attendance to pick up yesterday and the crowd and betting ranked with the best of the meeting. The Hawthorne officials expect one of the banner crowds of the season today.

Paul Waggoner of the millionaire Waggoners of Texas mingled with the crowd in the club house yesterday. He departed last night for the yearling sales at Saratoga.

After Miss Vince, owned by Johnny Whitlow of Chicago, came from far back and finished in front in the second race she was disqualified and the race was awarded to Que Gato, a daughter of Blue Larkspur, which races for the French Lick Springs stable. Jocky Corbett, who rode Miss Vince, told the stewards the filly had swerved in and bumped Que Gato on two occasions. Corbett was not punished, the officials holding to the belief that Miss Vince's actions could not have been prevented.

There was a tremendous tip on Fair Image from Mrs. E. W. Schmidt's stable to win the fourth race, but the best the 4 year old Chicago mare could do was finish second, soundly beaten by Bonnie Marita.

MISS VINCE, away slowly and slow to respond to strong riding, began to move up when racing wide on stretch turn, raced to lead with a rush when straightened up in final quarter, and despite her rider's efforts to keep her from doing so, persisted in bearing over, crowding QUE GATO and TABITHA in last sixteenth, for which she was disqualified. QUE GATO took command quickly, saved ground after first quarter, and despite interference held on gamely. TABITHA, lightly restrained in early stages, responded when called upon.

BLUE DAY, improved and closer up than usual in early stages, overcame a big loss of ground, and, after taking command with a rush, drew out to win with speed in reserve. RUBIO, having speed from the start but no match for winner, held the lead for a short distance entering stretch and weakened slightly near end but outstayed MINTON. RESERVIST, going in his best form, began to move up fast after reaching final half mile, disposed of CURB BIT quickly, and came away rapidly thereafter. CURB BIT, given a badly judged ride and much used in early stages, weakened in stretch but outstayed others. PRINCE PEST, lacking early speed, came around tired horses in stretch.

LEMINISTRE [C.Corbett]	115	7	5	$2^{1½}$	$1^{1½}$	2½	$4^{1½}$	H.Herendeen	12.26-1
WESTIRE [J.Kacala]	115	4	4	4^3	$3^{1½}$	$5^{1½}$	5^3	A.Warner	11.69-1
TREK [N.Burger]	112	6	7	8	8	6^3	6^1	Mrs.J.Hanover	4.79-1
INTERIOR [D.Taylor]	102	3	3	$6^{1½}$	$6^{1½}$	7^{10}	7^{10}	Mrs.T.Marshall	12.15-1
CRESTA RUN [H.Burger]	112	2	1	1^h	4½	8	8	Mrs.C.Grayson	75.62-1

Time, :25 2-5, :50 4-5, 1:16 2-5, 1:42 2-5, 1:56 1-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Militia, $38.16 straight, $16.82 place, $5.26 show; Port o' Play, $5.34 place, $3.00 show; Come On, $2.72 show. Winner trained by J. B. Partridge. Went to post at 5:45.

MILITIA began to improve his position on outside after racing last three-eighths, swerved out entering stretch, and bore over near end, getting up in closing strides. PORT O' PLAY, a strong factor from the start and under restraint for seven-eighths, quickly wore down LEMINISTRE, and, weakening after getting to front, just failed to last. COME ON, probably much the best, dwelt badly at the start, lost ground to stretch, where, after saving some ground, he was forced to outside for room and finished strongest of all.

Gypsy Wins Second Lipton Yacht Race

The second race for the Lipton cup championship, sailed yesterday in a fresh northeasterly wind off Belmont Harbor, was won by the class R yacht Gypsy. Fred Wacker, owner of the sloop, piloted the Gypsy over the 12 nautical mile course in 2 hours 28 minutes and 19 seconds.

Mal Vail's Gossoon II., which won the first race of the series on Thursday, was second in 2 hours 30 minutes and 26 seconds. The race course was three nautical miles to windward and return, twice around.

The crew of the Gypsy, reported the yacht's speedometer log registered as high as 8.2 knots, equivalent to nearly 10 miles per hour. Aboard the Gypsy were Phil Hill, Bob Haynie, and Laurie Hendrickson.

In the two races Gossoon II. has scored 13¼ points to the Gypsy's 12¼.

Alert IV. Third.

Dr. Theodore Morris' R boat, Alert IV., finished in third place yesterday, in spite of a split spinnaker. The mishap occurred on the leeward run. Alert IV.'s time was 2:34:59.

In the eagle class race for the Nutting cup, Aquila repeated her easy victory of Thursday, beating the second boat by two miles. Clare Udell, who has skippered George Getz Jr.'s Aquila for the last five years, has lost only one of this year's twelve races. Aquila's time was 2 hours 53 minutes and 25 seconds. Clarence P. Clark's S class sloop, Falcon, again took second place, in 3:07:21. Falcon's crew includes the only yachtswoman in the eagle class fleet, Miss Gladys Ramsey.

Final Races Today.

With two victories to her credit, Aquila has 12½ points to Falcon's 10. The final race for the Sir John Nutting cup, is to be held this afternoon at the Chicago Yacht club. The starting gun will be fired at 2:15.

Yacht Yankee Beats Rainbow and Weetamoe

Newport, R. I., Aug. 10.—(AP)—Yankee, Boston candidate for the defense of the America's cup against Endeavour, Tom Sopwith's British challenger, today defeated two rivals, Rainbow and Weetamoe, in a race of forty odd miles from New London, Conn., to Newport.

Weetamoe Finishes Last.

Vanitie, Gerard Lambert's old and ineligible cup boat, followed Rainbow by three or four lengths, and Frederick Prince's Weetamoe was last.

Shortly after the start the contest centered in Yankee and Rainbow. Yankee gained the advantage of starting in the weather berth, with the other three yachts down at the leeward end of the line. The start was made in a light southwesterly breeze which couldn't have exceeded five knots, but before the finish line it had piped up to about twenty.

Yankee fetched the Race Rock buoy just outside New London, but Rainbow was forced to tack to get around it. Vanitie barely fetched the buoy. About four miles past Race Rock, Rainbow worked ahead of Yankee. From then on it was nip and tuck between them until Point Judith was reached. They were never more than 200 or 300 yards apart.

WORK ON ENDEAVOUR.

Bristol, R. I., Aug. 10.—(AP)—The jury rig under which Endeavour, T. O. M. Sopwith's British challenger for the America's cup, crossed the Atlantic was taken out today and the lofty steel racing spar stepped.

Sopwith, accompanied by his wife, arrived at the Herreshoff yard today and both immediately busied themselves with the task of fitting Britain's latest hope of recovering the America's cup for the international sailing contest next month.

Mrs. Sopwith, with metal polish and a rag, cleaned away stains left by the sea on some of the steel fittings. She will hold the stop watch during the cup races and will be the first woman to serve as an active member of a cup-boat crew.

Sopwith said he did not expect Endeavour would be ready for a trial spin before next Tuesday.

TWO TIE IN TRAPSHOOT.

Yorklyn, Del., Aug. 10.—(AP)—Walter S. Beaver of Berwyn, Pa., Grand American handicap champion, and Frank M. Troch of Portland, Ore., each broke 175 targets today to lead a field of 112 in the Auburn Heights trap shooting tournament.

LONDOS-LEWIS FEUD IMPROVES WITH THE YEARS

White Tells of Their Last Meeting.

Billy Sandow, manager of Ed [Strangler] Lewis when he went about the country headlocking opponents into defeat, never acquired a reputation as a gossip. But it is a fact that Sandow spoke a piece one night which brought on the greatest feud in wrestling, an honest to goodness hate which will be settled on the night of Sept. 20 at Wrigley field when Lewis, now divorced from his talkative manager, will attempt to practice his punishing holds on Jim Londos, champion of the wrestling world.

Like all arguments, the repercussions have drowned out the first detonation. There are at least two versions which differ in time and place. But no matter the parties involved, to wit, Lewis and Londos, the latter abetted by Ed White, now Londos' astute manager, have gone about the country, each in turn shouting that the other was nothing but a bum, a slick trickster, and besides he was just a big coward anyway or he'd get up there in the ring and rassle.

What White Says.

White, who lives, breathes, and dreams wrestling, and has made a tidy sum by his concentration, has this to say about the origin of the Lewis-Londos feud:

"I attended the Lewis-Londos match in St. Louis in 1924, that now famous match which ended in a near riot and a decision for Lewis which was subject to dispute. At that time I had no connection with Londos and didn't suspect that four years later I'd be directing his affairs.

"It was quite a match and St. Louis had gone gaga over it. Londos previously had been beaten after more than an hour's wrestling, but then many honest men had picked Londos to win the return bout, although Jim only weighed 172 pounds to Lewis' 230. Well, you remember that second match, how Lewis got the decision after three hours and how Londos insisted that the Strangler landed a solid right to the jaw to help his cause along.

So Sandow Pops Off.

"I'm sitting there at ringside watching Londos push this big hulk around when Billy Sandow, white faced and mighty nervous, turns to me and unburdens his soul of a lot of fears. Understand, I'm just another guy to Sandow when he pops off.

"'If Lewis ever gets out of this,' Sandow shouted in my ear, 'it'll be a long time before that Greek ever gets another match.'

"Believe me, Sandow kept that promise. And so did Lewis. The Strangler kept his title but he certainly did a swell job of picking his opponents. Londos couldn't get near him and when we followed Lewis to Paris in 1928 looking for trouble Lewis left on the day we arrived.

"In 1930 when the National Boxing association, which then claimed control of both wrestling and boxing, the New York and Pennsylvania athletic commissions began working on Lewis. it was our turn. These commissions suspended Lewis, forfeited his title because he failed to defend it against suitable opponents and then held a world tournament to pick a new champion.

Lewis Sings New Song.

"Londos won the championship, but Lewis still claimed that honor and when he was beaten here and there his claim was split into pieces. Lewis, stripped of his title, began a new song He bragged about the 13 or 14 times he'd defeated Londos, but he never mentioned the big weight advantages he'd had and he forgot about the sidestepping and dodging he'd done when Londos was the challenger.

"So what?" White concluded. "I got even. Every time Lewis wanted a match I'd say yes, but it was too bad that our schedule was full, or there wasn't any promoter available who would meet our price.

"All this time Londos was willing to meet Lewis. He has nothing to say about his opponents and he's always followed my plans. But I gave Lewis just what he'd given Jim. Now I figure we're about even. We will be when Jim throws Lewis at Wrigley field."

At this point it was suggested that it might be unfortunate to patch up such a glorious feud and White snapped back:

"It's not patched up. But the time has come when Londos will gain satisfaction for the boasting Lewis has done about the victories he holds over Jim. And when I see Lewis on the floor I'll laugh as I think how that guy tore my shirt one day when he got all heated up during a pleasant afternoon's conversation. And don't forget that Londos now weighs nearly 200 pounds and that he's the most scientific wresler in the world.

BAER TO FIGHT WHEN DEMPSEY GIVES THE WORD

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 10.—(AP)—Max Baer, heavyweight champion, said today he probably would defend his title next June and not before that time. Here for a four round boxing exhibition tonight against Joe Rice, Fort Worth, and Jack Van Noy, San Francisco, Baer said he would fight whenever Jack Dempsey told him.

Max talked of a pending elimination series to determine a worthy opponent, and said he believed the former champioin, Primo Carnera, would be the survivor. Asked to explain why he would fight whenever Dempsey ordered him, Baer said:

"No, Dempsey is not my manager, he is my greatest friend and absolutely the greatest guy in the world. He gets a certain percentage of my ring earnings and has the authority to tell me when and where to fight."

ALLISON, BELL TO BATTLE FOR LONGWOOD BOWL

Brookline, Mass., Aug. 10.—(AP)—Wilmer Allison and Berkeley Bell, both products of the University of Texas, today won the right to clash for one of the most prized trophies of the turf court game, the historic Longwood bowl.

Allison qualified for his second bowl final since 1928, defeating his doubles partner of long standing, Johnny Van Ryn, Philadelphia, 4-6, 8-6, 6-4, 6-1. Bell turned back Jack Tidball, Hollywood, Cal., 8-10, 6-4, 3-6, 11-9, 6-2, after 2 hours 45 minutes.

It was a dismal day for Tidball, for when he and Eddie Jacobs, Baltimore, lined up against George Lott and Lester Stoefen in the upper half doubles semi-final, the U. S. Davis cup heroes polished them off, 6-2, 7-5. Bell gained his second final with the assistance of Eugene McCauliff, Yonkers, N. Y. They drew Allison and Van Ryn as their semi-final doubles opponents and scored a 14-12, 6-4 upset.

Sarah Palfrey clinched victory in the women's invitational tourney, defeating Jane Sharp, Los Angeles, 6-4, 6-2. In the women's doubles final, the top seeded Mrs. Marjorie Gladman Van Ryn, wife of the unsuccessful semi-finalist, and Josephine Cruickshank, Santa Ana, Cal., another Wightman cup veteran, had an easy romp while turning back Helen Fulton, Chicago, and Catherine Wolf, Elkhart, Ind., 6-2, 6-0.

TURNER CAMP TO BE HOST TO BOYS TOMORROW

The American Boy Turners will be the guests of the Illinois Turn Bezirk at the Turner camp, Algonquin, Ill., Sunday. Canoe exhibitions and tumbling acts are included in the special program arranged for the guests.

The program will get under way at 9 a. m. It will be the first invitation extended to the public by the Turner camp, which was founded in 1915 and has enjoyed a steady growth from a few tents to a camp of 400 buildings.

New York, Aug. 10.—(AP)—The Giants continued their heavy hitting today to defeat the Braves, 6 to 3, and to give Carl Hubbell his 17th victory of the season. The big punch of the game was Mel Ott's 30th homer off Huck Betts' delivery with the score tied at 1-1 in the sixth inning. It started a four run rally that decided the game.

Northbrook Dog Show to Include Special Exhibits

BY BOB BECKER.

Dog lovers in Chicagoland have a treat ahead of them in the special features which will be staged as part of the annual Northbrook Kennel club show on Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 8 and 9. This show, which will be held at the Curtiss-Wright airport, two miles southwest of Northbrook at Lake and Shermer avenues, will include the following popular features of interest to owners of all kinds of dogs.

First, the children will have a chance to walk into the ring with their fine canines and compete for prizes. F. E. Eldert, president of the Northbrook Kennel club, announces that a special children's class is included in the program. This children's class will be judged at 5 o'clock in the afternoon on the first day of the show.

The second interesting feature of the show will be a special English Labrador retriever exhibition by Martin H. Hogan, manager of the Thomas Howell kennels, Barrington, Ill. No upland game or waterfowl shooter will want to miss seeing Banta and Shot, two perfectly trained Labradors, handled by Mr. Hogan, when they are put to work retrieving live birds. The Labrador, the favorite and most popular retriever breed in England, is fast and intelligent, and the two dogs that Mr. Hogan will put on exhibition are an education in what a good retriever can do to help a sportsman get his game. This exhibition is scheduled for 3 o'clock in the afternoon on both days of the show.

The third interesting feature of the Northbrook show will be an exhibition of trained Dobermann Pinschers. These smart dogs are going to show their capabilities at 6 o'clock in the evening of the second day of the show.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 10.—(AP)—Vernon [Lefty] Gomez won his nineteenth victory of the season today as the Yankees pounded out a 10 to 3 victory over the Boston Red Sox. The Yankees batted in the wrong order for four innings before the matter was called to Umpire Ormsby's attention just in time to deprive Bill Dickey of a hit in the fifth. Ben Chapman had batted out of turn three times and Dickey twice before the catcher finally was called out for the error. Score:

TIGERS, 6; INDIANS, 5.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 10.—(AP)—Lynwood [Schoolboy] Rowe, the rangy right hander of the Detroit Tigers, won a 6 to 5 decision over Cleveland here today in an 11 inning contest, which saw the Tigers come from behind once more to run their string of consecutive victories to 10. Rowe drove in the deciding run in the last of the eleventh, hitting a fly to Holland in left field which permitted Hank Greenberg to score from third after the catch. Score:

Cubs Depend on Bill Lee to Stop Cardinals Today

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 10.—Bill Lee will pitch for the Cubs tomorrow. The Cardinals have delegated Bill Walker to oppose him.

Sunday will be Jim Weaver day here, so proclaimed by a delegation of Jim's neighbors from Fulton, Ky., but it also will be Dean day, inasmuch as Paul and Dizzy will oppose Weaver and Guy Bush.

Pat Malone, most gregarious man in baseball, got leave to visit his father in Altoona, Pa., after his victory in Pittsburgh Wednesday. When the final was rained out and the Cubs made a morning getaway the chatty pitcher was left in Pennsylvania. He got here just before game time, followed by reports from the train crew that they never had received such barbering.

Gabby Hartnett worked out today for the first time since he cracked a finger in the first game of last Sunday's double header at Wrigley field. He expects to work in one of Sunday's games here.

The Sox evened it up in their half of the second. Appling slapped a double close to the left field line and Dykes helped him to third on a bunt. With the infield drawn in, Hayes bounced toward short, but the ball squirted off the tips of Strange's glove for a single, Appling scoring. Hayes died stealing after which Hopkins singled to right and Shea rolled to the pitcher. Then Clift put the Brownies back in front by blowing his homer into the left field seats with two out in the third.

Tietje Staves Off Trouble.

Pepper got hot again in the fourth and singled to center with one gone, but received no assistance. Tietje faced another ticklish situation in the fifth, but it wasn't entirely his fault. Appling fumbled Strange's grounder with one out and Hadley took the easy way by sacrificing. As Clift, in his previous appearance had frisked Tietje for a homer, it was natural that he should be walked. Tietje then escaped unscathed when West bounced to Hayes.

The Browns combined a pair of hits to score a run and raise their margin to 3 to 1 in the seventh. Burns led off with a single over Appling's head and went to second on Pepper's sacrifice. Campbell's single to right scored Burns. A double play put a quick stop to this bit of annoyance. The Sox also did something of note in the seventh. They produced a hit, their first since the second inning. Dykes got it with one out. Then with two out Hopkins walked, but Shea bounced into a force-out.

Tietje Goes Away.

Clift had the pleasure and distinction of starting the job that removed Tietje from the scene in the eighth. Clift singled to left. West bunted and Hopkins, after rushing in to make a one handed pickup, threw to first to late to keep the runner from beating it out for a hit. Clift went to third on the play. A pass to Burns filled the bases. Pepper scratched a single to short, Clift scoring. Campbell lined a single to center, scoring West and Burns. That completed Tietje's labors.

Kinzy stepped into the vacancy and promptly scored a bull's eye on Melillo's elbow. This filled the bases. Then Hemsley walked, forcing in Pepper. Strange fanned. Hayes made a fancy stop behind second of Hadley's grounder to force Hemsley, but Campbell scored. Clift, who started the uprising, then finished it with a pop to Hayes.

The Sox had a lot of fun in their half of the eighth but could score only once. Kinzy made the run by beating out an unlooked for bunt and continuing to second when Hadley threw wild. A couple of outs moved him around to the plate. Hadley also issued three passes before retiring the side with the bases still loaded.

Ted Lyons, who won his last game, also his sixth of the year, at St. Louis Aug. 1 by a margin of 10 to 6, will face the Browns this afternoon in the second game of the series. Rogers Hornsby, the Browns' manager, intended to start Dick Coffman, a Sox nemesis.

Al Simmons will be back in the lineup today after his brief honeymoon in Wisconsin. Mule Haas also has promised to start in center field, after a long layoff due to leg trouble.

Infielder Marshal Mauldin, purchased from the Lafayette, La., club of the Evangeline league, reported to the Sox yesterday. Room on the roster for him was made by placing Pitcher Wyatt on the voluntary retired list. Wyatt was recently operated on for removal of a bone chip from his his right elbow.

Mathisen to Play Foley in Amateur Golf

Hank Foley, a member of the Chicago public links golf team, will meet Harold Mathisen, the golfing chemist from Cherry Hill, in the 36 hole final for the Chicago amateur championship at Jackson park this morning. Foley entered the final by defeating Eddie Joyce, 2 and 1, and Mathisen won from Walter Crowdus, defending champion, 2 and 1. Both matches were played over the 36 hole route.

It appeared as though Crowdus would enter the final round when he lead Mathisen, 3 up, at the end of the first nine. Mathisen won the tenth with a par three, and then came back to take the 13th, 14th, and 15th holes, going into the lead, 2 up. Crowdus won the 16th with a par 4, and evened the match on the 18th green, when he took one putt to score a birdie 3. Both Mathisen and Crowdus finished the morning eighteen with 73.

Mathisen Leads at 27 Holes.

The first three holes of the afternoon round were halved, and then Mathisen won the 4th and 5th with a pair of birdie 3s. Mathisen extended his lead to 3 up when he scored his third birdie of the afternoon round on the 7th hole. They halved the 8th and 9th, and at the end of 27 holes Mathisen was leading, 3 up, having turned in a medal card of 32, 2 under par, on the third nine.

The next four holes were halved in pars, and Crowdus won the 14th with a birdie 4. Mathisen managed to halve the next three holes and win the match on the 17th green. Crowdus met Mathisen last year in the final of the same tournament and defeated him, 6 and 5.

Hank Foley in his match with Eddie Joyce, was 3 up at the end of the first nine and finished the morning eighteen with a 2 up advantage. Foley ended the first half of the match with a medal score of 74, while Joyce turned in a card of 76.

Foley Sets the Pace.

Foley won the second and ninth, while Joyce won the 6th hole to finish the first nine in the afternoon with the public links golfer leading, 3 up. They halved the 10th, and Foley increased his lead to 4 up when he won the next hole with a par 4.

Joyce tried to rally during the next few holes but the best he could do was win the 13th and 16th to cut Foley's lead to 2. They halved the 17th, with a pair of 3s.

WASHINGTON NINE WINS PRINTERS' BASEBALL TITLE

New York, Aug. 10.—[Special.]—Washington today won the Union Printers' international baseball tournament for the sixth consecutive time by defeating Cincinnati, 13 to 7, at the Yankee stadium. The losers outhit Washington, 16 to 13, but failed to bunch their hits or to take advantage of Washington's five errors. Score:

NEW JUNIOR CHAMPION

Putts Bother Bobby.

Haas went 1 up again by getting his par 5 on the 558 yard 7th, while Jones was taking 4 to get on and just missing a 20 foot try for a half. They halved the 8th and 9th, Jones making the turn in 39 and Haas 37.

Bobby three putted the 10th to lose it, and was short going to the 11th to lose that also. He was only 2 down after the 12th, getting his par while Haas was dabbling with a trapped second shot. They halved the next two and Haas won the 16th and the match with a par 3, Jones overdriving the green.

The championship was settled with Haas' victory yesterday, but there still remains the matter of the qualifying medal for which four in the starting field of 225 tied at par 71 on last Tuesday. This quartet, which includes Haas, Elton Hill of Urbana, Keith Johnson of Bloomington, and Ralph Ackerman of Chicago, will engage in a 18 hole playoff this morning.

Halve First Hole.

They shared the first hole in par fours, but Jones went 1 up at the second where he got down a 20 foot putt for a birdie. This was nullified and the match squared at the next hole, when Haas got his par while Bobby was short with his first two shots and wound up with a six.

Jones was 2 down after the seventh where he dubbed his second shot and his third wound up at the base of a bunker. His ten foot attempt for a half struck the cup and bounced out. Bobby earned a half at the eighth, although he made a fault putt, but lost the ninth by sending his second in to the woods, and thus was three down at the turn.

Haas One Down.

They halved the tenth in par fours, but Jones regained a hole at the 11th which Haas three putted. He lost it on the next green, however, by trapping his second shot and three putting.

The 13th was halved in par threes, and from there on Haas began to get himself into trouble with Jones taking advantage of every break. Traps cost Haas the 14th and 15th, and the match was even again after the 16th, where Haas needed three putts to hole out. Jones went 1 up for the first time since the second hole, when he reached the 17th with two fine wood shots for a birdie 4. They halved the 18th in par 4, Jones finishing the first 18 with a medal card of 76 and Haas with a 75 despite the fact he was 1 down.

Chicago Gets 16 Places in U. S. Amateur Golf

New York, Aug. 10.—(AP)—The United States Golf association today announced the apportionment of 167 places for which 741 golfers will play on Aug. 21 in preliminaries to the national amateur tournament at Brookline, Mass., next month. The sectional tests, comprising 36 holes of medal play, will take place at 24 courses throughout the country.

The Boston and New York districts, with 112 and 118 entrants, respectively, were given 25 places each. Baltimore with 60 entrants was accorded 14 berths, while Philadelphia's 62 entrants will match strokes for 13 places. Chicago drew 16 places for its 77 title seekers.

The remainder of the qualifying berths were dealt as follows, with the figures representing the number of entrants and places allotted:

Atlanta, 16—4; Dallas, 21—5; Pittsburgh, 22—5; Cleveland, 13—3; Detroit, 24—6; St. Paul, 14—4; St. Louis, 8—2; Kansas City, 11—3; Denver, 14—3; Los Angeles, 7—3; San Francisco, 13—4; Portland, Ore., 8—3; Omaha, 14—3; Dayton, O., 22—5; Buffalo, 28—7; Nashville, 5—2; Oklahoma City, 21—5; Honolulu, 11—3; Orlando, Fla., 19—4.

The survivors of the sectional tests will join 13 exempt players, including 11 former champions, W. Lawson Little Jr., the British amateur title holder, and Rex Hartley, former Walker cup star, in the championship rounds which start Sept. 10.

Two notable absentees among the entrants are Gus Moreland of Dallas and Don Moe of Portland, Ore., both former members of U. S. Walker cup squads. Moreland is suffering from a knee ailment and will undergo an operation. Moe reported he is deeply engrossed in a law course and cannot spare the time to play.

Two outstanding title prospects, Johnny Goodman, the 1933 open champion, and his home town rival, Rodney Bliss Jr., find themselves locked in with 12 other entrants for the three places in the Omaha district.

Kozeluh Plays Vines Today at Knollwood Club

Ellsworth Vines, former national amateur tennis champion and one of the outstanding professionals, and Karel Kozeluh, Czechoslovakian star, will meet this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock on the Knollwood courts Lake Forest, in the second of their matches.

Kozeluh, at various times holder of the principal tennis titles of Europe, defeated Vines in straight sets last June in Detroit. Kozeluh was named instructor at the Knollwood courts several months ago.

Knollwood Country club is located at the north end of Lake Forest, and can be reached by following U. S. highway No. 41. Interurban and steam railways also are available for those contemplating attending the match.

Reinhardt to Play Foster in Golf Final

Mrs. S. L. Reinhardt Jr., Northmoor, and Miss Dorothy Foster, Springfield, will meet this morning at the Evanston Golf club to decide the Illinois women's golf championship. Both reached the title round by winning uphill battles yesterday. Today's match, which will be over 18 holes, will start at 9:30 o'clock.

The outcome of yesterday's semi-final matches, which saw Mrs. Reinhardt conquer the medalist, Miss Rena Nelson, Exmoor, 4 and 3, and Miss Foster defeat Mrs. Lillian Zech, Tam O'Shanter, 1 up, came as a distinct surprise. The latter pair required four hours and twenty minutes to play the 19 holes.

Although a veteran of western and district tournaments, Mrs. Reinhardt was not expected to win from her 21 year old opponent, who last month annexed the Chicago district title and also captured qualifying honors in the current tournament last Monday.

After going two down at the fourth hole, Mrs. Reinhardt rallied to go one up at the turn. Miss Nelson squared the match at the 10th, but Mrs. Reinhardt won four of the next five holes to end the match on the 15th green.

Miss Nelson started off with a birdie four on the first hole to take the lead. She stymied herself on the second, when her putt rimmed the cup and rolled behind her opponent's ball. Mrs. Reinhardt won the hole with a 6, one over par. Trouble in traps cost Mrs. Reinhardt the next two holes. She won the fifth with a birdie three, sinking a 10 foot putt.

Miss Nelson won the 10th to square the match. Mrs. Reinhardt dropped in a 12 foot put to win the 11th with a birdie four. The short 12th was halved in 3's. Miss Nelson sent her drive into the woods on the next hole and took a 7, while Mrs. Reinhardt was down in par 5. Mrs. Reinhardt increased her lead to three up, winning the 14th with a par 4. Miss Nelson was trapped and took 5.

Lead Changes Twice.

The Foster-Zech match was a seesaw affair, the lead changing twice. Miss Foster won two of the first four holes to go two up. She lost the 5th when she three putted. Mrs. Zech's drive hit a shelter on the 6th and she took a penalty stroke, requiring 7, while Miss Foster was down in 6, one over par. Miss Foster was trapped to lose the 7th. They halved the 8th and Mrs. Zech won the 9th to square the match when Miss Foster's tee shot hit a tree.

A stymie cost Mrs. Zech the 10th. They halved the 11th. A 40 foot putt for a birdie 2 gave Mrs. Zech the 12th, squaring the match. Mrs. Zech went one up at the 13th, when Miss Foster topped her third shot. They halved the next two holes. The match was squared at the 16th when Mrs. Zech three putted. She three putted again at the 17th to give Miss Foster a lead of one up, which she retained by earning a half at the 18th.

CAN BEARS TAKE IT? BILL SMITH WILL FIND OUT

Washington End One of Coast's Biggest Stars.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 10.—[Special.]—The Pacific northwest is willing to wager all the fish in Puget sound, that Bill Smith of the University of Washington, playing with the college All-Stars against the Chicago Bears Aug. 31, gives the professional champions all they can take, and a little more besides.

Big—he tops the scales at more than 200 pounds—and handsome—the movies sought him after the football season last year—Smith was one of the outstanding players of the Pacific Coast conference for three seasons.

Phelan Says He's Best.

Coach Jimmy Phelan of the Huskies says Smith is the best end he ever coached. And Phelan saw plenty of good ends when he was directing football at Purdue. Fans will get a chance to pass on Phelan's judgment when the All-Stars trot out on Soldiers' field to oppose the Bears.

Smith excels in many phases of the game. He is a pass catcher par excellence. He can run fast and hit hard, is a good blocker and a star on defense. He can kick field goals consistently, a la Jack Manders of the Bears. What more can one ask of a player?

Three Positions in High School.

Bill was born in Seattle Jan. 3, 1912. When he was one year old his family moved to Vashon Island, just 20 minutes run by ferry from Seattle. His first taste of football was while he was still in grade school. He helped organize a scrub team there and played end for two years. Then he went to Vashon High school and played on the team four years, first as guard, then as tackle and finally as full back. The first year Bill was on the team Vashon High won every game. The last year he served as captain.

In his high school days Bill played basketball, taking all positions alternately in his three years on the squad. He also played baseball in high school for four years, holding down an outfield position.

Smith entered the University of Washington in September, 1930. He weighed 180 pounds. He made the freshman football squad without any trouble and was put in at full back. Bill was shifted to end at the latter part of the season.

In his second year Smith was assigned the left end position and he held it throughout his college career. For the first two years he had Dave Nisbet, later of the Chicago Cardinals, playing opposite him on the right side.

Starts Off Right.

Bill's first game was against Utah. He made the winning touchdown. Against Stanford that year he played 60 minutes and did much to hold the Cards to a scoreless tie. The next year Bill's stock went up when he made the only touchdown against California. Washington lost that game, 7 to 6. The same year, against Southern California, Smith caught five passes out of six, all for good gains.

Last year was the first that Bill did any place kicking. Washington was the only school that beat Stanford in the Pacific Coast conference fight. The score was 6 to 0. The "6" was made up of two field goals, both kicked by Smith. In the U. C. L. A. game the score was Washington 10, U. C. L. A. 0. Washington had a touchdown by Smith, a field goal by Smith, and a point after touchdown by Smith. In the closing game of his university football career Bill's sensational playing against Southern California at Los Angeles led to an upset. It was thought that the Huskies would be outclassed by the Trojans. But it was a bitter battle.

The score was 13 to 7 in favor of U. S. C. Bill Smith made the touchdown for the Northerners and kicked the extra point. His 39 yard run to the goal was the sensation of the game.

At the end of the season Bill was elected honorary captain of the Husky squad.

After the coming all-star game he will play professional football with the Chicago Cardinals.

5 NAMED TO TRY FOR END OF 'WAR' IN NEW ORLEANS

Long and Walmsley Men Refuse to Budge.

New Orleans, La., Aug. 10.—[Special.]—The delicate and somewhat hazardous task of attempting mediation in the armed political squabble between Senator Huey P. Long and Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley of New Orleans was undertaken today by five persons selected at a meeting of 30 of the city's civic and business organizations.

Speakers at the meeting, held in a downtown hotel, carefully refrained from criticizing either of the principals in the bitter conflict over political control of city affairs which has attracted widespread attention as a farcical situation.

The Mediators.

The mediators named are Mrs. Anna Veters Levy of the Business and Professional Women's club; John C. Pooley of the Central Trades and Labor council; Oliver J. Laurent of the Young Men's Business club; Arnold J. Scully of the Louisiana Sugar and Rice exchange, and H. J. Jumonville of the Kiwanis club.

They were instructed to visit both sides in the controversy and "bring about a settlement." They met at once to outline a program of procedure. Speakers at the meeting urged that, in the event they failed to make progress, senior United States Circuit Judge Rufus Foster, a Republican leader, be drafted to act as a mediator between the warring Democratic factions.

No comment indicative of what the brave mediators may be greeted with was forthcoming from the gun bristling camps of either the mayor or the state's "bad boy" senator. Their forces merely looked over their machine guns, bombs, and other lethal appurtenances and awaited the arrival of any enemy who cared to come within gunshot.

Control Registration Office.

The Kingfish's National Guardsmen lolled in the city registration office, which houses the books containing the names of persons qualified to vote in the September congressional primary, in which both Long and Walmsley are supporting rival candidates.

Across "no man's land," a narrow street, the mayor's policemen stood by with their gas masks and machine guns in the city hall and cast malignant glances across the street at the militia. Meanwhile, no inclination for a cessation of hostilities was exhibited by their adamant leaders.

MRS. WYMAN DIES AT 89 IN TINLEY PARK

Mrs. Mary Wyman, 89 years old, died yesterday of injuries received in a fall during the night in her home at 17201 Sixty-seventh court, Tinley Park. She was a pioneer resident of the southwestern suburb.

Mrs. Wyman immigrated from Luxemburg to what is now Tinley Park in 1869, when it was open farming country. Her husband, Henry, whom she married here, died in 1884.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Little Mona Lisa

THOMAS HOLMES, ATTORNEY, WILL BE BURIED TODAY

Funeral services for Thomas J. Holmes, attorney, who died Thursday in his home at 5212 Greenwood avenue after a month's illness, will be held at 3 p. m. today in a chapel at 4227 Cottage Grove avenue. Burial will be in Oak Woods cemetery.

Mr. Holmes was assistant corporation counsel for Chicago from 1895 to 1897, and subsequently for many years served as master in chancery in the Circuit and Superior courts.

He was born Feb. 9, 1860, in West Union, O. He attended the University of Illinois from 1880 to 1882, and in 1885 was graduated from the Union College of Law. He was married in 1892 to Grace Blood, Lacon, Ill., who survives him.

Mr. Holmes was a member of the Illinois and Chicago Bar associations. He served as vice president of the Hamilton club in 1925, and was a 32d degree Mason. He held the presidency of the Ohio Society of Chicago in 1924, and belonged to the Flossmoor Country club.

Besides his widow, a son, Thomas Jr., and a daughter, Mrs. Grace Morrison, survive. Fellow members of the Hamilton club will serve as active pallbearers.

DEAN SENDS OUT OPEN MESSAGE TO HIS MISSING SON

Champaign, Ill., Aug. 10.—(AP)—Dean R. D. Carmichael of the graduate school, University of Illinois, today asked the Associated Press to send out the following message in the hope it might reach his son, Robert Lessley, 23, missing for 68 hours.

"All of the family want Lessley to know that what they most desire is to have him return home. We all, of course, make this the sole consideration."

Young Carmichael disappeared early Wednesday after leaving a taxicab near his home in Urbana. A thorough search of the residential section and university grounds made by Urbana police yielded no clews to his whereabouts.

ANGLICAN CHURCH HEAD IN CANADA TAKEN BY DEATH

HALIFAX, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Archbishop C. L. Worrell, primate of the Church of England in Canada, died in a hospital tonight. He had been ill for three weeks.

Archbishop Worrell was elected primate of all Canada by the House of Bishops of the general synod of the Church of England in Canada on Sept. 23, 1931. He succeeded the Rev. S. P. Matheson of Winnipeg, who retired in 1930.

He became a bishop of Nova Scotia in 1904 after 23 years of service in the church. He held the post of archbishop of Nova Scotia since 1915. He married twice.

Dr. R. B. Teusler, Head of Tokio Medical Center, Dies

TOKIO, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Dr. Rudolf Bolling Teusler, 58, founder and head of St. Luke's International medical center here, the foremost American medical enterprise in the orient, died today. His death, of heart disease, took place in the new St. Luke's hospital, completion of which last year crowned Dr. Teusler's 35-year career as a medical missionary to Japan. Dr. Teusler was a cousin of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson.

GEORGE W. HILL, FILM DIRECTOR, SLAYS HIMSELF

Though he left no notes explaining his act, police expressed the belief that it was the result of ill health which followed an automobile accident two months ago, in which the director was severely injured. At that time he swerved his car into a telephone pole to avoid hitting a group of children.

Hill's unclad body, with a bullet wound in the head, was found by his valet, Eugene F. Dorn. Los Angeles coroner's officers conducted an immediate investigation of the shooting and asserted that the fatal wound was self-inflicted.

Attended Dressler Funeral.

Only last week the director, who was 40 years old, attended the funeral of Marie Dressler and accompanied his former wife, Miss Marion, to the cemetery. He had directed Miss Dressler's screen success, "Min and Bill," and Miss Marion wrote the scenario.

Hill married Miss Marion, who was the widow of Fred Thompson, western film star, at Phoenix, Ariz., in January, 1930. Jack London, the novelist, had introduced the couple 17 years before. They separated in 1931, and last October, while Miss Marion was on a tour of Europe, Hill obtained a divorce in Reno, Nev., on grounds of cruelty.

He had been in the motion picture business since 1908, when he began as a stage hand under David W. Griffith in Los Angeles. Later he became a cameraman, then turned to writing, and finally to directing.

HARVEY GUNSUL FUNERAL TO BE HELD ON MONDAY

Funeral services for D. Harvey Gunsul, 52 years old, a leading downstate criminal lawyer, will be held at 10 a. m. Monday in the chapel at 332 Downer place, Aurora. Mr. Gunsul died Thursday in his Aurora home after a long illness. Burial will be in Riverside cemetery, Aurora.

Mr. Gunsul was graduated in 1905 from the Northwestern university law school. As a student he played center and tackle on the university football team. He was admitted to the bar in 1906.

Part of his reputation as a criminal lawyer was derived from his defense of Warren Lincoln, now serving a life term in Joliet penitentiary for slaying his wife and her brother. Lincoln sealed his victims' heads in a concrete block, and his escape from the death penalty was regarded as a triumph for his lawyer.

Mr. Gunsul is survived by his widow, Maude, a son 17 years old, and a daughter, 15.

MRS. RAINEY, 57, CONGRESSMAN'S WIDOW, IS DEAD

Mrs. Ethel Rainey, 57 years old, widow of Congressman John W. Rainey of the Fifth congressional district, died yesterday in St. Mary of Nazareth hospital after a brief illness. She was a daughter of the late John B. McMahon, owner of the McMahon Biscuit company. Mrs. Rainey was born in Chicago and spent her entire life here. She is survived by three daughters, Margaret Catherine, Mary Rita, and Virginia. The funeral is to be at 9:30 a. m. Monday from the family residence at 2100 Lincoln Park West to Our Lady of Mount Carmel church, 743 Belmont avenue. Burial is to be in Calvary cemetery.

Mrs. Jessie M. Wernicke, Welfare Worker, Dead

Mrs. Jessie M. Wernicke, 58 years old, 9132 South Bishop street, a case worker for the Cook county bureau of public welfare since 1913, suffered a heart attack in a corridor of the county building yesterday and died soon afterward in the office of the county recorder. Mrs. Wernicke for the last few years had been in charge of court service for the bureau in the Criminal court. She is survived by a daughter, Winifred W., a school teacher.

Mrs. Lydia E. Hall, 73, Dies at Home in River Forest

Mrs. Lydia E. Hall, 73 years old, was found dead yesterday morning in bed at her home, 147 Franklin avenue, River Forest. Death apparently was due to heart disease. Mrs. Hall is survived by two sons, one of whom is Frank R. Hall of the composing room staff of THE TRIBUNE. Funeral services will be held at Red Oak, Ia.

Mayor James M. Allison of Lincoln, Ill., Is Dead

Sponsors of the Sunday Sentinels Serenade on NBC are engaging a group of notable guest artists to supplement the orchestra and singers under the direction of Joe Koestner on their fall programs. Jessica Dragonette, who first appeared on the air for the Sentinels' sponsor as a comparatively obscure singer seven years ago, will come to Chicago to sing on the seventh anniversary program Oct. 7. Others signed for appearances are Irene Castle McLaughlin; Albert Spalding, violinist, and Irvin S. Cobb, humorist. Mme. Schumann-Heink is to be soloist at Christmas time. Pictorial advertisements in newspapers and magazines will herald the appearance of these and other artists yet to be selected.

The Two Doctors of radio—Russell Pratt and Ransom Sherman—who have been dishing out big doses of nonsense day after day, year after year, almost since the beginning of the broadcasting business, are going to leave Chicago. In about a month they will move to St. Louis, where they have accepted a long term contract with KMOX, 50,000 watt affiliate of the Columbia system. Their mad banter before the microphone will be much missed hereabouts unless CBS sees fit to outlet the programs through local stations. Pratt and Sherman have been heard for the last two years over KYW, on which they got their radio start 11 years ago. For many years they were heard over WMAQ and on NBC.

"You bring 'em back alive; I send 'em back alive," Freeman Gosden [Amos] yesterday wired Frank Buck, who is pinch hitting for him and Andy on the air. "I am today expressing you one live black bear. Our secretary, Miss Summa, will uncrate the bear for you if you are afraid," the telegram concluded, chiding the trapper and handler of man-eating tigers, sobras, and other jungle killers. Gosden has been bear hunting for the last week near Juneau, Alaska.

If you missed the Compinsky trio the other day on their regular CBS program you may be interested in the reason for their absence. They were in the Albany, N. Y., jail. They drove up the Hudson early in the day to play a little Bach, Beethoven, and Brahms, which is no crime in Albany. An overheated car delayed them on the outskirts of the city. As they parked it they called to an old lady sitting on a porch, "Keep an eye on it, it's hot." The old lady called the firemen, who responded. She repeated what she had been told. Even in Albany the firemen know that "hot" means stolen. So they called the police. When the police got there they saw the musicians with their violin cases and suspected they were gangsters. They clapped the Compinskys into jail just long enough so they missed their New York broadcast.

Jesse Crawford, the "poet of the organ," heard over W-G-N from the Swift bridge at the Fair, will open an NBC series to be titled "Melody Parade" at 10:15 Sunday evening. Crawford will play the organ in the WENR studios in the Civic Opera house but the local outlet will be KYW.

RUSSIA TO START REGULAR SERVICE OF "AIR TRAINS"

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

MOSCOW, Aug. 10.—"Air trains"—gliders towed by planes—will be put into regular transport service on a daily schedule this month, it was learned today from officials of the Moscow-Kharkov airline. This will be the first practical use of glider trains in the soviet union and follows extensive successful experimentation in this field.

The first train, consisting of an ordinary biplane towing two gliders, will take off from Moscow on Aug. 18 as the feature of aviation day, carrying mail on a 450 mile run to Kharkov with one stop midway. It is expected to remain overnight and take off the next day on the return trip to Moscow. Later it is expected to make the round trip in one day.

If this new service works out as planned, air trains will be used on other lines and freight as well as mail will be carried. The Moscow glider factory has perfected a new type containing a small motor having insufficient power to take the glider off the ground, but enough to keep it in flight after a plane has towed it up and cut it loose in the air.

John Becker, Ex-Sergeant of Chicago Police, Dies

John Becker, 74 years old, a retired Chicago police sergeant, died after a month's illness yesterday at Aurora in the home of a friend, Samuel Keil, 903 Front street. Mr. Becker went to Aurora to attend the funeral of a friend, Mrs. Gertrude Snyder, and was taken ill. His home in Chicago was at 2541 Argyle street. CAMP ALGONQUIN AIDED BY WOMEN AT COUNTRY CLUB

Bridge Games Provide Outings for Needy.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

The Women's auxiliary of the Mission Hills Country club through a series of bridge parties collected $38.40. This they sent yesterday to the Camp Algonquin fund with the wish that "the mothers this takes care of will have a most enjoyable time."

Four mothers from hot crowded sections of Chicago will be vacation guests for two weeks at Camp Algonquin because of the thoughtfulness of the Mission Hills women. While at camp these mothers will not have to take care of their children, will go on picnics, row boats, fish in the Fox river, have afternoon tea, go to sewing parties, attend all-camp dancing frolics and, if they prefer, sit on the tree-shaded porches and simply enjoy doing nothing at all.

Two other gifts to the camp fund were $10 from Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Slee, and $5 from "a friend." This gives the camp fund a grand total of $6,096.66.

A total of $25 was received by the free ice fund and because of it several families will be able to keep milk fresh and sweet for tiny babies. There were gifts of $5 each from Mrs. E. E. Levy, Grace F. Pajeau, Mary H. Jacob, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Slee, and "a friend." The free ice fund now has a total of $6,493.79. Gifts to both funds should be sent to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE, Tribune Tower.

LEO WORMSER MEMORIAL TO BE TOMORROW

Memorial services for Leo Wormser, Chicago attorney and personal representative of the late Julius Rosenwald, will be held at 10 a. m. tomorrow in the chapel at 936 East 47th street. Mr. Wormser, 50 years old, was killed Thursday near Reed City, Mich., in an automobile accident.

The body of Mr. Wormser was brought back to Chicago yesterday by his daughter, Elaine, 22 years old, who was driving the car on U. S. highway 131 at the time of the accident. She swerved out to avoid another car, and her automobile overturned. She and her father were bound for Charlevoix, Mich., to visit Mr. Wormser's mother.

A native of Chicago, Mr. Wormser was a graduate of the Armour Institute of Technology and Harvard law school. He was secretary of the Museum of Science and Industry in Jackson park, and was associated in the Rosenwald philanthropies.

He is survived by his widow, the former Helen E. Goldsmith of Cincinnati; his mother, and his daughter. Burial at Mount Mayriv will be private.

INDIAN GIRL AND MATE KILLED BY HER 2D HUSBAND

Vernal, Utah, Aug. 10.—(AP)—A 16 year old Indian girl and her Ute husband, whom she married a week ago in a white man's wedding ceremony, were shot to death on the Fort Duchesne reservation today. The slayer, the sherif's office said, was Croppy Mountain Lion, 37 year old Indian brave who had married the girl in a tribal ceremony a few months before she married Henry Johnson, the Ute. Croppy Mountain Lion fled after the shooting.

According to the story told the officers, the Indian girl, Stella Hump, bore a child last February to her first husband, a Mexican. Her parents objected to this union, they learned, and so she was married in tribal ceremony to Mountain Lion.

Last Friday, after Mountain Lion had gone to work on the Indian reservation conservative project on which he and Johnson were employed, the latter took the girl. She entered her third marriage, this time under state laws. Early today Mountain Lion, the officers were told, shot Johnson and the girl dead.

C. E. Maginnis, Retired School Engineer, Is Dead

Charles E. Maginnis, 77 years old, who wrote a hymn, "Crossing the Bar," died yesterday in the home of relatives at 4038 Congress street. He was engineer at the Nash school for 27 years, and at the Hay school for seven years prior to his retirement seven years ago. Funeral services will be held at 8 p. m. tonight in a chapel at 124 Madison street, Oak Park. Burial will be in Hazelton, Ind. Mr. Maginnis is survived by his widow, Carrie, and a sister, Mary E., of Chicago.

Girl Trails Gasoline Boat; Overcome by Fumes, Dies

Streator, Ill., Aug. 10.—[Special.]—Jeannette, 16 year old daughter of Fred Mortland, a farmer residing 3 miles southeast of Streator, died in the Vermilion river this afternoon. With two other girls she was hanging onto a steel cable trailing behind a gasoline speedboat. Supposedly, Miss Mortland was overcome by the fumes of the engine exhaust pipe, which was a few yards ahead of her. Her companions saw her release her hold without exclamation and sink to her death in eight feet of water.

Col. L. A. McClure, Retired, Dies in California Lake

Reno, Nev., Aug. 10.—(AP)—Col. Lowe A. McClure of Berkeley and Saratoga, Cal., retired army officer, died in Lake Tahoe today, apparently the victom of a heart attack while swimming.

He was a brother of Mrs. Emmett D. Doyle, widow of the late Nevada governor.

RAILS TO OPEN PENSION FIGHT IN FEW DAYS

Will Ask Injunction on Assessments.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 10.—(AP)—An injunction to prevent the railroad retirement board from enforcing the pension law passed by the last session of congress will be asked within a few days by 150 large railroads. Suit will be filed, it was learned today, in the District of Columbia Supreme court.

R. V. FLETCHER.

The committee of general counsel of railroads headed by R. V. Fletcher, general counsel for the Association of Railway Executives, will file the action asking the court to enjoin the board from attempting to collect assessments against the railroads and their employés and to declare the law unconstitutional on three points.

Members of Committee.

The committee includes Jacob Aronson of the New York Central railroad, S. R. Prince of the Southern railway; E. S. Jouett of the Louisville and Nashville railroad, E. E. McInnis of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé, and B. F. Lyons of the Northern Pacific.

The statute, which provides for assessing employés of all railroads 2 per cent of their pay and railroads 4 per cent of pay rolls, will be attacked, it was said, on the ground that it violates the commerce clause of the constitution under which congress gets its power to regulate interstate commerce. It also will be called violative of the fifth amendment to the constitution which prohibits taking property without due process of law.

The petition to be presented to the court will contend that many thousands of employés who would be affected by the law are not engaged in interstate commerce. Among these, it was said, are clerical forces of the railroads, attorneys, doctors, heads of railroad labor unions, and employés of the retirement board itself.

Argument of Carriers.

The violation of the fifth amendment, the action is expected to argue, would come through assessing railroads and their employés for the benefit of other carriers and workers.

The railroads, besides attacking the law on the two constitutional grounds, are known to feel that the statute places an undue burden on interstate commerce.

The suit will be directed at the retirement board and its individual members—Murray Latimer, chairman; F. E. Williamson, representing the railroads, and Lee M. Eddy, representing labor.

Although the board came into existence on Aug. 1, it has not yet called on the railroads for any money, although it is understood there have been informal discussions of an assessment of $300,000 to meet expenses of the board.

STABILIZATION IS BASIC CURE OF NATIONALISM

New York, Aug. 10.—(AP)—James D. Mooney, president of the American Manufacturers Export association, declared in a radio address on "sound money" tonight that currency stabilization was bound up indissolubly with curing "the disease of economic nationalism.

"The lack of stable exchange rates is not the cause of upset money conditions in the international markets any more than high temperature is a cause of small-pox," he said. "The high temperature is only a symptom. Lack of stable exchange rates is a symptom, too—the smallpox of international money conditions is the so-called 'economic nationalism.'

"Economic nationalism is built on the hypothesis that there is something very clever about shipping large quantities of goods out of your country and taking no goods in return for them; selling them, in other words, without getting paid for them." Mooney is also president of General Motors Export corporation.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 10.—Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, sailed for England from this port today on the steamer Duchess of Bedford. The veteran banker, who has always been one of the most difficult men in the world to interview, is softening, port reporters announced. The bewhiskered captain of finance posed for photographs and almost civilly avoided giving direct answer to the reporters. Leading Canadian financiers were at the dock to see him off.

Freight Trafic Rises, but Runs Below 1933

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 10.—An increase of 2,450 cars over the preceding week brought total loadings of revenue freight for the week ended Aug. 4 to 611,298 cars. Although this was a decrease of 9,184 cars from the total in the corresponding week in 1933, it represented an increase of 114,672 over the same period in 1932, according to the American Railway association. The increase for the week was contrary to the seasonal trend.

Miscellaneous freight led loadings with 224,808 cars, 2,062 more than in the previous week. Merchandise and local freight were next on the list with 159,872 cars, or 1,439 cars more than during the previous week, but 13,460 cars below the same week last year.

Grain Movement Lower.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Aug. 10.—The increased price of silver resulting from the United States program is responsible for China's export of approximately 53 million Chinese dollars [$18,000,000] since Jan. 1, and anxiety is felt here that a further increase will force China to place an embargo on exports to prevent loss of stocks.

H. H. Kung, finance minister, stated to THE TRIBUNE correspondent that it would be advantageous for China to follow America's example and nationalize silver, but the action is impossible due to the present extra-territorial treaties. Kung said the government is studying the question and may put an embargo on exports, but that future action had not been decided and would probably be discussed at a conference with Gen. Chiang Kai-shek scheduled at Kuling tomorrow.

Kung said that the present stocks of silver in Shanghai amount to 500,000,000 ounces, but that a large portion is held in the vaults of foreign banks, over which China has no control. He declared that as the United States, China, and India hold most of the world's silver, it would be advantageous for the three countries to agree on a point of stabilization.

CODE AUTHORITY 'CRACKS' DOWN ON BAKING INDUSTRY

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 10.—(AP)—Declaring an emergency exists in wholesale bread and pastry prices, the southern California code authority for the baking industry today "cracked down" on bakers whose wholesale prices were said to threaten disaster to the baking industry.

The code authority fixed a minimum wholesale price of 7 cents per one pound loaf of bread, and corresponding minimum prices for other breads, cookies, pies, and cakes.

These prices will prevail, it was announced, until a survey can be completed to determine the lowest reasonable prices under present production conditions. Some bakers were wholesaling one pound loaves of bread as low as 6.3 cents.

Financial Advertisers to Hear Miller on Depression

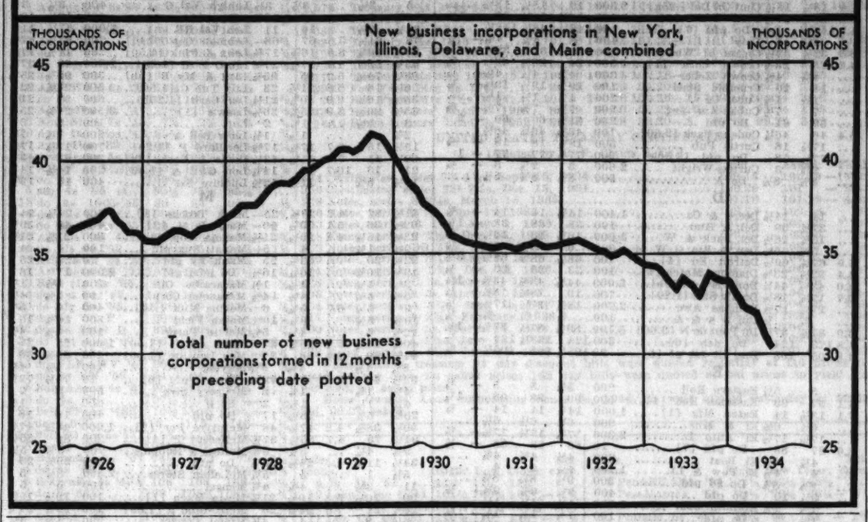

William Kix Miller, president of the Foundation Press and counsel for the Commerce Clearing house, will speak on "The Depression as An Ethical Problem" at a meeting of the Chicago Financial Advertisers association next Wednesday, in the Gold room at Mandel's.

Dollar Rallies AgainstPound, French Franc

Rallying after early weakness yesterday the dollar gained in terms of foreign currencies. The pound sterling closed in New York at $5.08⅞, down ⅜ of a cent from Thursday's quotation of $5.09¼. The French franc was quoted at 6.6675 cents, compared with 6.675 cents on the preceding day.

The value of the dollar in terms of the new par of the franc was 99.49 cents against 99.38 Thursday. Based on the old par of the franc it was worth 58.76 cents, up .13 cents.

Canadian Dollar Eases.

Canadian dollars declined to $1.02⅛ from the $1.02⅝ quoted in New York the preceding day. The Swiss franc dropped .12 of a cent to 33.03 cents, while the Dutch florin showed a 5 point decline at 68.45 cents, against 68⅛ cents. The German mark and the Italian lira remained unchanged from Thursday's quotations of 39.55 and 8.68 cents, respectively.

The bears on dollars yesterday in London interpreted the President's silver proclamation as meaning inflation and they resumed selling. At the opening in London the rate was adjusted to New York's level of $5.09 to the pound. Other interests did not take inflation talk seriously, believing the balance of trade in favor of the United States would continue the demand for dollars.

Bar gold in London was unchanged at $35.14 a fine ounce. An amount valued at $432,650 was purchased. Silver prices were also unchanged at 21 7-16 pence an ounce. The effect of other buying was wiped out by offerings from China.

Paris Disappointed.

In Paris financial circles believed the silver buying by the United States to be of little importance there although the psychological effect would be to weaken the recently growing belief that the dollar was nearly stabilized. Bankers there reported European financiers as being dissappointed at the increased uncertainty, and had resigned themselves to patient waiting for the American experiment to end.

French financiers close to the government are not alarmed over immediate danger but consider that further cheapening of the dollar and probably a lower pound, would increase the tension. A cheaper dollar and pound would widen the price gap between France, which is still on the gold standard, and the 35 devalorized countries, and would strengthen the demand for devalorization.

July Building Permits Mount to $34,840,879

New York, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Building permits issued in 215 cities during July involved $34,840,879, compared with $28,621,565 in June and $29,484,891 in July, 1933, according to reports to Dun & Bradstreet. Improvements were shown by the New England states, middle Atlantic, east central, south central, and mountain states, and declines were recorded in the south Atlantic and Pacific regions.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 10.—Spot silver rose ½ cent today, at 49¾ cents an ounce. Futures markets were closed, apparently for good. The 49¾ cent quotation represents the first market price for silver since the white metal was nationalized by proclamation. The price was posted yesterday by Handy & Harmon. The firm said that it expected to continue its 50 year business of quoting bar silver, but sales will be for industrial purposes.

The differential between the price of 49¾ cents quoted and the 50.01 cents an ounce offered by the government is explained by the fact that deliveries to the treasury will not be made until 90 days from Aug. 9 and also that there wil be expenses in handling.

The odd figure in the government price for silver, 50.01 cents an ounce, was developed as a matter of convenience. The gross price received by the individual who delivers his silver to the treasury is $1.29 an ounce, but 61 8-25 per cent of that is deducted as seigniorage. Capitol mathematicians confessed they could not find an even fraction that would bring the net price down to 50 cents even, according to Washington reports.

SILVER PROGRAM BOOSTS PRICE OF STOCKS ABROAD

LONDON, Aug. 10.—(AP)—The American silver plan caused higher prices on the stock exchange today. Silver shares rose moderately, gold mining shares strengthened, and trans-Atlantic issues were adjusted to higher levels. Argentine rails were strong on the favorable wheat situation, and British stocks were well supported. All sections reacted from their best, but the market closed firm.

Active in Paris.

PARIS, Aug. 10.—(AP)—News of the nationalization of silver in the United States gave the bourse one of its most active sessions in recent weeks. Led by oil and gold mining shares, international issues were strong, but rentes declined. The closing was irregular.

Higher at Berlin.

BERLIN, Aug. 10.—(AP)—A general upward tendency prevailed on the bourse today, with interest centering around annuities, although stocks also gained. The closing was firm.

Illinois Central Gold Clause Suit Goes to Federal Court

New York, Aug. 10.—(AP)—The gold clause bond suit of Imperial Trust company, Ltd., of the Bahama Islands, against the Illinois Central Railroad company was transferred from state to federal courts today on motion of the road. The Trust company sued the railroad for $25,968 as holder of $15,000 par value Illinois Central gold notes issued in 1931, claiming the difference due to reduction of the dollar's gold content.

Canada Stock Market to Bid for U.S. Trade

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 10.—With informal assurance from the Ontario attorney general, Arthur W. Roebuck, that official sanction will be forthcoming, owners of a four year old International Stock exchange charter today organized for activities a month hence. It will be the only chartered international exchange in Canada, according to Charles H. Collins, member and organizer.

Declaring that agreement existed with American members not to divulge prematurely their names, Collins said tonight that the exchange could have had many American members, and also could have sold out to American interests. But the latter proposal, he said, would contravene Canadian law inasmuch as Canadian control is necessary. Collins admitted that one American member is in New York and the other in Chicago.

Seek American Business.

American investments in Canada have been so pronounced lately as to occasion press and public comment. According to Canadian market rumors the American government has taken steps to curtail that trend. However, this new exchange hopes to get in on some big American business. Even unlisted mining and industrial stocks, which have been very active lately, will be eligible for trading.

According to Collins, the exchange will be controled by a Canadian board of directors and it is the intention to issue about 60 seats in Canada and about 40 in the United States. All Canadian industrial and mining issues in which there is an activity will be listed and it is said that the Canadian brokers will act as agents for the United States members, many of whom will not open offices in Toronto.

The by-laws of the exchange will be similar to those of the Toronto Stock exchange with such amendments with regard to commissions as may seem advisable, especially with regard to the cheaper stocks.

Wire Service to U. S. Cities.

Special attention will be paid to wire services to the larger United States cities, and it is the intention of the exchange to establish its own wire connections so that the fastest possible service will be given to all the American cities. The wire loops will include Detroit, Chicago, Cleveland, Buffalo, New York, Philadelphia, and Boston and any other city where there are sufficient members to warant the service.

A committee in charge of carrying out the organization plans includes five Toronto men and two prominent United States financial men who have had extensive experience in the operation of stock exchanges. The personnel of the committee will be made known in a few days and it is said to include two prominent Canadians of outstanding ability. It also includes what Collins describes as two prominent American members.

Shipyards, Grocery Firm Cited in NRA Complaint

Washington, D. C., Aug. 10.—(AP)—The labor relations board today cited the Wheeler Shipyards, Inc., of New York city and the C. F. Smith Grocery company of Detroit, to the NRA compliance division for blue eagle removal. In both cases, the board said, the employers failed to comply with decisions ordering them to reinstate employés allegedly discharged for union activity.

Tugwell Protege Is Mentioned as New Head of Reserve Board

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 10. — The possibility that President Roosevelt may elevate a protégé of Prof. Rexford Guy Tugwell, radical brain trust leader, to the governorship of the federal reserve board loomed today.

Marriner S. Eccles, young Utah banker, who was brought into the New Deal as assistant to the secretary of the treasury on Prof. Tugwell's recommendation, is understood to be the leading candidate for the post at the head of the federal banking system.

Two vacancies on the reserve board are to be filled by President Roosevelt. Gov. Eugene R. Black, who is now head of the reserve board, is anxious to retire. The term of Adolph C. Miller, a member of the original reserve board, expired yesterday.

President May Drop Miller.

Eccles, whose home is in Ogden, Utah, comes from the same federal reserve district as Miller, observers pointed out today. It is considered likely that President Roosevelt may drop Miller, substitute Eccles as the board member representing the twelfth reserve district, and raise the latter to the governorship of the board.

There is an outside possibility, however, that the President may persuade Gov. Black not to resign from the board. Black has been insistent for some time that the White House allow him to return to his former post as governor of the Atlanta, Ga., Federal Reserve bank. He is expected to renew this request as soon as he is given an appointment with the President.

President Roosevelt is frankly desirous of keeping Black at the head of the board, but it is expected that the Atlantan will not yield.

Aided in Housing Program.

Eccles is credited with working out the financial aspects of the New Deal housing program which is now getting under way. He has devoted much of his time since coming to the treasury on that work and on the banking angles of the treasury's functioning.

An apostle of easy, long term credit at low interest rates, he personifies the New Deal's drive to expand commercial credit. Although young, he has had a wide experience as banker and business man in Utah. His advanced thinking won him the attention and support of the New Dealers.

Miller, appointed to the reserve board by President Wilson when the board was first created, was left hanging when his term ran out yesterday. He is a conservative on money matters and a close personal friend of President Hoover, but claims to belong to neither party. His standing with the White House is uncertain and he may be reappointed, leaving Black's vacancy for Eccles.

PRINTING PRESS BILLS ORDERED BY ROOSEVELT

Embarks on Direct Silver Inflation.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 10.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt tonight ordered the treasury to embark on direct silver inflation by the printing press route.

Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. disclosed that the treasury, acting on the President's orders, intends to issue new paper currency against the fictitious statutory value of its old silver holdings. The immediate inflation will amount to 33 million dollars, but the eventual flood of paper money backed by silver may approach a billion dollars.

The treasury, Secretary Morgenthau revealed, will take 62 million ounces of silver which it purchased in the open market for $46,900,000 and issue 80 million dollars in paper silver certificates against it. The treasury is thus arbitrarily writing up or inflating the value of its silver by $33,100,000.

To Meet New Deal Costs.

This 33 millions in inflationary paper profits which the treasury plans to create by printing that many paper dollars will be poured into the treasury's cash balance to help pay the increasing costs of the New Deal. Already, treasury reports show, approximately 7 million dollars of this paper profit on silver has been cashed in by the treasury.

Secretary Morgenthau's startling announcement came a few hours after he had conferred with President Roosevelt following the latter's return to the White House from his vacation tour. It followed hard on the heels of President Roosevelt's own order issued yesterday, seizing all of American silver bullion in the name of the federal government.

New depreciation of the dollar, new losses for investors, bondholders, and all creditors, new relief for debtors, and new speculative flurries in commodity and security prices were predicted here tonight as the President's move became known.

See Strain on United States Credit.

One of the gravest questions the inflationary gesture raised was the possible weakening of federal credit, already strained by the excesses of the New Dealers.

In his official statement Secretary Morgenthau laid stress on the fact that the inflationary printing of paper money backed by silver is confined for the present to old silver owned by the treasury before the silver purchase act, passed at the last congress, forced the treasury to start purchasing another 1 billion 300 million ounces of silver.

Secretary Morgenthau's official announcement, in which he referred to the inflationary silver profit which the treasury is now taking, referred to this profit as "seigniorage." His statement said:

"The gold reserve act of 1934 authorizes the President to issue silver certificates against any silver bullion, silver, or standard silver dollars in the treasury which, at the time of such issue, is not held for redemption of any outstanding silver certificates.

Issue Certificates.

"In accordance with an order of the President issued pursuant to this authority, the secretary of the treasury now is issuing silver certificates against all the free silver which was in the treasury prior to the approval of the silver purchase act. This amounted to approximately 62,000,000 ounces, the cost of which was about $46,900,000. These silver certificates are being issued on a basis of $1.29 an ounce, because that is required by law for all silver certificates. The total amount to be issued, under the President's order, against these 62,000,000 ounces will be of a face amount of approximately $80,000,000. The difference between the cost of the silver involved and this face amount constitutes seigniorage under the law and, as these certificates are issued, that difference will be shown on the daily statement as such."

Reaps Inflationary Profit.

The inflationary profit which the treasury reaps arises out of the disparity between actual silver prices and the fictitious monetary value of silver which silver advocates in congress have written on the statute books.

For the 62 million ounces of silver referred to by Secretary Morgenthau the treasury paid about 43 million dollars, or less than 76 cents an ounce. Yet the law provides that, as backing for currency, each ounce of silver shall be worth $1.29. Silver now is selling for 50.01 cents an ounce. The treasury, therefore, can write up, water, or inflate the value of its silver from the actual cost to the fictitious money value, creating money out of thin air.

NO ONE BATS EYE THIS TIME AS BANK GETS RFC MILLIONS

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Some sidelights:

The dealing out of 91 million dollars of federal funds to the (closed) First National bank of Detroit is announced by Chairman Jesse H. Jones of the Reconstruction Finance corporation and nobody bats an eye. Two years ago, when the same federal agency dealt out 90 million dollars to the (open) Central Republic Bank and Trust company of Chicago it stirred up a hornet's nest of criticism throughout the country—political and otherwise. Is the difference that it is wrong to prevent a banking collapse but all right to bury a dead horse? Or has the public become inured to box car figures when it comes to handouts of taxpayers' funds?

The market for United States government bonds under normal conditions is like the speedometer on an automobile. By looking at the numbers you can tell whether the speed is dangerous. At present, however, this gauge is lacking. The speedometer is plastered over and there's no telling at just what point the acceleration should be stopped and the brakes applied. Whenever the public gets fearful of the New Dealers' economic policies and rushes in to sell government bonds the secretary of the treasury sends buyers into the market with funds to bid prices up again. On Thursday after the President's announcement that silver was to be nationalized the public was shooting bonds at the secretary of the treasury's market riggers so fast that in the last hour of trading alone $14,500,000 of government bonds were sold.

The ability of the New Dealers to continue spending billions in excess of income year after year depends on the maintenance of a good market for government bonds. The maintenance of such a market depends upon keeping prices up somewhere near present levels. The keeping of prices at present levels depends upon the treasury's ability to continue rigging the market. And the market rigging can be continued only as long as the treasury has plenty of surplus funds to employ in this fashion—principally the 2 billion dollar "stabilization" fund resulting from the devaluation of the dollar. Everybody thought at first that this fund was to be used to stabilize the dollar in foreign exchange, but as it turns out its principal job will be to play Atlas for the government bond market.

The nationalization of silver is generally regarded by financial experts as of minor importance as an element of inflation. Most of them look upon it as another sop to the silver producing states. What worries them, however, is that there have been so many sops during the last year and a half leading in the direction of inflation. It seems to be politically expedient to give way to the demands of the debtors at regular intervals and to ignore the welfare of the creditors—bondholders, insurance policy holders, or bank depositors.

Will the silver program result in a redistribution among foreign nations of America's store of gold? Not if the United States doesn't buy silver on a large scale abroad. On the other hand, if the administration attempts to carry out the program outlined in recent silver legislation and establish a currency base of 75 per cent gold and 25 per cent silver it must buy some 2 billion dollars' worth of foreign silver. In exchange for this silver it would have to pay out gold. And inasmuch as America's buying would force silver to prices higher than its real worth America would be giving away gold. Thus it would be weakening its currency not only by diluting it with silver but by losing part of its gold.

La Salle street thinks that will never happen, however. Old timers say that inflation is likely to come faster through the present program of credit inflation and increase in the national debt. They point out that inflation in the past has always begun with a government deficit, and that it has never been stopped until some Poincare has had the courage to balance the budget.

The Federal Deposit Insurance corporation is supposed to be the bulwark against weak banks. If however, the banks' weakness should turn out to be their abnormally large holdings of government bonds the FDIC would be of little assistance. Most of the assets of the FDIC are also invested in United States bonds.

Frequent reports come from Washington that at the next session of congress an attempt to will be made to do away with the federal reserve banks and to get up a treasury owned central bank. That would be a logical step toward political control of bank credit Bankers suspect that this proposal is being made as a means of "cracking down" on the federal reserve banks for their reluctance to finance New Deal projects.

Bank of United States Pays Another 5% to Depositors

New York, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Supreme Court Justice Louis A. Valente today approved payment of 5 per cent to depositors in the defunct Bank of United States.

DROUTH CUTS CORN CROP TO 31 YEAR LOW

U. S. Report Reflects Heavy Toll.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The tremendous damage and destruction brought to the country's corn crop by July's intensive drouth and heat was strikingly brought out in the government's monthly crop report issued late yesterday.

Confirming earlier indications that the crop will be the smallest in 31 years, the report showed the potential yield was reduced by more than half a billion bushels last month. The report is based on conditions on Aug. 1, and since then the crop has shown steady deterioration, estimated at the rate of 15,000,000 bushels a day.

The government crop board appraised the crop at 51,000,000 bushels under the average of the private forecasters who released their figures ten days ago.

The 1,607,000,000 bushel corn crop forecast by the government is nearly a billion bushels below what is regarded as a normal crop. In the five year period from 1927 to 1932, usually considered normal, the average annual production was 2,516,000,000 bushels. As the United States exports very little corn domestic consumption depends on production and varies from year to year according to the crop.

Wheat Estimate in Line.

The government's estimate on wheat was slightly more than that predicted a month ago and in line with expectations. Earlier forecasts on production were exceeded slightly in the soft winter wheat belt and in the northwest and a moderate upward revision was made. The government now places the total wheat crop at 491,000,000, the most disastrous crop the country has harvested in 33 years. A month ago the crop was appraised by the government at 483,000,000 bushels.

The government's figures were not issued until after the close of the grain market. The market was in a highly nervous state throughout the session, as is usual on the day the government issues a report. Wheat futures closed moderately lower after selling at new high quotations for the season, but corn advanced again and closed moderately higher. Trading was quieter than it was on the preceding day.

Loss Exceeds One Cent.

Final quotations on wheat represented losses from 1⅛ to 1⅜ cents a bushel with the September contract closing at $1.09½. Corn futures did not hold their best prices but finished the day ⅛ to ½ cent higher. September corn closed at 80 cents a bushel.

Other grains were irregular with oats closing ⅝ lower to ⅝ higher and rye finishing ⅞ to 1¼ lower. Barley was little changed from its previous price.

The government's estimate of the oats crop indicated a smaller yield than was predicted a month ago, but was above the figure which the private forecasters showed. The government now places the crop at 545,000,000 bushels, which compared with its month ago figure of 568,000,000 and the Aug. 1 forecast of the private authorities of 525,00,000 bushels. The figures on rye and barley contained no surprises. The rye crop is placed at 17,300,000 bushels, against the 17,200,000 bushels predicted early in July. Barley is now figured at 119,000,000 bushels, as compared with 125,000,000 bushels estimated in the last government report.

Price Discount Doubtful.

To what extent the current prices on leading grains have discounted the crop disaster shown by the government report is a matter of doubt. Corn and wheat futures have each advanced about 22 cents a bushel since the last government report was made July 10. For the professional traders the figures released by the government yesterday were not surprising. On the other hand, observers believed that the government would show a smaller corn crop than it actually did. This was explained by the fact that the government figures are based on conditions existing ten days ago. Competent authorities agree that since that time the corn crop has shown heavy additional depreciation. One private crop authority cut his previous estimate by 100,000,000 bushels. This revision was based largely on developments since the first of the month.

Wheat prices were sharply higher yesterday in most of the foreign markets. Liverpool and Rotterdam prices registered good gains, but in Winnipeg the market was inclined to be sluggish. A leading Canadian grain

STOCK FLURRY DIES OUT AND PRICES DECLINE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 10.—The flurry of inflationary enthusiasm which set the stock market spinning yesterday died out today. A considerable number of traders came to business convinced that they had been a bit premature in their bullish interpretations of the silver nationalization order and that the better part of judgment would be to back out of their advanced positions with as much dispatch and as little loss as posible.

The result was a market reaction which wiped out virtually all the gains run up on the wave of "inflationary" buying and left speculative sentiment with nothing more bullish on which to feed than news that rains had brought relief to some sections of the drouth area. This was slim solace, in view of the official government estimates that the crop damage already exceeds $5,000,000,000.

Bull Value Doubted.

While the silver order, as market commentators were pointing out today, will increase the amount of actual currency in circulation, many analysts of monetary conditions are convinced that the move is not distinctly inflationary; certainly not enough so to warant any wild bull movement on the stock exchange. Others confessed their confusion over the implications of the administration's plans and the majority seemed to feel that whatever the possibilities they were not worth gambling on.

"Precautionary" selling based on this revised view of the situation was supplemented by persistent profit-taking by those lucky enough to get in on yesterday's upturn in its early stages. Mining shares having led the advance were enfiladed by selling orders and led the retreat. U. S. Smelting surrendered 4 points, or all but a fraction of its Thursday runup, and American Smelting receded 2⅜. Cerro de Pasco and other silver issues dropped sharply. Golds and coppers eased.

Rails Are Weak Again.

Renewed weakness in the rails helped to restore the market to its former rut. Delaware and Hudson, Atchison, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, New York Central, and others receded 1 to nearly 3 points. The move for higher freight rates proved little help to the carriers.

Anticipation of a poor July shipment report cost U. S. Steel common 2 points, and Bethlehem and others of the group eased off behind the leader.

The utilities did better than they have on some other weak market days. Gains of a point or more were scored by some issues of the division in the early dealings, but virtually all of them were replaced with minus signs before the end.

In the automobile sector, both General Motors and Chrysler attracted considerable support for a while, only to give way with the general list.

Trading was less active. The total was 772,310 shares or about half that of yesterday.

PRICES OF COTTON FUTURES DECLINE MORE THAN $1 BALE

Cotton developed a decidedly reactionary tendency yesterday, prices dropping over $1 per bale, and the close was well toward the bottom. Selling was said to have been due to a considerable extent to the belief the nationalization of silver would not result in immediate inflation, and the trade also had reports of scattered rains in sections of Texas where moisture was most needed.

At the finish net losses in Chicago were 15 to 20 points while other markets were off 17 to 21 points. Spots dropped 15 to 20 points with New Orleans quoted at 13.60 cents, Galveston and Houston 13.55 cents, and New York 13.75 cents. Prices follow:

LARD FUTURES REACH HIGH SINCE 1931 THEN LOSE GAIN

General buying advanced lard futures around 10 cents at the opening yesterday with prices at the highest level since 1931, but liberal profit taking and selling induced by the reaction in grain wiped out the greater part of the upturn. The finish was 5 cents lower to 2½ cents higher, with September showing the decline. Cash demand was reported as fair.

Bellies continued on the upgrade and sold at a new high for the season, closing 10 to 10½ cents higher. Cash lard was quoted at $8.10, loose and leaf at $7.50, and bellies at $11. Prices follow:

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 10.—The good that what accomplished in the market for treasury bonds just before the close yesterday by the introduction of strong support buying was largely undone today when bonds were placed on their own feet. At the opening declines ranged up to a half point and these lower prices prevailed during the greater part of the day. Volume fell to $16,826,000 against $30,092,000 yesterday.

Treasury Issues Heavy.

Major declines at the opening today took place in treasury 4¼-3¼s and the 3⅜s of 1940 and 1941. Home owners loan and federal farm mortgage bonds were quiet and relatively steady. Governments at the close were 1-32 to 22-32 points lower. First Liberty 4s were unchanged and uncalled Liberty 4¼s were up 2-32.

In the foreign market French 7s gave the only reflection of the weakening of the dollar exchange. They advanced to a new record high. The market gave considerable buying support to Brazilian bonds, some of which advanced sharply.

Corporate Bonds Lower.

High grade corporate bonds were generally lower without being pressed for sale in any substantial amounts. Lower prices were paid for Chesapeake and Ohio refunding 4½s, Burlington refunding 4½s, Santa Fe general and the 4s of 1955 and 1965, Cincinnati Gas 4s, Cleveland Terminal 5½s, Pennsylvania general 4½s and 5s, and numerous others of the same general class.

Lower grade bonds did not do as badly as some had expected. Interborough issues were up sharply, along with Manhattan Railway 4s.

Air Line Reduces Express Rate, Effective Aug. 15

New York, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Eastern Air Lines, Inc. has worked out a new air express tarif to become effective over its routes Aug. 15, bringing a reduction in the cost of shipping as well as a new minimum rate. C. P. Ryman, trafic manager, said the reduction was made possible by increased volume. The company is affiliated with the General Air Express.

Union Oil of California.

Investors' Guide: Would much appreciate a report on Union Oil of California. Have several times acted on your reports with good results. —H. N. D.

Answer: Union Oil Company of California is a thoroughly integrated unit in the oil industry, operating chiefly along the Pacific coast. Foreign sales formerly contributed a substantial portion of net income, but during recent years have contracted.

In 1933 the company sold its share of an Australian marketing organization to Standard Oil of New Jersey at a price of $1,357,000 in excess of book value. This amount was included as net income for the year. The company has important oil interests in Colombia and Venezuela.

Firming of conditions in the industry enabled the company to report sales of $26,500,000 and net income of $300,000, or 7 cents per share, for the first half of 1934, against sales of $24,200,000 and net loss of $1,150,000 (excluding nonrecurring income) for the corresponding 1933 period.

	Sales.	Net income.	Inc. per share.
1933	$51,126,000	*$1,954,000	$0.45
1932	58,391,000	3,211,000	.73
1931	61,625,000	3,054,000	.70
1930	88,975,000	9,605,000	2.19

Current assets on June 30, 1934, totaled $41,100,000 and current liabilities were $4,900,000. Working capital has declined during the last few years, representing in large part the reduction of funded debt. On June 30, 1934, funded debt was $22,257,000, against $26,687,000 on Dec. 31, 1933.

Stock equity consists solely of 4,386,070 shares of $25 par capital stock, which pays 25 cents a share each quarter. The stock deserves a fairly good rating.

Chicago Junction Railroad.

Investors' Guide: Would you please advise if Chicago Junction railroad first 4s, due 1945, would be a sound investment for a workingman as a savings account?—B. H. G.

Answer: This issue is the direct obligation of Chicago Junction Railways and Union Stock Yards company and, by virtue of a lease, is practically guaranteed by Chicago Rapid Transit company.

The issuer owns more than 1,300 acres of valuable real estate in Chicago, including the Union Stock Yards, Central Manufacturing district, and Belt Line railroad. Earnings have been stable and have covered fixed charges by good margins.

The bonds constitute a first mortgage on the railroad properties. They are sound.

Brokers Spurn Orders at Abnormal Prices.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 10.—How the treasury, acting for government trust funds and presumably through the Federal Reserve bank, tried, in the last few minutes of trading on the Stock exchange yesterday, to fix closing prices, was disclosed gradually from various quarters today.

Closing prices for government obligations dealt in on the exchange were the subject of protracted consideration and were not announced until nearly an hour after business had ceased.

Defeat Federal Rigging.

Government bonds rallied sharply just before the close, and brokers reported today that the government's buying agents were successful in obtaining many large blocks ranging from $250,000 to $500,000. For some of the lots purchased prices in excess of offered quotations prevailing at the time were bid and paid. The effort of government agents to bid prices up more than a point all around in the last five minutes was defeated, according to explanations in bond circles, by refusal of certain brokers to execute the orders.

Trading in governments in the last hour totaled $14,600,000, a volume comparable to a 60,000,000 share day in stocks, as one broker remarked. It was the largest day's business since wartime.

The confusion created by these orders, which were piled in during the closing five or ten minutes, called for action by the exchange's new committee on bonds, which fixed the closing prices.

Rules Cause Hesitation.

The nature of the buying orders made some brokers hesitate, it was reported, in making executions, because of the rule of the exchange against purchases or sales of securities or offers to purchase or sell securities for the purpose of upsetting the equilibrium of the market and bringing about a condition in which prices will not fairly reflect market values.

The appearance of bids substantially above the prices at which bonds were offered for sale also called into operation the rule of the exchange that if a bid is made for a larger lot above the price at which smaller lots are offered, the bidder shall be compelled to buy any or all the smaller lots, publicly offered at the time, at the lower price, up to the amount of the largest lot.

In the first few hours of trading on the Stock exchange today the treasury was reported to have purchased $5,250,000 more of its own obligations, though making no effort to bid up prices at the same time.

MUNICIPAL BOND NOTES

The syndicate which purchased and offered in June a new issue of $12,230,000 state of North Carolina 3½ and 4¼ per cent bonds, was dissolved yesterday. The group of sixteen banks and banking houses, headed by the First National Bank, New York, apportioned the unsold bonds among themselves. The unsold bonds consisted of the 4¼s of the 1936 to 1940 maturities, originally offered at prices to yield 1.75 to 3.50 per cent. It is understood that reoffering will be made at prices to net 2.50 to 3.85 per cent.

Award of a new issue of $169,000 Richmondville, Summit, Fulton, Seward, Decatur & Worcester, N. Y., Central School District No. 1, bonds has been made to Bacon, Stevenson & Co. The bonds, due from June 1, 1935, to 1969, brought a price of par, with the interest rate named as 4¾ per cent.

The city of Fresno, Cal., will be in the market Aug. 23 with a new issue of $375,000 of auditorium 4 per cent bonds, and a new issue of $35,000 of storm sewer 4 per cent bonds. The former issue will mature from 1935 to 1964 and the latter from 1936 to 1951. The city reports an assessed valuation for 1934-35 of $42,437,440, with total bonded debt, including these issues, of $3,313,300, and net debt of $793,300.

No bids were reported received by Koochiching county, Minn., for its issue of $500,000 of refunding bonds, due from Jan. 1, 1937, to 1957. It is planned to reoffer the issue September 4.

The state of South Carolina plans to redeem Aug. 15 a total of $359,000 of its highway 6 per cent notes, dated Feb. 15, 1934, and due Feb. 15, 1953. Principal and interest will be paid on and after that date at the Chemical Bank & Trust company.

The town of Amesbury, Mass., will offer on Aug. 16 a new issue of $15,500 of street construction bonds, dated July 1, 1934, and payable 1935 to 1944. Bidders are asked to stipulate the interest rate.

An issue of $359,000 Polk county, Ia., 3½ per cent funding bonds was awarded yesterday to Halsey, Stuart & Co. The firm bid a premium of $6,300 for the issue which brought the yield so near a 3¼ per cent basis that the award was made at the latter rate.

Lucas county, Ohio, of which Toledo is the county seat, will be in the market on Aug. 13 with a new issue of $418,000 of emergency relief bonds, dated Aug. 1, 1934, and maturing from Sept. 1, 1934, to March 1, 1938. The rate of interest is fixed at 6 per cent.

Sinking fund commissioners of the city of Columbus, Ohio, have advised bankers they will offer Aug. 15 various blocks of bonds held in the sinking fund in the amount of $370,389. The bonds will comprise 4½s and 5s and will carry various maturities.

The city of Lackawanna, N. Y., which failed to market an issue of $528,000 of deficiency and bridge bonds, due Aug. 1, 1935, to 1970, has decided to re-offer the issue Aug. 24. The only change in the issue will be that it will mature from 1935 to 1962.

The town of West New York, N. J., will seek bids Aug. 21 on a new issue of $77,000 of street improvement bonds, dated June 1, 1934, and due from 1936 to 1952. Bidders are asked to name the rate of interest.

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—(AP)—COTTONSEED OIL—Bleachable was moderately active and irregular today, closing 5 points lower to 2 points net higher. Sales, 117 lots. Further scattered buying on the inflationary talk, as well as the early advance in grains, carried prices into new highs for the season, but realizing and refiner selling encouraged by the reaction in lard and the decline in cotton checked the upturn and recessions followed. Bleachable, spot, nominal; September closed 6.73c; October, 6.76c; December, 6.97c; January, 7.01c; March, 7.17c.

ONLY 27 FEDERAL INDUSTRY LOANS APPROVED HERE

Twenty-seven loans to industry aggregating $1,635,600, have been approved by the advisory committee of the Seventh federal reserve district, Max Epstein, chairman of the board of the General American Tank Car corporation, said yesterday in reporting for his committee.

None of the money has been made available, however, awaiting final approval by the Chicago Federal Reserve bank. George Schaller, governor of the bank, announced that several of the loans were given a final approval yesterday, and the money will be released early next week, as soon as papers are drawn.

The credit expansion endeavor imposed on the reserve system by the last congress has moved slowly, a total of $28,000 in loans being closed to date. "Off the record," financial leaders are practically unanimous in doubting that there is any real field for the advances, as commercial banks are starving for loans.

Epstein More Optimistic.

Mr. Epstein, however, adopts a far more optimistic attitude. He thinks "this thing really will do some good." He wants it understood that the advisory committee is eager to receive further applications.

The committee is practically up to date on its work, having reviewed more than 300 applications. Quick action is promised on all new requests.

The twenty-seven approved loans range from $800 to $300,000 and will go to all five states of the district—Illinois, Iowa, Indiana, Michigan, and Wisconsin.

The record of the local district is believed to be better than that of any other district in the country. The New York reserve district was reported to have given tentative approvals to nearly $1,000,000 in loans—scarcely two-thirds of the amount passed by Mr. Epstein's committee.

Loan Total Is Meager.

The totals, however, are meager when compared with the 280 millions authorized, of which the Chicago district quota is 40 millions.

"Our object," Mr. Epstein explained, "is to do good where cash will be of real help. We ask what a man's future is, whether he can save himself. If his is a hopeless case he may as well die now as later. Some applications have been nothing more than relief propositions."

ASSOCIATED PRESS LEASES BURNHAM BUILDING SPACE

The Associated Press yesterday signed a long term lease for space on the eighth floor of the Burnham building, at the northwest corner of La Salle and Randolph streets, where it will have an area 40 per cent greater than it now has in the Ashland block.

It will move to its new location about Sept. 15. Herbert E. Case, leasing manager of the Burnham building, and Richard C. Winchester negotiated the lease. Robert G. Becker is manager of the building.

Hoefeld, Inc., yesterday leased the store at the northeast corner of Randolph and Dearborn now occupied by Liggett's drug store. According to Norman A. Hoefeld, president of Hoefeld, Inc., this and the recent leasing of a store in the Bankers' building comprise the first expansion of the firm since 1929.

Approximately 210 million dollars' worth of property in Illinois has been appraised by the Home Owners' Loan corporation, it was announced yesterday following the adoption of a revised appraisal procedure at a meeting held at the Union League club.

Over 57,000 fee appraisals already have been made on the 95,000 applications on file in Illinois. Of these there are approximately 40,000 completed and 30,000 on file for appraisal in the Chicago district.

FRANCE ADOPTS PLAN TO REDUCE WHEAT SURPLUS

PARIS, Aug. 10.—(AP)—A triple program was adopted today by the cabinet to relieve the serious situation brought about by a domestic wheat surplus and a fixed domestic price. Subsidized exports, whiter bread, and the feeding of cereals to cattle are the main points of the plan, which is being put into effect as the result of protests from both millers and farmers.

Millers, who have been openly defying the government's efforts to impose a minimum price, may have to pay a bigger tax on millings to underwrite the export premiums, and growers will have to accept a lowered extraction ratio.

New money will have to be found to replace the exhausted $28,000,000 fund for export subsidies, and French wheat will go into the market outside at the world price, about one-half the $1.95 a bushel paid at home.

Poor wheat will dyed blue and used for cattle feed. Low grade flour will be "denatured" and made unsalable in France, but will be exported if possible.

Western Union Reports Rise in June Quarter Net

Net income of the Western Union Telegraph company for the quarter ended June 30, 1934, was $762,642, equal to 73 cents a share, as compared with $548,747, or 52 cents a share, in the preceding quarter, and $2,994,500, or $2.86 a share, in the June quarter of last year. Net for the six months ended June 30 totaled $1,311,389 after taxes, depreciation, interest, etc., equal to $1.24 a share, as compared with $2,645,401, or $2.53 a share, in the first six months of last year.

Disbursement of Corn-Hog Checks Resumed in Iowa

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 10.—The United States Steel corporation reported today that its shipments of finished steel in July decreased 615,399 tons to 369,938 tons, against 985,337 in June. The total fell below the figure for July, 1933, which was 701,322 tons.

The July decline amounted to 62.46 per cent and was considerably more of a drop than had been anticipated. The total was the lowest for any month since January. The decrease coincided with the sharp recession in mill operations from the high rates of June.

The decrease in July from the total of the preceding month was the sharpest reported for any month since the corporation began the publication of shipment statistics, which date back to the beginning of 1930.

NEW MILWAUKEE AVENUE BANK TO OPEN TUESDAY

Formr U. S. Treasury Chief Heads Board.

The Milwaukee Avenue National bank will open its doors for business Tuesday in quarters formerly occupied by the defunct Northwestern Trust and Savings bank at Milwaukee avenue and Division street.

Charles S. Dewey, assistant secretary of the treasury during the Coolidge administration and financial advisor to Poland from 1927 to 1930, will be chairman of the board. H. S. French, who resigned July 31 as chief of the reorganization division of the local national bank examiner's office, will become president. Max Drezmal, a Polish leader, and Frank Brandt will be the vice presidents. The directors include Mr. Dewey, Mr. French, Mr. Brandt, Joseph E. Magnus, Frank Bobrytzke, and Joseph Golanka, who headed the depositors' committee instrumental in forming the new bank.

Third in Stockholders.

The new institution is unusual in several respects. It is believed to be the only national bank opened with entirely new capital in the Chicago district in recent years. Although its capital is only $200,000 and surplus is $37,500, the bank will be third only to the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company and the First National bank in number of stockholders here.

Its organization was accomplished only because the district insisted on having banking facilities. More than two-thirds of the capital was subscribed by 2,200 depositors of the closed Northwestern Trust and Savings bank. The Reconstruction Finance corporation took $50,000 in preferred stock, and the remainder was furnished by outside capital.

The new bank will manage a safety deposit company and operate savings and foreign exchange departments in addition to its commercial accounts.

Pledge All Assets.

The entire assets of the old bank—more than 8 millions—were pledged in return for the loan of approximately $2,000,000. In addition to providing $130,000 capital for the new bank, it afforded a 20 per cent dividend to depositors of the Northwestern bank. This brings the total repayment to 50 per cent, and will terminate the receivership of State Representative David E. Shannahan.

Payment of a second 5 per cent to depositors of the Equitable Trust company of Chicago was authorized yesterday by State Auditor Edward J. Barrett. This will raise the total payments to $47,006.

The Equitable also has paid preferred and secured claims amounting to $166,117. Together with the dividends, this makes the payment to creditors 78 per cent of total liquidation. The bank closed Nov. 24, 1931.

BRITISH YARN MAKERS REJECT GERMAN PACT

LONDON, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Terms of a new trade agreement between Great Britain and Germany, under which arrangements were made for payment for British exports after Aug. 20, were made public tonight, but the Lancashire yarn manufacturers rebuffed the government's efforts to aid them.

The pact does not touch overdue debts for past exports and despite official assurances that "the government intends to press vigorously for a satisfactory settlement" the Lansashire firms decided not to sell in Germany until the old obligations are paid.

Under the new agreement business initiated after Aug. 20 can be paid through arrangements made by the German reichsbank and the Bank of England. Reichsmarks due British firms will be sold and paid into the creditor's own bank by the Bank of England.

Germans and Russians Sign.

BERLIN, Aug. 10.—(AP)—A trade agreement between Germany and Russia relating to imports from Russia was signed Wednesday, it was announced today. Details were not disclosed, but it was assumed the agreement deals with importations of raw materials.

HOG PRICES GAIN, THEN REACT AS DEMAND EASES

Top $7.65, Including Tax; Cattle Weak.

Trading in hogs turned dull yesterday after prices opened steady to 10 cents higher, and the close was barely steady with the average of Thursday. Sultry weather and slight declines in pork prices despite the meager receipts on hand caused all buyers to proceed cautiously. Although prices opened on the upgrade some buyers reported that they were able to fill small orders before the close at a slight saving in parts of the yards.

Top and average quotations were as high as any time of the year. Packers paid up to $7.65 for best grades and an average of $7.10, including the $2.25 processing tax to the federal government, the returns to farmers being $5.40 and $4.85 respectively.

Price Spread Is Wide.

Due partly to the scarcity of top grades of butcher hogs there was a wide spread between the packing sows, lard type hogs, and the top classes, some butchers of similar weight and finish selling as much as 80 cents above the packing sows. Most of the latter cost $6.40 to $6.85, tax included, of which the farmer received $4.15 to $4.65.

Supplies fell at all points with most of the decrease at other leading centers. The combined receipts at eleven markets at 54,000 compared with 59,000 last Friday when offerings were unusually low because of labor trouble here and with 83,000 a year ago.

Packers in the eastern part of the country paid as high as $8.15 for hogs including the processing tax, while the lowest points in the middle west listed top sales at $7.25, tax included.

Cattle Market Weak.

Cattle ruled weak to slightly lower. Trading was extremely sluggish at the slight reduction, and some sellers took stock off the market to be carried until next week because of the unsatisfactory condition of the trade. A string of 80 steers averaging 1,223 pounds topped the market at $9.

Butcher stock was exceptionally draggy and weak to 25 cents lower than on Thursday's session. The bulk of beef cows sold at $2.75 to $3.50, and canners and cutters brought mostly $1.75 to $2.50. Calves fell 25 cents, the first setback in more than a week.

Native lambs maintained a mostly steady price level at the start, but westerns sold later at 10 to 25 cents loss, the feeder end indicating the least weakness. Top natives sold to packers at $7.75, westerns at $7.

Record Cattle Slaughter.

More cattle were slaughtered in the United States last month than during any corresponding July on record, according to a report issued yesterday by the department of agriculture. Packers under federal inspection reported a total kill of 1,191,981 head of cattle and 769,989 calves, including drouth stock slaughtered for the Federal Surplus Relief corporation.

These huge totals compared with 752,105 cattle and 401,329 calves in July, 1933. Only one other July cattle total has ever reached the 1,000,000 mark. The year to date total also established a new record for cattle, the figure for the seven months at 6,072,444 comparing with 4,634,875 in 1933.

The hog slaughter was the second largest for July since 1929. Last year, when the AAA was killing pigs and sows was the third greatest in history for July. Packers under federal inspection last month killed 3,323,440 hogs, against 3,914,452 a year ago.

The July sheep slaughter at 1,293,812 was smallest for the month since 1928 and compared with 1,532,240 a year ago.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw, was quiet and unchanged today. No sales were reported, but refiners were believed willing to pay last prices, or 3.32, for Cubas in suitable positions. Nothing was available below 3.33 or 3.35

Increased hedge selling in the distant deliveries caused reactions in the future market after early steadiness. Prices closed 1 to 3 points net lower. Sales were 12,650 tons. Prices:

RETAIL TRADE RISES; NOW 40% OVER LAST YEAR

Sentiment Shifts to the Cheerful Side.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 10.—Whether it was the change to more comfortable temperatures in some parts of the country or the return of the President to Washington, business sentiment shifted suddenly into a more cheerful attitude last week, says the Dun-Bradstreet Trade Review. Retail distribution continues to climb and trade volume is holding better than 40 per cent above the 1933 low.

"Revised estimates of fall trade are almost uniformly in an upward direction," says the survey. "With indications that last year's volume will be exceeded and that profits will be more general, as the retailers have had the advantage of steadier wholesale markets this summer in assembling their merchandise.

Drouth and Complaints Less.

"Even from the drouth states fewer complaints now are being received regarding current business. Although sales have eased below 1933, the present devaluation is being largely discounted by plans already in preparation for next year.

"The unexpected maintenance of retail volume at a level above that of August, 1933, by such a wide margin, has been more productive of bolstering business sentiment than any other development in the current situation. Gains ranging from 5 to 25 per cent were reported for the week, which was somewhat surprising, in view of the fact that 1933 retail sales were near their peak in August.

Sales Rise Steadily.

"The spread of salary increases to the majority of industries and the rising prices liberated an overwhelming force of pent-up buying that had been held in check for more than two years. In most parts of the country sales have risen almost uninterruptedly since the first of the month.

"Wholesale orders for the week were close to the high point for the year. Cooler weather enabled many buyers to make trips to the markets, which were deferred in July because of the intensity of the heat.

REACTIONS IN BUTTER, EGG FUTURES AFTER NEW HIGHS

New high levels for the season and since Nov. 29, 1931, were established on butter futures on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, and eggs also sold at a new high, but the markets ran into extremely heavy profit taking and reacted almost as rapidly as they had advanced. The close was unchanged on butter, while eggs were ⅛ to ¼ cent higher. Potatoes lost 1 cent for the day.

Inflation talk and the early strength in grains had some effect on the market, bringing in heavy speculative buying at the start. Further comment was heard regarding the possibility of higher prices for both commodities later in the season. There was some talk of the government taking additional supplies of butter.

WOOL MARKET

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 10.—Trade in western wools is slightly broader than it has been for many weeks. The volume of sales, however, has not yet reached more than very moderate proportions. Thus far the improvement has been scattered as to houses receiving business and to lines effected, trade being confined largely to a few lines, including original bag 64s and finer and grades 56s ⅜ blood territory wools. A little business has been transacted on spot average 12 months Texas wool at around 70c scoured basis.

firm placed the wheat crop of the three prairie provinces at 250,000,000 or under, or considerably less than Canada will be called upon to supply this year to importing nations. This is the lowest estimate made so far by a reliable agency.

The effect of this, however, was lost on the Winnipeg market. The wheat harvest in Canada will soon be in full swing and the market there will be called upon to bear the usual heavy hedging pressure which comes during that season.

There was not a single state in the important corn region that escaped the withering effects of drouth and heat last month. Nebraska's prospective crop declined 128,000,000 bushels during the month. Illinois prospects were cut by 35,000,000, and the Iowa crops were cut 63,000,000 bushels. Indicated yields of the principal producing states are:

Boost Winter Wheat Estimate.

The government's upward revision of the estimated winter wheat crop was due almost entirely to better yields shown in the soft winter wheat belt. The gain of 7,000,000 bushels in spring wheat over last month's estimate was largely in the Pacific northwest. Indicated yields in leading wheat states follow:

Canadian Crops Damaged.

Canadian crops suffered extremely heavy damage by heat and drouth during July, as indicated by a drop of 19 points in the condition of wheat in western provinces and 14 points in the condition of oats, announced by the dominion government report yesterday.

While no official estimate as to the yield was given, local experts expressed the belief it indicated a possible crop of around 265,000,000 bushels, or in line with the figures of Chicago statisticians. Last year's harvest was 251,000,000 bushels. The gain in spring wheat as compared with a year ago was largely offset by the record small crop of winter wheat, which was placed at 8,000,000 bushels or 6,000,000 bushels below the returns of 1933. Condition in per cent in the prairie provinces follows:

August Brings Further Ruin.

The bulletin of the government said that in the prairie provinces during the first ten days of August the weather has been mostly hot and dry and further crop damage has occurred, especially to late sown crops. The dry weather experienced during July caused premature ripening in many areas and harvesting is now under way in the southern districts of the western provinces. During the first week of August precipitation has been more general throughout Ontario and late crops, which had reached a precarious stage, have benefited.

FARMERS HOLD THEIR CORN AS PRICES ADVANCE

Believe Short Crop Will Bring Higher Values.

Corn is getting harder to buy every day. The recent short upturn in prices and knowledge that tremendous deterioration has taken place recently in an already short crop is influencing holders of old grain to wait for better prices. From Springfield and Bloomington, Ill., yesterday reports came that it was impossible to buy a bushel of corn. Bids of 81 cents a bushel were turned down flatly by farmers who appeared unwilling to sell at any price. Ironically enough, it appears that the only thing that will loosen up offerings of corn would be a break in the market. When the price is going up offerings dry up.

With all deliveries of corn now selling at 80 cents or above, comparisons are being made with the prices prevailing in other years of crop failures. Nat C. Murray, statistician for Clement, Curtis & Co., yesterday dug out figures for the ten year period ended with 1933. In that ten year period the crop never fell below 2,000,000,000 bushels and the average for the period was 2,688,000,000 bushels. The Aug. 1 price on September futures in Chicago averaged 79 cents a bushel as compared with the 73 cents prevailing on the first of August this year.

The only year in which the failure of the corn crop even approached this year's dismal yield was 1930, and on Aug. 1 of that year the September delivery was selling at 87 cents, or 14 cents above the quotation on the same date this year. The 1930 crop totaled 2,060,000,000 bushels and this year returns will probably be a half a billion bushels below that record short crop.

The disaster which was visited this year on the oats crop has been obscured by the unprecedented damage which was done to the corn and wheat crops. Concern is now growing, however, over the problem of finding oats of quality acceptable for delivery on future contracts. The federal grain inspector at Cedar Rapids, Ia., told James E. Bennett & Co. that oats coming into market are of extremely poor grade. Most oats received will grade No. 4 white. Oats must grade 2 and 3 to be acceptable for delivery under future contracts.

Strength in the September oats contract yesterday in the face of generally lower prices reflects the somewhat tardy recognition of developments in this crop. All oats contracts have been showing conspicuous strength during the last few days after lagging behind other grains for some time. James E. Bennett recalled yesterday that what is believed to have been the first sale of No. 2 white oats at a dollar a bushel was made in 1920 by his firm. Later that year the firm sold the same grade oats at $1.12 and $1.20 a bushel.

Despite official assurances from federal officials that the drouth has not endangered prospects for new winter wheat apprehension on that score has not subsided. The consensus is that at least 6 inches of rainfall will be needed in the southwest in the next two months to insure a proper seed bed.

Thursday is believed to have been one of the worst days the corn crop has experienced in this year of disastrous conditions. In Iowa tremendous deterioration was reported and it now appears that only twenty of the northern counties of the state will turn out anything like a normal crop.

NEW YORK, Aug. 10.—(AP)—Print cloths were firm today, but trading was light. More than 15,000,000 yards have been sold this week and quotations have reached a basis of 7c for wide 64x60s. Finished goods were in better demand. Printed percales and bleached broadcloths sold ¼c a yard higher. Silks were quiet. Rayon yarns for September delivery were bought in moderate lots. Wool goods showed a slight increase in sales. Burlaps were firm.

I Represent a Coast-to-Coast Business.

While I am in Chicago Monday and Tuesday I will interview a few men between 25 and 40 to fill vacancies in our loop office.

Men selected will be thoroughly trained and placed in position to earn approximately $5,000 a year on a high percentage basis, with the largest financial institution of its kind in America.

A genuine opportunity for a few neat appearing men, 25 years of age or over, to represent the largest retail Home Furnishing House in the middle west. We are laying a foundation for future purchasing among our numerous customers and are paying our representatives advanced commission in full on a basis of average sales expectancy. Also allowing a daily drawing account privelege if necessary while getting started. An intensely interesting and dignified program for those capable of conducting enthusiastic conversation. Can earn between $40 and $50 per week consistently. No night calls. Apply from 9:30 to 11:30 a. m. only.

Again HOUSEHOLD Lowers Loan Cost
Our new rate schedule reduces the cost of all loans above $100 and less than $300 below the rates we have been charging since last July. Our previous low rate on $300 loans continues.
We have 17 branch offices in the Chicago district and do the largest business because:
1. We make loans of $50 to $300 at reasonable cost.
2. We do not question your employer, your neighbors, your relatives or your tradespeople.
3. All of our offices are equipped to handle your business in a private room.
4. We give free, authentic information on managing family incomes.
